'Surrender' Raids Smash at Pantelleria

Owners Split as Lewis Wins Pay Raise for Some Miners; Antistrike Bill Agreed On

Operators With 65,000 Workers Yield as Coal Wage Talks Collapse

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

With negotiations between most of the country's coal operators and miners in a state of collapse, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, yesterday shattered a hitherto united front of owners against him and obtained an agreement from the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association employing an estimated 65,000 workers.

Terms of the agreement were not learned officially, but a settlement for a daily pay increase in the neighborhood of $1.25 to $1.50 was indicated. One informed source stated that an overall payment of $1.50 a day increase, including about $1.30 as "portal-to-portal" compensation and about 20 cents to cover the cost of small concessions granted by the War Labor Board was agreed upon.

The surprise action was announced by Lewis and Charles O'Neill, head of the Central Pennsylvania group, on the eve of a WLB hearing set for 10 a. m. today.

Owners Report Impasse

The hearing was requested earlier by both Northern and Southern Appalachian operators, who telegraphed the board that "an impasse has been reached in the negotiations." O'Neill, who acted as spokesman for the Northern Appalachian group prior to the break, signed the request to the board. He was replaced as Northern spokesman later by R. L. Ireland, president of the Ohio Coal Association.

In answering the request for a hearing, WLB said it would hold it to receive "such reports as any party to the dispute may care to submit on the issues still in dispute" to enable the board to proceed "to final disposition of the controversy."

The agreement between Lewis and O'Neill was expected to change materially the status of the WLB hearing. Operators in the Appalachian Conference—both North and South—who did not participate in the agreement were expected to attack it today. It was regarded as possible that WLB would trim the amount agreed to when it issues its final decision in the case.

Lewis Tries Stampede

Getting the agreement was part of an effort by Lewis to stampede the rest of the producers into accepting the same terms. A Monday night announcement that Illinois operators—a group not participating in the conferences here—had agreed to consider a $1.50 a day payment as "a basis for negotiations" apparently was similarly designed, but failed to produce any reaction here prior to yesterday.

The Appalachian Conference—North and South—meeting here, represents the bulk of the industry employing an estimated 530,000 men. Producers in Illinois and

High Points Of Strike Bill

Highlights of the antistrike bill approved yesterday by House and Senate conferees:

Prohibits any strike in a Government-held plant.

Requires 30-day notice of strike in a private war plant and a secret strike ballot. If workers then strike, the Government can take over and criminal penalties will operate against any further strike.

Gives the War Labor Board power of subpena and clear statutory powers.

Authorizes the President specifically to take over strike-bound plants, a power he already has been exercising as Commander-in-chief.

Prohibits political contributions by labor unions in any election for Federal office.

Carries a "sleeper" provision interpreted by some conferees as banning further closed shop or maintenance of membership orders by the WLB.

The Ax

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

House and Senate conferees yesterday approved a razor-sharp antistrike bill outlawing any work stoppage whatever in a Government-owned war plant and compelling private war workers to "cool off" for 30 days and then ballot before striking.

Full conference agreement was reached on practically all provisions of the Connally-Smith bills, separately passed by both Houses. In conference the language was whetted and sharpened into a single, fine-edge strike ax. Only major item dropped from the two bills was a House union registration requirement.

Before approving the first major labor bill since Pearl Harbor, conferees reconsidered an eleventh-hour conference provision opening War Labor Board decisions to limited court review. The War Labor Board had protested that this would tie up its work in endless litigation. The provision had appeared in neither House nor Senate bills and yesterday it was dropped from the conference draft.

Lewis Is Target

The bill was rushed to completion at a late afternoon session in time for final congressional action far in advance of the June 20 deadline for resumption of the mine strike.

Keystone provisions still were pointed at John L. Lewis and his U. M. W. leaders, with fines up to $5000 and a one year jail sentence invoked against "conspiring" to strike or encouraging or aiding a strike in a Government-owned plant.

Senate conferees "yielded" to the House on strike notice and strike ballot provisions after completely rewriting the two sections into a stronger and more elaborate "cooling-off" formula.

A conference foreword to the amendment states that the action is necessary "in order that the President may be apprised of labor disputes which threaten seriously to interrupt war production, and in order that employes may have an opportunity to express themselves, free from restraint or coercion, as to whether they shall permit such interruptions in wartime."

Leaders Satisfied

After the 30 days, workers apparently would be free to strike, but here the bill would operate as a double-edged deterrent. If a strike took place in a war plant, the Government could take over the plants, and criminal provisions of the bill forbid any strike against the Government.

Obviously satisfied with their work, Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas, author of the Senate bill, and Representative May (Democrat) of Kentucky, conference manager of the House measure, jointly receivd reporters.

"It is a very good bill, to which no fair-minded labor member or other citizen should object," said Connally. "Our principal object

Food Subsidy Plan Faces Restriction

Senate Opposition Mounts; Ban Being Drafted by Wolcott

The Administration's subsidy program for rolling back consumer prices yesterday was headed for almost certain restriction by Congress, possibly within the next two weeks, as a storm of opposition to the plan blew up on the Senate floor.

The Senate explosion came while Representative Wolcott of Michigan, ranking Republican on the House Banking Committee, was disclosing that he was drafting an amendment to the committee-approved Commodity Credit Corporation bill to tighten up the measure's prohibition against payment of subsidies by any Federal agency.

Extends CCC Two Years

Wolcott explained that he was inclined to believe that the bill's subsidy ban would not be effective and that he was "working up more definite language." The prohibition now in the measure was prepared by Edward J. O'Neal, president of the politically-potent Farm Bureau Federation.

The measure extends for two years the life of the CCC and increases its borrowing authority by 500 million dollars. The Administration sought a four-year extension for the corporation whose life expires June 30, and an additional billion dollars in borrowing power.

The Senate Banking Committee, which has reported a CCC-extension bill with an amendment prohibiting use of corporation funds for roll-back subsidies, is scheduled to resume its subsidy hearings today.

Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, announced in the Senate yesterday that he would propose broader legislative restrictions against subsidies. The measure he has in mind, he said, would limit use of subsidies to purchases of high-cost war materials and to equalization of transportation

Sen. Byrd Opens New Fight on FSA

Senator Byrd of Virginia failed in one effort yesterday to knock out the Farm Security Administration, but immediately began a new effort.

After the Senate had outvoted him on a point-of-order attack on FSA funds, the Virginian presented an amendment that would transfer the agency's activities to the Farm Credit Administration. A decision is due today.

89,327 Men Are Deferred By U. S. Jobs

Congress Gets Lists Showing Majority Kept From Armed Service Are Under 30

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Draft boards have deferred 89,327 Government workers for occupational reasons, and the number is expected to increase, Congress was told yesterday.

Of the men deferred as necessary, about one-third are under 25, and two-thirds are under 30 years of age. It was estimated that half would be physically unfit for military service. No figure was given to show how many of the deferred men work in Washington, and how many outside.

Information Listed

With the figures, the names of each individual deferred because of his Federal job was sent to Congress. One set of the names went to the Senate, the other to the House, and they were turned over to the Military Affairs Committees. Beside the names, the age, job, local draft board and agency of each person was listed.

Acted On Occupations

The names and figures were transmitted to Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn (Democrat), Texas, by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service. A breakdown of the figures was given by Lieut. Col. Francis V. Kessling, jr., chief liaison and legislative officer for Selective Service. The report was the first submitted under the new Federal occupational deferment law of last April.

Departments Cited

Colonel Keesling said the number of Federal male employes deferred for ocupational reasons will probably increase as men in Government service who have wives or wives and children are reclassified from the group deferred because of their dependents to the occupational deferment group.

The report said that 44 per cent of those deferred, or 39,286, were employes of the Navy Department, and 24 per cent, or 21,509, in the War Department.

Agencies listed as having more than 1000 employes deferred, in addition to the War and Navy Departments, were Justice, including FBI, 4187; War Shipping Administration, 3384; Maritime Commission, 2995; Agriculture, 1146; Commerce, 1311; Civil Aeronautics Board, 1080; Army Transport Service, 1316.

Faces Saved But Outpost Lost

Japs' Final Organized Resistance on Attu Collapses in Mass Suicide of Survivors

By William L. Worden
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cories Lake, Attu, May 30 (Delayed).—Final organized Japanese resistance on Attu collapsed today in the mass suicide of the survivors. Many ended it all by holding their grenades against their chests after banging them against their helmets to start the detonating mechanism.

The final Japanese counterattack began yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, catching the Americans by surprise. A madly yelling mob of Japanese army and navy personnel and civilians rushed positions above Cories Lake, infiltrated through out lines and reoccupied positions from which the enemy had been driven days before.

Eager to Surrender

Once the sleeping Americans had been aroused, once lines had been established, the two-day battle was little more than a slaughter. No one knows tonight how many Japanese were killed. The proportion was easily 50 for every American loss. Hundreds were killed by our fire.

Some snipers penetrated even beyond our principal command post, Gen. E. M. Landrum's headquarters.

One gesticulating Japanese prisoner succeeded in reaching our lines alive tonight, clutching fearfully a slip of paper. The note said in English that the bearer wished to surrender and depended on American good treatment.

Four Officers Killed

He said that all Japanese in Attu village were ordered to make yesterday's attack, whether they were army, navy or civilian personnel. The seriously wounded were shot by their own officers in the village. All others, even the wounded, moved to the suicidal attack.

In the first surge of the surprise 4 a. m. attack, sleeping American soldiers were bayonetted and grenaded in their pup tents as they slept in fox holes at an advanced command post near here.

The force of that Japanese drive carried to small American field guns, at least one of which was turned against our own forces. An American colonel and other officers were surrounded in a tent, from which they fought off a steady attack from 4 a. m. until 11 a. m.

Four officers were killed. Dead attackers lay on the tent ropes today. A first aid station was overwhelmed, a field kitchen endangered.

The few snipers who penetrated beyond the principal American command post fired from the west side of Massacre Bay while others were above the General's headquarters and about 200 yards distant on the east side of the valley.

There, however, the desperate Japanese attack stopped. There the Japanese died, almost to a man.

Daring but Hopeless

One last hopeless attack by about 50 men was made at 5 a. m. today. Its objective was the same command post above Cories Lake that was attacked yesterday. This time there was no surprise. A full half of the hundreds of men on the

State Department Takes Hand in Touchy West Coast Problem

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, June 9.—A five-day conflict betwen zoot-suited youths and servicemen brought repercussions today in the State and Federal governments as isolated outbreaks continued.

More than 150 persons have been injured and 500 jailed during the violence.

In Sacramento, Gov. Earle Warren issued an appeal for the ending of the rioting and announced that State Attorney General Robert W. Kenny and a citizens' committee of five will make an immediate investigation to ascertain the facts behind the disturbances.

Says Peace Will Be Kept

(In Washington, Rafael de la Colina, minister-counselor of the Mexican Embassy, expressed indignation today over the attacks made by soldiers and sailors against Los Angeles "zoot-suiters," many of whom he said were "innocent Mexican bystanders." He hinted a formal protest was possible, saying the embassy was awaiting instructions from the Mexican government.)

Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles said he had been telephoned by the State Department in Washington and informed that the Mexican Embassy had called the department's attention to the situation.

The mayor said he informed the State Department that "the law is

Talks to Middies

Fear Grips Foe's Heart, Says Knox

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., June 9.—Secretary of the Navy Knox told the largest United States Naval Academy graduating class in history today that in contrast to the dark days following Pearl Harbor, "the initiative is all ours" in the war at present.

Praising the transition the United Nations have made from a defensive to an offensive war, he said that "secret information to us says the feeling in Tokyo and Berlin is akin to ours after Pearl Harbor."

The Navy Secretary recalled that "our enemies in the Far East were winning victory after victory," and that "Britain was a beleagured isle and waiting for a blow" in December, 1941.

"Today, less than two years later, I am happy to say that we have assembled a mighty Army. We have assembled a new fleet."

Now Eight Active Fronts

He declared that there was "a lot of irresponsible talk about a second front," explaining there were eight active fronts—the western Mediterranean, eastern Mediterranean, North Atlantic, the South Atlantic, South Pacific, North Pacific and in Russia and China.

"The choice, place and time for striking is now ours," he asserted.

Secretary Knox said of the Atlantic theater that "each day sees fresh victories on the front," and of the China area, "it has been announced that within the past fortnight China has won its greatest victory against Japan on land."

Deviating from the general war picture, he told the graduating

Long-Range Fights

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), June 10.—Russian airmen destroyed between 150 and 160 German aircraft Tuesday night in raids on six enemy airports, losing 21 of their own planes, Moscow announced early today.

A broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor said 24 more German planes were shot down at a cost of two Russian planes the same night in repulsing an enemy attack on the Volkhov front southwest of Leningrad.

These bursts of long-range air activity on both sides were accepted generally by observers as forerunners of great summer land battles, but the regular midnight Russian communique again said there were no important ground developments.

The Russians again ignored German assertions that heavy fighting was going on in the Kuban district of the Caucasus where Berlin said the Russians lost 100 tanks, 350 aircraft and many troops in unsuccessful attacks during the last two weeks.

A German bulletin said the Russians lost 47 landing boats Tuesday in an attempt to put troops ashore behind the German Caucasian lines. The action occurred in the Sea of Azov on the north side of the Taman Peninsula, it said.

Moscow said Soviet ships sank an enemy transport in the Barents Sea, and a transport and three patrol ships in the Baltic, but did not mention any engagements in the Sea of Azov or Black Sea.

A noon Russian communique yesterday said two German infantry companies were wiped out in an attack on Red Army positions near Sevsk, west of Kursk, and the midnight bulletin said 200 Germans fell on the Smolensk front west of Moscow, and two companies also were destroyed on the Leningrad front.

Italian Garrison Refuses Allies' Demand to Yield; Rome Admits Peril

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 9.—The Allies demanded Pantelleria's unconditional surrender yesterday and when no reply was received American Flying Fortresses and British warships rocked the tiny Italian sea outpost with another preinvasion bombardment.

"The demand for surrender was made to save the garrison and inhabitants unnecessary suffering," said a special Allied bulletin which emphasized that Pantelleria "will continue to be subjected to bombing, bombardment and blockade" until it collapses.

Allied planes dropped the Casablanca note of "unconditional surrender" over the badly battered island, steppingstone to Sicily and the Italian mainland.

When this was ignored, the American air forces raced in to hand the 32-square-mile island another jolt of explosives that left the Italian defenses sheathed in smoke.

Invasion Believed Imminent

(London military observers suggested that a land invasion of Pantelleria was imminent if not already under way, as a natural sequel to the ignored surrender ultimatum.

(A Rome radio broadcast recorded by the British agency Reuters late tonight said:

("Overwhelming air and naval forces are besieging the fortress of Pantelleria.")

After the Flying Fortress attack, a big force of British cruisers and destroyers raced in close to shore and began pumping hundreds of shells into the isolated volcanic isle.

It was the sixth bombardment there by British warships in 10 days.

"The results were satisfactory," said an Allied communique. "There was a certain amount of retaliatory fire, but our ships suffered neither casualties nor damage."

"Steady Rhythm of Violence"

The surrender demand was signed by Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, American commander of the Allied Northwest African Air Force, and expired at 6 p. m. last night, the Italians said in broadcasts from Rome.

Rome said the ultimatum had been ignored, but did not attempt to minimize Pantelleria's plight. The Allied air assault had reached a "steady rhythm of extreme vio-

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, head of the WAACS, yesterday denied a story carried by a New York and a Washington newspaper that the WAACS would be furnished contraceptives and prophylacic equipment.

"There is absolutely no foundation of truth in the statement," declared Colonel Hobby.

The story asserted that these items would be furnished to the WAACS "according to a super secret agreement reached by high ranking officers of the War Department and the WAAC chief."

'Sensible Men' Slated to Set Style for Slacks in Summer

The Brotherhood of Sensible Men will show the world that they are men, not mice, on June 15 when they hold a mass meeting on the Ellipse to express their approval of shirts and slacks for summer office wear.

And that approval will be the most forceful ever staged by Government employes in behalf of a principle; it will be a bonfire to burn stiff collars, neckties and old jackets, thereby ending the age-old tradition of masculine dress during Washington's 90-degree summers.

The meeting, inspired by a letter to Jerry Klutz's Federal Diary from Charles A. Planck of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, originally was scheduled for June 30 when the Capital will be on the brink of one of its famous jarring Julys, but public opinion, urged on by two typical 90-ish days last week, demanded that it be advanced to next Tuesday.

Clowns, girls and other features will lure sensible men to the Ellipse ceremony, lasting from 5:30 to 6:15 p. m. All comers are welcome and anything is likely to happen. But one item is assured: the Brotherhood of Sensible Men will not swelter through another Washington summer in high-collared discomfort. The heat, gentlemen, is on.

Baruch Returns to Serve U. S. As Unpaid Adviser to Byrnes

By Bert Andrews
N. Y. Herald Tribune Washington Bureau

Bernard M. Baruch, who was chairman of the War Industries Board during the first World War, was called back into Government service yesterday to act as an unsalaried special adviser to James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization, in the Administration's drive to stem dangerous inflationary trends.

Byrnes announced the appointment at a press conference at which, after squelching reports that he intends to use his OWM job as a springboard into the doubtful waters of the Vice Presidency, he outlined the methods he will use in attempting to accomplish some of the varied and tremendous tasks that confront the newest of the superagencies.

He said departments involved in disputes would hereafter be required to put their versions of the cases in writing, with final decisions to be made either by Byrnes or, in important cases, by the whole war mobilization committee.

He said he was working on a plan to reduce to two—one from Senate and one from House—the number of legislative committees investigating the conduct of the war, the motive being to save the time of Government officials, establish closer relations between executive and legislative branches and perhaps prevent the public airing of some rows.

He said one of his plans is to obtain progress reports from various departments concerning the

Yanks Blast Indo-China Base of Foe

By the Associated Press

Chungking, June 9.—American bombers attacked Hongay, 30 miles northeast of Haiphong in French Indo-China yesterday, heavily damaging coaling docks, warehouses, railroad yards and power transmission lines, a communique from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Dense clouds of smoke rising to 5000 feet and visible 30 miles away marked the target area after the raiders passed.

The twin-engined Mitchells and Warhawks which made the raid encountered no enemy interception, the communique said, and all returned to their bases.

(The Tokyo radio in a Hanoi dispatch yesterday said the northern Indo-China region had been bombed, but asserted damage was negligible.)

Meanwhile, Chinese dispatches reported today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces had smashed the Japanese defense line southeast of Hwajung, the key to the Chinese rice-producing region around Lake Tungting in northern Hunan Province.

Other dispatches reported the recapture of three important points, including Shihlipu, 50 miles east of Ichang and on the highway to Hankow, in the northern sector of the upper Yangtze Front.

Today's Chinese communique said further heavy casualties had been inflicted on Japanese troops fleeing Itu, 18 miles below Ichang on the Yangtze. The port was fully occupied by the Chinese Tuesday.

A new Japanese thrust south from points west of the Taiheng Mountains in Shansi Province was reported halted.

class that "you are going to command a different kind of crew than ever before. We have today the highest average of enlisted men an enlisted man to do something you would not do yourself."

In his prepared address, of which he actually delivered little, Knox said the United States had learned a lesson after the last war and would not again consent to the scrapping of her naval strength.

"The United States is in this war with a clear conscience," he said. "We wanted nothing from other nations but peace and good will. We sacrificed much to achieve what we hoped was lasting peace. Although a great and growing sea power, we laid our strength upon the block after the last war.

"We realize now what a mistake that was. The people of this country do not intend to scrap again the fleet that we are building. You can be sure, there is going to be work for every one of you who looks on the Navy as a career."

He declared that the demands of war had touched every family in the country, and said the backing here at home had been gaining in momentum.

"The shipyards are turning out the ships now at the rate of six a day," the Secretary continued. "Workers in aircraft plants are producing the best combat planes in the world. The arsenals of America are pouring out guns and ammunition in a rising torrent.

"This year the numerical strength of our powerful fleet will more than double. The tonnage strength will increase by two-thirds. We will build thousands of landing craft and you can be sure we know why we are building them."

whole manpower problem so as to be able to act swiftly if any revisions become necessary on the needs of the armed services and industry.

When he was asked for comment, Baruch voiced belief that Byrnes "if not blocked" will end "all this infernal bickering which has hurt the war effort and confused the public."

"Any call from so fine a man and so old a friend as Justice Byrnes commands my best efforts," he said. "If I can do anything to help the country, I am happy at the opportunity. In taking on this work I am assuming that the Office of War Mobilization will be effective, and that it is to be the final expression of the Commander in Chief, and, therefore, it will not be by-passed or side-tracked. Justice Byrnes, if not blocked, will improve things by more clearly defining the work of each administrator and stopping all this infernal bickering which has hurt the war effort and confused the public."

Some Washington onlookers familar with Baruch's economy ideas and ability and the warmth of the friendship between him and Byrnes assumed that Baruch would make headway with steps he has long advocated for curbing inflation and controlling the cost of living; for bringing about true industrial mobilization; for turning a peacetime economy into a wartime economy; for taking the profits out of war; for standardizing and simplifying production and for handling the over-all manpower problem.

Byrnes opened his press conference by saying that the War Mobilization Committee had held an organizational meeting and decided on procedure.

He told of his plans to consult with the Senate Truman Committee and his hope that it would be possible to deal with one similar committee from the House. He said he did not intend to have the OWM become a large organization.

"I expect to have the benfit of the servics of Bernard Baruch in an advisory capacity," he said. "In fact, he will do for me what he has been doing for the President in the last two years. He will serve without title and without pay, without anything except desire to serve his Government, as he always has."

Byrnes statement that he would ask for progress reports on the whole manpower situation to see whether they indicated necessity for revision at any future time stirred interest. He did not amplify it. Officials of Selective Service said later that three has been no change in the draft estimates, but acknowledged that future developments could lead to revisions up or down, depending on whether military progress on th world's fronts is fast or slow.

Byrnes talked about politics when a questioner reminded him bluntly that there had been a lot of talk that his present job was given him as a build-up for the vice presidential nomination. He said:

"I have no ambition to be Vice President; I would not want to be Vice President; under no circumstances would I seek the nomination for Vice President."

"Like Mr. Dewey?" asked a newspaperman, referring to the generally accepted fact that whatever political ambitions Dewey may have, the Vice Presidency isn't one of them. Byrnes joined in the laugh and said, "If the Governor has no political ambitions, that's true."

"How about some other job?" asked another. Byrnes "Got it." He laughed and said he hadn't noticed any popular uprising demanding that he be a presidential candidate, and seriously, said that since he left the Senate to go to the Supreme Court in 1941 he had never given "a moment's thought" to future elective office.

OWI Chief's Scottie Goes A. W. O. L.

George H. Lyon, chief of the OWI news bureau, yesterday sought his runaway Scottie-spaniel dog who liked to follow neighborhood children to school. The puppy is the namesake of Paul Smith, Lyon's OWI predecessor, who resigned last fall as a lieutenant commander in the Navy to become a private in the Marine Corps.

The frisky dog, coal black with drooping ears and wiry hair, was a gift from Paul Smith to the three Lyon children—Sally, 10; John, 7, and Eve, 4.

Byrnes Calls Conference on Tax Strategy

How to get more wartime taxes from Americans will be the subject of a special strategy conference, first of its kind, between four ranking members of America's high economic command today.

War Mobilization Director Byrnes, moving swiftly behind the President's announced plan to ask Congress for more taxes and compulsory savings to combat inflation, announced that he will meet in what was described as a "where do we go from here" session, with these officials:

Economic Stabilization Director Vinson, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Budget Director Smith.

Bynes told the first press conference he has held since taking charge of the new Office of War Mobilization that he was acting for the President in stepping into the tax question. He said he was planning to hear the views of the three other officials and see if they are in agreement.

He disclosed that the fiscal chiefs probably would consider what President Roosevelt may say in a statement from the White House expected with the signing of the new pay-as-you-go bill. President Roosevelt the day before had announced that he plans to sign the measure shortly, and also to send Congress the formal request for more taxes, probably including higher excises on tobacco and liquor, and compulsory savings.

While seeking agreement on a program for the President to submit to Congress, Byrnes and the other officials prepared to meet after congressional leaders had given abundant assurance that the tax program will not be allowed to interfere with present plans for a two-month recess starting about July 10 or 11.

Members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, which must make the first move on any new general tax bill, said that they had no thought of working during a congressional recess. Representative Doughton (Democrat), committee chairman, now visiting his home in North Carolina, was understood to have suggested that the members of his committee cut their recess short by a week or two to get a head start on tax hearings. At present, it appeared the idea would meet a cool reception from other committeemen. Doughton and Senate Finance Chairman George (Democrat) of Georgia are scheduled to confer with Morgenthau next Tuesday.

Senator George estimated that present tax rates will bring close to 38 billion into the Federal Treasury during the 12-month period starting July 1, and that State and local taxes would take an additional 11 billion from the Nation's taxpayers, or a grand total close to 50 billion. He said that the individual's actual burden of taxes was probably as great in this country as in Canada or Great Britain.

Senator George said that extra taxes on tobacco and liquor might produce another 1.5 billion in revenue, but not much more.

"If the Administration desired a general sales tax without exemptions we could increase revenue considerably," he said.

Conferees Adopt Stiff Antistrike Bill

is to keep war plants going." May similarly commented that the bill provides "adequate power and authority to successfully carry on war production."

As approved by the conferees, the bill carried a sleeper originally inserted in the House measure by Representative Howard Smith (Democrat) of Virginia. This provision, revived by the Senate conferees, requires WLB decisions to conform to the National Labor Relations Act.

Might Bar Closed Shop

Smith and a number of the Senate conferees contend this effectively bars closed shop or maintenance of membership orders by the WLB. They point to Section 8 of the act, making it an unfair labor practice to discriminate in employment by encouraging or discouraging membership in a union. The NLRB general counsel in 1941 gave a legal opinion to the contrary. Senator Connally said there was "a difference of opinion" as to whether closed shop orders would be banned.

Other provisions of the bill definitely strengthen the hand of the board by giving it clear statutory authority to intervene in a dispute, and to subpena witnesses and books. The subpena power alone would force Lewis in the future to appear before the board if called. As a practical matter the board's decisions would be final, except for appeal to the President.

Retained in the bill were two House provisions not seriously contested in conference. One of these would prohibit political contributions by labor unions in any Federal election. The other would forbid any WLB member from participating in a decision in which he had a direct interest.

Individual Strikers Not Punishable

The criminal penalty provision of the Connally bill was sharpened in conference with new language making it a punishable offense to "conspire" with or encourage anyone to strike in a Government plant, as well as to instigate a strike, coerce anyone to strike, or aid in a strike by paying benefits or otherwise. Individual strikers would not be punished.

Union leaders in private plants who violated cooling-off requirements of the strike notice and strike ballot formula would be punished by subjecting them to both Government and civil suits for damage in the District courts.

The big remaining question mark was:

"Will the President sign the bill?"

Leaders, who were convinced the President would sign the original Connally bill provisions, were more dubious as to the broader conference language. A few believed the President might hold up action and if the mine dispute could be settled without the legislative bludgeon, veto the measure. Tentative plans call for House action tomorrow and final pasage well ahead of the mine strike deadline.

Food Subsidy Plan Is Seen Facing Curbs in Congress

costs when inequalities develop because of the war emergency.

Criticism of the subsidy payments, confined previously to committee rooms, flared up during the Senate debate on a $820,000,000 agriculture appropriation bill when Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia predicted that farm subsidies will cost the Nation five billion dollars a year and forecast that a rollback of prices by that means will bring "complete regimentation of farmers and processors."

Producers Get Nothing

Joining the chorus, Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee said that an estimated 450 million dollar subsidy to compensate for a 10 per cent decrease in retail prices of butter and meats would go to packers and processors

"Not a cent will go to the producers," he said. "The payment of this money to the processors will be a costly gift."

Chairman Smith (Democrat) of South Carolina of a Senate Agriculture subcommittee which completed hearings on the price rollback two hours earlier, told the Senate the amount of opposition was "amazing."

"Why not stop this thing now?" he shouted.

Protest that the subsidy payment system is "taking a leaf out of Hitler's book" came from Senator Wheeler (Democrat) Montana.

other so-called "outlying" regions generally pattern their agreements on the "main" Appalachian settlement.

Lewis predicted that the agreement reached with O'Neill would shortly become the "main" agreement, with other operators trailing along to accept it, but one owner expressed the belief that there was not the "chance of a snowball in hell" of its being generally accepted.

Will Attend Hearing

Former Senator Edward R. Burke, spokesman for the Southern Appalachian operators, announced that all operators still in the conference would attend the WLB hearing at 10 a. m. in spite of the scheduled meeting of the conference under its rules at the same time. Lewis said he would attend the conference, indicating that the U. M. W. will not be represented at the WLB hearing.

However, O'Neill stated that he would attend the WLB hearing and observers expected he would explain details of the pact to the War Labor Board.

Lewis acknowledged that "the agreement of course will be contingent on the approval by all properly authorized Government agencies, and contingent, of course, on the necessary approval of prices." It was the mine leader's first intimation that he would consent to War Labor Board review of any agreement he reached with the operators.

Lewis' Statement

"The mine workers have been glad to accept the first bona-fide and constructive offer it has received," Lewis said. "We have no doubt that it will be accepted by other operators unless there is political and financial interference by producers of large tonnage. We believe it is in the public interest."

Lewis and O'Neill reached the agreement after at least four private conferences during the day.

"The operators of Central Pennsylvania," O'Neill said, "believe that after three months of negotiation, we ought to make the mine workers some sort of an offer, since they have not been offered a single cent except by order of the War Labor Board."

O'Neill previously had been regarded as apt to make a separate settlement with the mine leader. In a conference with Lewis and Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes two weeks ago, O'Neill indicated a willingness to settle on $1 a day, but he was unable to persuade the rest of the Northern group to go along with him.

At that time Lewis went down to $1.50 for "portal to portal" alone — a recession from his original demand for a $2 a day boost. The Southern operators were understood to have been ready to offer a settlement on the basis of 80 cents a day.

Flying Forts, Warships Pound Pantelleria in Surrender Raids

lence," with the Fascist garrison undergoing "at least 12 daily attacks" in addition to the numerous sea bombardments, the Italians said.

Altogether the island has been subjected to 140 air attacks in the last month, "and naturally much damage has occurred," the Italian broadcasts said.

But the Italian garrison is ready to exact "a very dear price" in any Allied landing attempt, Rome said, and then again recalled the "victorious repulse" of the Allies Sunday night at Lampedusa Island 80 miles south of Pantelleria.

The Lampedusa venture, meanwhile, was put into its proper perspective by a British communique in Malta. It was disclosed that light naval forces had carried out a "coastal reconnaissance of that small outpost, suffering no damage but losing two members of a landing party.

(This was the action which Axis reports on Tuesday had characterized as a repulsed attack by five companies of British commandos.)

The latest aerial bombardment of Pantelleria was carried out by a great force of Fortresses and Lightnings which swept over the island a few minutes before the British cruiser and destroyer squadron steamed in within range. Before the smoke thinned from the falling aerial bombs British shells were arching into the same targets.

In a dispatch from an advanced United States air base in North Africa, Associated Press Correspondent Harold V. Boyle reported that returning pilots said:

"The whole end of the island was covered with heavy brown dust clouds raised by the Fortress' bombs. You actually could see the earth shake when those bombs hit.

"While the Navy ships circled, firing continually, our planes were circling overhead to protect them from any surprise enemy attack.

"When the dust from the Fortress bombs began to settle, the war ships began pulling back from shore, keeping their big guns hot as they moved away . . . I'd hate to be anyone on that island today."

(In a dispatch from a British destroyer off Pantelleria, Associated Press Naval Correspondent Paul Kern Lee described the attack as the most spectacular synchronized sea and air operation against enemy shores yet conducted in the Mediterranean war.

(The fleet's guns, he added, threw high-explosive shells into the harbor works and enemy batteries at practically point-blank range for 45 minutes while at the same time the Allied air raiders "seemed to fill the skies." The entire island, he went on, was obscured by smoke clouds rising a mile into the sky. The Italians, thinking it was an invasion, exploded their beach mines.)

Pantelleria was but one of a number of long-punished Italian targets to come again under powerful Allied fire.

Allied headquarters here told of new attacks on enemy bases in southern Sardinia, while a Cairo communique announced that the Middle East Air Force had set off great fires at the Messina terminus of the railway leading to the Italian mainland.

Moreover, Middle East pilots swept over the Aegean Sea and off the west coast of enemy-occupied Greece, setting aflame two enemy vessels and leaving another listing. A tug was set afire at the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth, and enemy communications were attacked on the Greek mainland near Kyparissia.

Malta-based British planes for their part struck at railway communications in both Sicily and southeastern Italy.

In all these operations, delivered from three Allied bases, two Allied planes were lost. One enemy craft was known to have been shot down.

Reconnaissance photographs showed that the Fortress raid of Saturday on Italy's La Spezia naval base damaged the incompleted Italian light cruiser Claudio Tiberio. Another ship was hit and the naval base was heavily damaged.

Palm Beach Suit

22% Cooler*

Costly Angora Mohair gives Palm Beach its strength and wear-resistance—it's the prime secret of its porosity, its springy "life" and resistance to matting. That's why Palm Beach is America's fastest-selling summer suit. The scientific blending of fine Angora Mohair with other cool fibers; and the famous Palm Beach special weave have resulted in the creation of a whole group of good looking Palm Beach fabrics that actually average *22% cooler—by independent tests!—than 22 other summer suitings examined. Combine this comfort with famous Palm Beach tailoring—fine lines, smooth fit and shape; without heavy "heat-trap" paddings and inner linings, and what do you have? The answer is, you have the most comfortable smart suit money can buy in summer. And the nice part is, it takes so little money to buy it, you can easily afford two or more—for instance, a solid or patterned dark tone for business and a lighter color for evenings. 'Foes'' Roster Of A.F.L. Lists Wrong Voters

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Seven members of the House who voted against passage last week of the Connally-Smith antistrike bill last night had reason to wonder why their names are carried on a "Roll Call of Labor's Enemies" which the American Federation of Labor has distributed to thousands of locals throughout the country with a recommendation for political assassination.

By the same token, four Representatives had cause for pleasant surprise when they found that their names were not on the list. They voted for the bill.

The roll call was printed in the federation's Weekly News Service which is sent not only to every A. F. of L. local union but to almost newspapers.

Preceding the list of names was a reminder that the federation's executive council had sworn to try to "vote out of office' any member of Congress who supported the bill, whether it passed or not.

"Into this effort the American Federation of Labor will pour every resource at its command," ran the council's warning, issued before the vote on the bill.

The list, said the news service, was published "in compliance" with the council's "mandate," and contained, it stated, the names of 238 members who voted for "this vicious antilabor bill." Unfortunately, the roll call was not a list of members who voted for final passage of the Connally-Smith bill, but was a list of members who voted for adoption of an amendment to the bill offered by Representative Smith (Democrat) of Virginia.

Among those voting for the Smith amendment, which was approved, were seven members who a short time later voted "no" on the bill. They were Representatives Bender of Ohio, Dirksen of Illinois, Elmer of Missouri, Johnson of Illinois, Reed of Illinois and LaFollette of Indiana (Republicans) and Green (Democrat) of Florida.

On the other hand, four members who voted for the bill with the Smith amendment in it voted against the amendment on the earlier roll call. They were Representatives Anderson and Fernandez of New Mexico and Folger of North Carolina and Kefauver of Tennessee (all Democrats).

Aside from some devious language which Smith aimed at the closed-shop and maintenance-of-membership clauses in War Labor Board wage-dispute settlements, the amendment is considered by many observers to be mild by comparison with other provisions of the bill as it passed the House and went to conference. It is doubtful, furthermore, if many persons, other than Smith, fully understood the purport of his anti-closed-shop provision.

Supporters of the bill were inclined to take lightly the federation's threat to cut short their congressional careers.

"Good," said Representative Monroney (Democrat) of Oklahoma, when informed that his name was on the list. "I don't think publication of the 'roll call' will have any effect on the voters. Any member who doesn't vote 'em the way he sees 'em ought not to be in Congress anyway."

Remarked Representative Bender: "Frankly, I felt that all the bill did was give the President another chance to be a hero to labor by vetoing the measure. I thought the bill was an abortion."

Smith said he thought supporters of the bill would gain political strength in their districts "if they meet the issue squarely and get their people to understand it."

Senate Expected to Settle Fate of FSA Today, With Agency Seen Winner in Showdown Fight

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

A showdown fight on the future of the Farm Security Administration, with a victory indicated for the embattled agency, is scheduled in the Senate today.

Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, who yesterday failed in his effort to get FSA amendments to the Agricultural Appropriations Act thrown out on point of order, late in the afternoon presented substitute amendments that would transfer the agency's activities to the Farm Credit Administration.

His proposal is virtually the same as that approved by the House Appropriations Committee and killed on the House floor. It would allow the use of five million dollars for rural rehabilitation loans and "farm and home management assistance" to the borrowers.

The extension service would be utilized to provide the assistance.

When the House turned down these suggestions it in effect killed the FSA, leaving its future in the hands of the Senate.

The Senate Agricultural Apropriations subcommittee restored the agency and provided it with funds totaling 130 million dollars.

In raising the point of order against provisions to bring FSA back "from the grave" Senator Byrd set off a parlimentary free-for-all that kept more Senators on the floor all afternoon than the galleries often see there at any one time.

The Virginian and Senator Clark (Democrat) of Missouri headed the argument that rules of the Senate did not permit an appropriations committee to write in legislation. Senator Russell (Democrat) of Alabama, sponsoring the act on the floor, contended the House had left the way open for legislation.

Bitter and personal debate resulted. When Senator Chandler (Democrat) of Kentucky, acting presiding officer, put the vote to the Senate, 53 members voted against sustaining the Byrd point of order.

This led Senator Clark to remark bitterly that he agreed with the person who said the Senate had only a few rules and never paid any attention to those few.

The sweeping 55-to-23 victory for the appropriations committee was not interpreted by Acting Majority Leader Lister Hill as necessarily the true test of feeling about the FSA, however. While predicting passage of the committee provisions, he admitted the vote might not be so overwhelmingly in the affirmative as it was on yesterday's balloting.

Waring Warns Of Peace Peril

Grand Forks, N. Dak., June 9 (AP). Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, cautioned the North Dakota State Legion convention here Tuesday to guard against elements that might seek a negotiated peace after the war, instead of one dictated by the United Nations.

Without listing these elements, he said they might include "newspapers that had had their newsprint cut or had lost men" to the services.

Spilled Spuds Tangle Traffic in Pawtucket

Pawtucket, R. I., June 9 (AP).—The once lowly potato created a traffic jam of major proportions on Pawtucket's main street today.

A vegetable truck was trundling slowly along when a sack of potatoes tottered, fell from the vehicle, and spilled the contents over the highway.

Before the driver could say "potato" the tubers had been scooped by pedestrians who scurried gleefully to the curb.

More U. S. Troops Arrive in Britain

London (Thursday), June 10 (AP). A sizable new contingent of United States soldiers arrived in a British port recently after a fast, uneventful trip, it was announced early today.

The group included more airmen for the swiftly growing Eighth United States Air Force, and engineering units.

Red Cross Calls for More Blood Donors

The forthcoming invasion of the European continent requiring an unlimited amount of blood plasma for wounded men was cited yesterday as an imperative reason for District residents to help the American Red Cross Blood Donor Center reach its weekly goal of 3000 donors.

Lee D. Butler, chairman of the blood donor service for the District, said the Blood Donor Center, Twenty-third and C Streets Northwest, had been falling below its quota. The total number of donors, each of whom gave a pint of blood, was 2789 the week ended June 5.

"Unfortunately, victories like our recent one in Tunisia result in a decrease of blood donors," Butler explained. "But let me urgently remind District residents that we have a bigger job facing us—one that demands everything we can do as patriotic Americans. With only a little inconvenience, blood donors can perform miracles for the boys on the battlefield."

Butler picked up letters from his desk which told how blood plasma donated and processed in America had saved ebbing lives of men in the armed forces. He expressed the wish that people in this country could more fully appreciate the value of the sustaining fluid when it is pumped into the arm of a dying man.

This letter came from a naval doctor in Honolulu: "It took 43 plasma transfusions for Bill Moore, but we saved him. Today, here at a naval hospital, I saw 12 men who would have died from their battle injuries. But blood plasma saved them. The donations of folks who went to a little inconvenience have saved countless lives in the Pacific war zone and in North Africa."

And there is the case of a 19-year-old freshman at Dartmouth who left college to join the Marines: "Wounded in the spine, the boy was brought into the hospital bleeding to death. Both legs were paralyzed. An operation at that time would have proved fatal. But after three injections of blood plasma, doctors operated and the boy will walk again."

Windsor Sees Wounded

Phoenixville, Pa., June 9 (AP).—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor toured the Army's new Valley Forge general hospital today, visiting wounded American soldiers.

Life With Father

Typical Dad Well-Known To D. C. Boys

Although it took the boys in the family just one week to send in their letters describing their "ideal father," they finally came through in great style yesterday as the Father's Day Editor received half a dozen enthusiastic nominations, all from the male contingent.

Meanwhile, other contributors to The Post's quest for the typical dad in Washington and its vicinity have until Tuesday to mail in ttheir descriptions of the man of the house. All letters must be postmarked no later than midnight, June 15, and the winner will be announced two days before Father's Day, June 20.

Topping the pile of contributions yesterday was a printed note from Buster C., who has this to say about his own dad:

"The only uniform my daddy wears is a jacket. He's manager of a grocery store and if you don't think that is a headache in times like these you have another guess coming.

"And yet when he comes home he is quiet, kind and patient. He helps me with my victory garden, helps me put wheels on a box for a wagon, takes me on his knee and teaches me to read and many other things, which shows me he is the best Daddy in the world. He can cook good too and helps with the housework. And so you know my Dad is the best."

The rewards for The Post's choice of the metropolitan area's ideal Pop are varied but will not be announced until the last letter is in. But being a typical dad will have a long list of compensations for some fortunate man, whose identity will be revealed June 18.

Letters should be addressed to Father's Day Editor, The Washington Post, and should be mailed as soon as possible so that excerpts may be used to show the progress of the contest.

War Department Aide Faces Grand Jury in Draft Fraud

Joseph L. Mathews, $3200 War Department analyst, was at liberty under $1000 bail last night awaiting grand jury action on a charge of falsifying his Selective Service questionnaire.

He was seized Tuesday night by agents of the FBI and pleaded guilty when arraigned yesterday before United States Commisioner Needham C. Turnage.

The 30-year-old employe of the Quartermaster General's office, according to a Justice Department spokesman, reported to Local Board 9 in September, 1941, he was the sole support of his wife and she was an expectant mother.

In March, 1943, it was charged, he reported the birth of a child on January 5 and also was supporting his mother-in-law. Two months later he told an appeals board the child was born January 6 and that his wife was expecting another baby in October, the accusation asserted.

Investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation allegedly disclosed Mathews' wife was regularly employed since 1932, she had no children, and she had not lived with the defendant since 1932 and received no financial assistance from him.

The FBI said Mathews lived at 705 Eighteenth Street Northwest, and came to Washington from Greensboro, N. C. He also conducted a used-car business here, it was said.

Novel Hayride Shuttle Service Provided for Pop Concerts

Because no special buses can be provided for the Water Gate Sunset Symphonies this year, "hayrides" will be available from the nearest streetcar terminus to and from the concerts.

Ralph Lycett, manager, yesterday announced that one hour before and after each concert a shuttle service will operate between Nineteenth and C Streets Northwest and the Water Gate. Special streetcar service will be provided by the Capital Transit Co. to this terminus and five wagons, filled with straw, will be ready to carry all comers to the Water Gate.

In addition to the regular service on route 80, from Brookland and Mount Rainier, special cars will be operated on the Mount Pleasant line, the Fourteenth Street line, the Friendship Heights line and route 30.

Detailed information is available at Capital Transit, Michigan 6363.

If unfavorable weather conditions prevent the playing of any scheduled concert for two consecutive nights, the program will be postponed to the next clear evening, Lycett announced, thereby making it possible to give all scheduled performances.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Early Lead

Republican party leaders are very red-faced about the results of a poll conducted on the question—"Who should be the Republican presidential standard-bearer in 1944?"

The winner, so far, has proved to be the man most party chieftains least want as the G. O. P. presidential nominee—Wendell Willkie. Willkie grabbed off all honors, just as he did in the 1940 Republican convention in Philadelphia.

On the other hand, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, favorite of old-line Republicans, was a poor also-ran.

The poll was taken among G. O. P. county chairmen, Republican members of State Legislatures and delegates to the 1940 convention, chiefly in key Northern States.

Two questions were asked:

First—Who would make the best available candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944?

Thirty-six per cent answered: "Willkie." He ran far ahead of other choices, including Gov. Tom Dewey of New York, who got the second highest number of votes.

Second question was—who among the available Republican candidates would make the best President, from the standpoint of ability?

Willkie again led the field with 35 per cent of the votes. Ex-President Herbert Hoover was second in this balloting; Tom Dewey, third, and Governor Bricker, the man generally conceded to have the edge on other candidates, hobbled in fourth.

Churchill's Tip

One significant phase of Winston Churchill's conversations here has just leaked out. He volunteered some valuable advice on the make-up of the U. S. delegation to the peace conference.

Talking to a closed-door session of the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committee, he was reminded that if Woodrow Wilson had given more thought to the make-up of the U. S. delegation, his efforts to enroll the United States in a League of Nations might not have been such a failure.

Churchill at first tactfully sidestepped comment, explaining he didn't want to stick his nose in American affairs. However, he finally observed with a grin that he knew a little about politics himself and probably could offer one suggestion.

"What is it?" chorused several of the politicos.

"Appoint a delegation that is strictly bi-partisan," Churchill replied, "half Democrat and half Republican."

If the President named such a commission of outstanding leaders of both parties, the Prime Minister added, his chances of winning congressional approval of a treaty among the Allied powers would be greatly enchanced.

The idea evoked some smiles, but was generally applauded as a practical suggestion.

Farley, Roosevelt And Mrs. R.

VERY few people know it, but back in 1940 just after the democratic convention in Chicago nominated FDR for a third term, Mrs. Roosevelt had a friendly talk with Jim Farley to try to make peace between Jim and her husband. That talk, strange as it may seem, has had some interesting repercussions on an important congressional situation—the Congressman Cox investigation of the Federal Communications Commission.

Mrs. Roosevelt had always thought a great deal of Jim Farley, and he had respect for her. Their talk appeared to make some progress. One of the things Jim requested of Mrs. Roosevelt as a part of the reconciliation plan was that her son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., join the law firm of his old friend, Eugene L. Garey.

Mrs. Roosevelt, anxious to please Farley, agreed. So young Franklin joined the Garey law firm. This was a real concession, because Garey had represented the big Wall Street enemies of young Franklin's father, and the son of the President in any law firm means real business.

Friend of Viereck's

FURTHERMORE, Garey's partner, Raoul Desvernine, was a Liberty League opponent of the President's and had other interesting connections. He also knew George Sylvester Viereck, at one time convicted as a Nazi agent, and now up for a second trial on June 18.

Viereck was engaged in publishing various anti-British, pro-Nazi books through a publishing house run by Sigfried Hauck, and Hauck later informed the Justice Department that he had seen one of Desvernine's manuscripts, "War Is Bad Business," in Viereck's apartment. Viereck apparently was considering it for publication.

Desvernine, when subsequently queried about this by the Justice Department, did not deny that one of his speeches had been at Viereck's apartment, but said he knew the Nazi agent only slightly. He said Mrs. Desvernine had met the Viereks on a boat returning from Europe in 1938, and had been to his house on one or two occasions.

Sacrificed F. D. R. Jr.

Into this isolationist, anti-Roosevelt, Wall Street law firm young Franklin Roosevelt was thrown as a sacrifical lamb—all for the sake of Jim Farley.

But after one month Jim began knifing the President again and it became apparent that the agreement with Mrs. Roosevelt was off. Whereupon, young Franklin was pulled out of his uncongenial surroundings in the Garey-Desvernine law firm. That made Eugene Garey sore as blazes.

Now on Jim Farley's recommendations Garey has been appointed counsel of the congressional committee conjured up by Congressman Cox of Georgia to investigate the Federal Communications Commission. This appointment came after the Federal Communications Commission recommended criminal prosecution of Cox on a charge of accepting a $2500 lobbying fee.

At present bitterly anti-Roosevelt Garey and bitterly anti-FFC Cox are investigating the agency which had the temerity to move against Cox and which still retains some semblance of Roosevelt liberalism.

Million Helicopters in U. S., Prediction of Inventor

By Francis J. Kelly
Associated Press Staff Writer

Senators yesterday appreciatively studied a movie of a helicopter floating down to an easy landing 15 feet from the front door of a house and agreed it would be a mighty fine contraption to campaign in.

"Why, you wouldn't even have to walk through a barnyard to call on a farmer constituent," marveled one.

The lawmakers had gathered in a big caucus room as guests of the Naval Affairs Committee to hear Igor Sikorsky, the helicopter man, explain the principles and capabilities of his craft, which flies backward, sideways and forward with equal facility, and takes off vertically.

When someone asked how much the machine cost and how long it would take to learn to fly it, the Russian-born inventor emphasized that all development work and production now are centered on military uses. After the war, he said, a helicopter ought to sell for about the price of a medium sized car, and buyers could learn to fly in their own back yards.

"Within a decade after the end of the war," Sikorsky said, "I believe there will be several hundred thousand helicopters in operation—possibly a million."

Present models of the ship, Sikorsky said, will travel 80 miles an hour and carry a payload of 600 pounds. Within a year he expects to be able to double the payload and step up the speed to 100 miles. He stressed, however, that the helicopter hardly can be expected to rival the conventional plane's speed, but will find its usefulness in short trips to and from places where planes cannot land.

Summer School, Recreational Events to Begin

As the majority of District school children look forward to putting aside pencils and books in favor of summer vacation on June 23, registration for those requiring summer school training, which will begin July 1, is now open.

Meanwhile, to fill the hours of those who do not need refresher or advanced study, D. C. Recreation Department officials are this week preparing a city-wide program, scheduled to open June 25. The list of playgrounds to be opened this summer is up for approval, and hours, personnel and locations will be released within a few days. Also under Recreation Department auspices will be day camping activities, street showers and swimming.

Vacationing youngsters may also take advantage of the junior clubs of the Children's Museum of Washington, which will open summer sessions on June 29, with daily hours of 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. Registration will be held during the week of June 21 for classes including music, creative dramatics and eurhythmics.

Prospective registration figures for summer school classes were not available, and E. J. Lockwood, director of evening and summer schools, yesterday could make no estimate on a possible increase or decrease over past years. He suggested the lure of ready summer jobs would probably be counteracted by the desire of many students to complete their schooling at an advanced date.

Average registrations, he said, were 1800-2000 for high school students, 800-1000 for junior high schools and 100 in each of the elementary schools.

For the first time, accelerated summer sessions will be conducted at Wilson and Minor Teachers Colleges, which will also reopen July 1. Although no definite plans have been made, classes will probably be held at Abbot ocational School in auto mechanics, electricity, and radio and printing, and at Chamberlain Vocational School, in multolithing.

The senior high summer school will again be held at Central High School, while junior high school students may attend Macfarland or Stuart.

Sessions will be held through August 5 in the following elementary school buildings: Addison, Blair, Buchanan, Burroughs, Emery, Fairbrother, Janney, Ketcham, Lafayette, Park View, Thomson, Wallach, Webb and West. Classes will also be at the Webster Americanization School, for adults.

Attu Resistance Ends in Suicide

American hill were ready.

Their fire swept through the yelling Japanese, who broke, ran, gathered in gullies and there in grisly basses committed suicide with grenades. Their bodies lie in piles tonight, riddled by American fire and torn by their own grenades. Such few as still have hands clutched the almost pitiful symbols they trusted for luck—little charms, Buddhist prayers on small bits of paper, even pictures of their families.

The entire attack surprised the American troops yesterday because of its daring and obvious hopelessness. The attackers were the few remaining regular infantrymen, medics hurriedly armed, naval personnel with pistols or with captured American rifles or with grenades. A few even had nothing but bayonets tied on long sticks.

In spite of conclusive developments, however, the American forces were moving cautiously to prevent any possibility of a Japanese trick.

Typical of the murderous fire of the Americans was a member of the famous Alaskan Scouts. The scout lies dead in a fox hole, his rifle still in his fingers. The bullet that killed him came from behind. The bodies of a dozen Japs lie in a half circle in front of the scout. Each had been neatly shot. A little pile of cartridge cases lies under the scout's body.

3 D. C. Area Girls Wed After Naval Academy Exercises

With the conclusion of graduation exercises for the largest class in the history of the United States Naval Academy, wedding bells began pealing early yesterday afternoon at Annapolis, Md., for newly commissioned ensigns.

Three of the brides in services in St. Andrew's Chapel at the academy were from Washington, D. C., and surrounding areas. Miss Sallie Barbara Winter of Washington became the bride of Walter John Dixon, jr., of Mitchell, S. Dak. Miss Mary Margaret Nichols of Washington became the bride of Ejnar N. C. Thompson of Portales, N. Mex. and Miss Betty M. Roberts of Alexandria, Va., became the bride of William T. Wootton of Bowie, Md.

going to be enforced and the peace kept."

"There is no question of racial discrimination involved," Bowron added. "We have here unfortunately a bad situation as the result of the formation and activities of youthful gangs, the members of which, probably to the extent of 98 per cent or more, were born right here in Los Angeles.

Latest victim injured in the clashes involving youthful wearers of zoot suits was Police Officer C. D. Medley, 35.

He declared he stopped his patrol car early today to examine a zoot-clad youth lying in a street. A car was parked about 200 feet away, and in it were several other youths.

"The decoy broke away and ran across the street," he related. "The car came straight at me. I tried to dodge but the car swerved after me, knocking me down."

Medley was taken to a hospital with back and other injuries.

Gangs Have Clashed for Years

Only the outlandish apparel and the fact that the clashes involve soldiers and sailors are new, juvenile authorities said.

East side neighborhood gangs for years have clashed with tire irons, sand-filled hose and other weapons, a police juvenile officer declared, when groups from one neighborhood would try to crash a party in another or go out with girls from another district.

Youthful hoodlums, including zooters, have been involved in rape, robbery, burglary, mayhem and murder, and other charges.

The servicemen, say authorities, explain their members have been set upon by zooters; the latter claim a batch of sailors started it, and that men in uniform have called them uncomplimentary names.

The latest outbreaks had spread to outlying sections following assignment of extra police, special officers, shore patrolmen and military police to the downtown area. Los Angeles has been declared out of bounds for naval personnel, and the Army has made the Main Street area a restricted section.

A crowd of sailors was dispersed after mauling and ripping off zoot suits of several youths last night in the downtown theatrical section and "pike" amusement zone of Long Beach.

War Sidelights

Liferaft Light Is Visible For 70 Miles

Bloomfield, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Details of a tiny spotlight scarcely larger than a walnut but powerful enough to have a theoretical range of 70 miles were disclosed today by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.'s lamp divisison.

Ralph R. Brady, official at the lamp plant, said the lamps are packed in the rubber life rafts "with which all ocean-flying aircraft are now equipped." Rafts are also being radio-equipped and Brady said fliers adrift might call for help over a distance of about 400 miles, then lead rescue ships the last few miles by using the light.

The 6-watt lamps operate from a small hand-cranked generator included in the radio equipment, he said. With a 1500 candlepower beam, the lights could burn 10 nights and be visible many miles.

"The lights fit on a band around the head, like a miner's cap, so the man can have both hands free to hold on in rough weather," he said.

'No Room' for U. S.

By the Associated Press

Tadahiko Okada, speaker of the Japanese House of Representatives, told a mass meeting in Tokyo today that Japan must utterly destroy the United States and Britain or be destroyed herself, the Tokyo radio reported in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

"There is absolutely no room for the coexistence of Japan on the one side and Britain and the United States on the other," he declared.

Hetzel Named WMC Director For D. C. Area

Fred Z. Hetzel, assistant Employment Service representative of the District area, has been named acting director of the WMC in this area it was announced yesterday by Arthur L. Shoenthal, acting director of the regional office.

Hetzel succeeds Ramy B. Deschner, who left Washington Sunday for St. Louis, Mo., for three weeks to attend to personal business and family affairs, according to Shoenthal.

Previous to his being placed as acting WMC director, Hetzel had served as a field director in Washington since last October. He came to the Capital from the Maryland State employment office in Baltimore. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland.

Deschner, who came to Washington in January, until three weeks ago, had been doing double duty in the United States Employment Office and as acting director of the area WMC.

In private life he was in the steel business in St. Louis.

Veterans Hear Mrs. Roosevelt, Post Newsman

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, speaking before 300 members of Post 3 of Regular Veterans last night at Soldiers Home, described the "tremendous feeling of gratitude and unity" which the English people, with war on their doorstep, feel for Americans who send them mobile canteens, medical supplies, food and clothes.

The First Lady also showed motion pictures made during her trip to Great Britain last fall and presented to her by the British after her return to this country, emphasizing the role played by women in the war and the havoc wrought in London by bombings in 1940.

Mrs. Roosevelt, first representative from the White House to visit Soldiers Home since Abraham Lincoln went there in 1864, shared the program with Edward T. Folliard, political writer for The Washington Post, who told veterans of other wars how news is gathered and distributed in this war.

"Under our system of government, we go on the theory that all power arises from the people," Folliard said. "If the people are to act wisely, they must have correct and unvarnished information. That is what the American press is trying to give them today, in the most critical period in our history. To our newspapers, it is simply a job to be done—the greatest story that they have ever tackled."

Folliard, whose assignment is to cover the White House, pointed out that two of the biggest stories of the war were first announced at this "No. 1. GHQ of the Allies"—the attack on Pearl Harbor and the American landings in French North Africa.

"I think that no people are so well posted on the war today as are the American people—and that, of course, is as it should be," Folliard said. "The enemy's system is diametrically opposed to ours. In Germany, in Italy and in Japan, power is derived not from the bottom, but from the top. It is a case of the Fuehrer or the Duce knows best.

"I have always felt that the enemy's method of handling news and propaganda was very weak. Hitler is Germany's No. 1 propagandist, yet every speech he makes is eagerly printed by American editors. One reason is that it is news, another is that every time Hitler opens his mouth, he gives our people a better idea of what kind of an enemy we are up against.

"History will, of course, show that our own system of a free press was one of the most powerful weapons in our armory."

Probe of Tawes' Long Motor Trip Reopened by OPA

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 9.—The State Office of Price Administration today ordered the reopening of an investigation into all phases of the trip to Georgia of State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and summoned him to appear before a three-man panel on Monday.

State OPA Director Leo H. McCormick said the hearing would deal with possible misuse of C ration coupons as well as with a pleasure driving charge, on which Tawes had previously been exonerated by the Somerset County War Price and Ration Board.

The OPA action apparently superseded the action of the local board at Crisfield, which after deliberating only 12 minutes found that Tawes had not violated the pleasure driving ban in making a trip in a State-owned auto to Georgia to attend his son's wedding.

Meanwhile, Rives Matthews, Princess Anne publisher and editor, who originally brought the charges against Tawes, said in a statement that his arrest on a warrant charging criminal libel was "my contribution to the war effort."

Matthews was arrested yesterday and charged with criminal libel of Tawes in the Somerset News issue of June 3. He waived preliminary hearing and was released under $2500 bond.

Former D. C. Man Dies in Air Crash

Flight Officer Thomas J. Jones, 28, who was employed at the Federal Housing Administration 1935 until 1940, was one of the 20 men killed in a plane crash at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Jones, who's last Washington address was 2616 Garfield Street Northwest, attended National University. He met his wife here while she was employed in the War Department, and they were married at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Bethesda. He was a native of Greenville, N. C., and son of the Rev. Justice S. Jones. His wife is living in Brighton, Mass.

Diplomas were presented to 25 graduates at commencement exercises last night at Sidwell Friends School, 3901 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest. Bliss Forbush, headmaster-elect of the Baltimore Friends School, gave the principal address.

Edwin Cornell Zavitz, headmaster of the school, presided. The musical program was under the direction of Sade G. Styron, faculty music supervisor. Gilbert L. Hall, vice chairman of the board of trustees, presented the diplomas.

10% Butter Price Rollback Announced by District OPA

New "roll-back" price ceilings on butter were announced yesterday by the District Office of Price Administration.

The 10 per cent roll-back on butter prices is designed to keep the Nation's food from approaching the inflation stage. The Government is paying 5 cents a pound subsidy for all butter manufactured after June 1. Average savings for the housewife will be 5 cents a pound.

Prices of butter will be according to the classification of stores. The four classes of stores and butter prices follow:

Class 1—Stores doing an annual volume of business of $50,000 or less.
Class 2—Stores doing an annual volume of business from $50,000 to $250,000.
Class 3—Chain stores with an annual volume of business under $250,000.
Class 4—Chain or independents doing an annual volume of business of over $250,000 or more.

Postlude

Last of Shapiro Recitals Devoted to Living Composers

By Ray C. B. Brown

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents Maxim Shapiro in the last six piano recitals on Wednesday night in Coolidge Auditorium. Program: L'Album de Madame Bovary (Milhaud), A Manha da Pierrete and Le Polichinelle (Villa-Lobos), Sonata No. 3, Op. 14 (Prokofiev), Barcarola and Saltarello (Rieti), Valse Ignoble (Jones), Two Dances in Bulgarian Rhythm (Bartok), Etude in E minor, Op. 7, No. 3 and Russian Dance (Stravinski), Improvisation, Op. 31, No. 1; Fairy Tales in E minor and B minor (Medtner).

Concluding his series of six historical piano recitals last evening in Coolidge Auditorium, Maxim Shapiro devoted his program to music by eight living composers who are in the order of their age: Nikolai Medtner, Bela Bartok, Heitor Villa Lobos, Igor Stravinski, Sergei Prokofiev, Darius Milhaud, Vittorio Rieti and Charles Jones. For those who enjoy hearing novelties this was the most interesting recital of the series, but the falling-off of attendance indicated that many concert-goers like only what they already know—and not necessarily all of that. There were certainly only two pieces on the program that have been played sufficiently to be familiar; "Le Polichinelle" by Villa-Lobos and Stravinski's." Russian dance from "Petrushka."

Milhaud's "L'Album de Madame Bovary" is psychologically a very clever study in musical portraiture. The style is deliberately bourgeois and sentimental with just enough harmonic dissonance to suggest irony, and Flaubert would doubtless have approved the faint mockery. There are 15 short pieces in the album, the first and last being built on a two-note theme that makes the piano unmistakably say "Emma." Period atmosphere is maintained by a Victorian kind of melody, and the suite has a certain analogy to Schumann's "Carnaval," as one can detect in the "Tristesse" and "Soupir" numbers, and in "Autographe," which is almost as curt as the "Sphynxes."

It cannot be said that justice was done to Villa-Lobos in the selection of two pieces which do not represent his characteristic idiom. He is as Brazilian a composer as Donizetti is Italian, and one would like to have heard his "Rudepoema" or some other work based on native themes. He has composed more than 300 piano pieces, and the two offered are not among the best of them.

Prokofiev has written more rewarding music for the piano than his second sonata which is uninteresting either from the intellectual or the emotional angles. One wonders why Rieti was the representative of Italy, since his "Sei Pezzi Breve," from which the "Barcarola" and "Saltarello" were taken, are mere bagatelles from the pen of a composer more effective in his piano concerti and other orchestral works. They sound like attempts to write in the dry and satirical manner of his teacher, Alfredo Casella.

Bartok's two dances in Bulgarian rhythm come from his recently published "Mikrokosmos," a collection of 153 teaching pieces ranging from the simple to the complex. The rhythmic problems in the two dances are intriguing, but Mr. Shapiro used the pedal so injudiciously as to disguise Bartok's characteristic traits of percussive brittleness and strictly diatonic harmony.

Stravinski's E minor Etude is an early work somewhat indebted to Chopin for melodic line, and his Russian dance, which is so exciting in its orchestral dress, sounds merely tawdry on the piano. As for Medtner, there seems to be a tendency among pianists to play only his small pieces, and to neglect his sonatas which contain more food for thought. The "Improvisation" from Opus 31 and the "Fairy Tales" in E minor and B minor are among the pieces which bear out the "Russian Brahms" comparison, which is not entirely fair to his individual strain of poesy.

Not knowing the nationality of Charles Jones, I cannot say that Mr. Shapiro entirely ignored American composers for the piano. But if that composer is a native of the United States his "Valse Ignoble" has nothing autocthonous about it, being an exercise in dissonance with a decided air of European pseudo-sophistication.

Former District Newspaperman Missing in Action

Ensign Claude Jackson Gasque, jr., former Post copy boy and reporter for the Daily News, was reported missing in action by the Navy Department following the sinking of the heavy cruiser Quincy off the Solomon Islands, August 9, 1942, The Post learned yesterday.

Ensign Gasque, 28, attended The Citadel and Presbyterian College in Clinton, S. C., before receiving his master's degree in journalism at Columbia University.

He came to The Post as a copy boy and remained six months, later serving as a reporter on the News. His Washington address was 1627 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. In 1941 he was a reporter on the Fayetteville (N. C.) Observer.

Many Attend Cunningham Funeral Rites

Hundreds of friends of J. Maxson Cunningham attended his funeral services at the S. H. Hines funeral home yesterday. Dr. John C. Palmer, pastor of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, officiated. Interment was in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers were Col. A. F. Cunningham, his brother; Lewis E. Wood, president of the Gridiron Club; Victor Howell, executive of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Karl V. Eiker, president of the Byron S. Adams Printing Co.; Peter Becker, jr., president of the Standard Press, Inc., and Harry G. Pitt, insurance executive.

Mr. Cunningham, who lived at 208 East Thornapple Street, Chevy Chase, Md., was president of the Lanham Engraving Co. and a native of the District. He had lived in Chevy Chase for 19 years. He was vice president of the International Photo Engravers Association, president of the Washington Photo Engravers Association, a member of Congress Masonic Lodge, the Gridiron Club, the Washington Board of Trade and the Touchdown Club.

Mr. Cunningham was killed Sunday when his car crashed into a tree.

Sigma Tau Installs

The George Washington University Chapter of Sigma Tau, national honorary engineering fraternity, last night installed J. W. Ballard as president. Other new officers included: L. E. Tarbell, vice president; J. E. Doane, recording secretary; T. H. Heine, corresponding secretary; H. A. Balmer, treasurer, and E. Schreiner, historian.

A. J. Fallon Dies; Rites Saturday

Andrew J. Fallon, former president of the International Plate Printers, Die Stampers and Engravers Union, A. F. of L., for 15 years, and foreman of th Bureau of Engraving and Printing plate printing section, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 409 Varnum Street Northwest. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Fallon had worked at the bureau for 41 years and was widely known for his union activity. He was one of the founders of the Social Oyster Club, of which he was president for many years and its treasurer when he died. He also was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Gabriel's Church.

Mr. Fallon came here from New York City to take a position with the bureau.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Catherine Fallon; three daughters, Mrs. Thomas A. McNamara, Mrs. Sidney B. Collins and Miss Mildred M. Fallon; two sons, Joseph A. Fallon and Edwin F. Fallon; six grandchildren, all of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas A. Farley, who lives in New York City.

Funeral services will be held at his home at 8:30 a. m. Saturday. Requiem mass will follow at 9 a. m. at St. Gabriel's Church, Grant Circle. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Morinigo, President of Paraguay, Arrives; Is Greeted by Roosevelt at White House

President Higinio Morinigo of Paraguay arrived at the White House yesterday to be the guest of President Roosevelt.

He was greeted with full military honors on the south lawn of the White House and then entered the mansion, where President Roosevelt extended a welcoming hand in a diplomatic reception room. Members of the cabinet were with Mr. Roosevelt.

The visiting chief executive reached Washington by plane and drove to the White House immediately. Secretary Hull met him as he left the plane and accompanied him to the Executive Mansion.

While a guard of honor consisting of a company each of soldiers, sailors and marines, stood at "present arms," the Army band played the Paraguayan and American National anthems.

A State dinner was planned in honor of President Morinigo at the White House last night, after which the presidents of the two American republics were to have a conference. Today the visitor will move to the Blair house, reserved for visiting dignitaries, and later he will tour various American war manufacturing centers.

The President's party arrived at National Airport in an Army plane at 4:35 p. m. (E. W. T.). It is the visiting President's first visit to the United States.

His son, Higinio, jr., came here in 1941 at the invitation of Mr. Roosevelt and went to Warm Springs, Ga., for treatment of infantile paralysis. He was brought here by his mother.

President Morinigo will go to the Capitol today, after which he will be the honor guest at a special meeting of the Board of Governors of the Pan-American Union.

26,000 New Forms Filed for Rations

As the midnight deadline tonight neared for the mailing of Ration Book No. 3 applications, the local registration center yesterday received 26,000 forms, largest increase since application became available late last month.

These additions mean that 231,771 of the District's estimated 350,000 to 400,000 applicants have sent in their forms, leaving a formidable portion that must mail today or face "great delay" in receiving their books, which will go into use early in September, District OPA said.

It was pointed out errors made cannot be corrected by letters or telephone calls. If the books are not received by July 25, an OPA spokesman said, the applicant should write for an explanation.

Servicemen, who are not eligible to apply for Ration Book 3, will be taken care of later, the spokesman added, pointing out OPA switchboard has been bombarded with calls demanding to know the fate of men in the armed forces who dine at home.

John J. Connolly Quits as Manager Of Hotel Hamilton

After an association of nearly 16 years with the Hamilton Hotel, three spent as manager, John J. Connolly resigned yesterday in preparation for a trip West with Mrs. Connolly and his 6-year-old son, Johnny.

Coming here from Butte, Mont., in 1926, Connolly was at the desk of the Annapolis Hotel for a short time, soon joining the staff of the Hamilton for what he described as "a happy and satisfying relationship."

A resident of the hotel during his entire connection, Connolly is a member of the board of directors of the Washington Hotel Association, as well as the Washington Board of Trade.

His plans are still incomplete, he said, making it impossible for him to know whether he will return to Washington.

D.C. Accepts $76,612 Fund for Venereal Center

Correction of the venereal disease problem in Washington came on estep nearer yesterday when the Commissioners accepted a $76,612 Federal Works Agency offer for operating funds for a veneral disease center at Gallinger Hospital.

More progress toward the establishment of the center also was promised in the opening this week of the new maternity ward at Gallinger, which will free the old maternity ward for eye, ear, nose and throat patients, and permit the use of the latter ward for housing at least 50 venereal cases. Fifty more will be accommodated in a new brick wing to be added to the hospital.

The $76,612 grant was less than the District's original request, as the FWA turned down a $9120 item for hiring five graduate nurses. However, FWA added $3000 for a placement officer, to obtain employment for discharged patients, and $2800 for transporting such persons, if necessary, to places where work could be obtained.

The $76,612 allotment included $7200 for salaries, $33,600 for auxiliary services, $33,012 for maintenance and $2800 for transportation, all for the period July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944.

Invasion Watch

Two questions are uppermost in men's thoughts these days. They are (1) will there be an Allied offensive this summer and (2) where? In his notable speech in the House of Commons Tuesday Churchill replied with a resounding affirmative to the first and surrounded the second with a cloud of confusion. "It is evident," he said, "that amphibious operations of a peculiar complexity and hazard on a large scale are approaching." Since Churchill is not given to using words lightly, the assumption is that this tantalizing passage does really describe what is about to take place. But it gives away no military secrets. It merely opens even wider the gates of conjecture and thus should add to the state of jitters in which our enemies find themselves.

The Axis is fully aware that an invasion of the Mediterranean islands is now possible and may soon take place. Whether it will be accompanied—or followed—by an invasion of Norway or France or the Low Countries or the Balkans is something which, for obvious reasons, the Allied leaders are not saying. But since every one of these plans or a combination of them is a possibility that must be reckoned with, the Nazis and their allies find themselves on the horns of a dilemma. To prepare against all these possibilities might involve a fatal dispersion of their forces. To pick out this or that area as the most likely place where an Allied invasion is going to take place and to keep on hand a large force with which to repel such an invasion might mean leaving the actual invasion points uncovered.

What makes the matter worse from the Axis point of view is that they can no longer be under any illusions as to the offensive power of the Allies. They got a bitter taste of it in Tunisia and in Russia. And now their efforts to keep Britain and America at arm's length by intensified U-boat warfare appear to be meeting with failure as more U-boats are sunk than are being built and very many more Allied merchant vessels are being built than are being sunk. In addition, Allied air power is steadily increasing and daily becomes more deadly. In the circumstances it is hardly surprising that Churchill's latest speech was by all odds his most confident.

For FSA

The Senate seems likely to give the Farm Security Administration a reprieve from the death sentence passed upon it by its enemies in the House. This is good news for the little men of American agriculture. It is to this agency that they look for the Federal assistance necessary to increase their production and harness it to the war effort. Yet even the Senate has so whittled down the funds and functions of FSA as to imperil its effectiveness.

A Budget Bureau request for 37 million dollars for FSA administrative expenses was cut by a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to 29 million dollars. One wonders how this sum was arrived at and whether it is not merely an arbitrary reduction offered as a sop to those who wished to destroy the agency altogether. FSA has on its books at the present time about a billion dollars' worth of loans and other assets which cannot be properly serviced with an attenuated staff. The role which it ought to play in the production program is tremendous in scope and in importance. If it approaches this task with inadequate means, it will be doomed to the failure which its critics desire.

There is reason for disappointment, too, in the Senate's ban on loans to farm cooperatives. More than ever before, farmers now need to pool their scanty resources. Small farm units can afford the purchase of tractors or other expensive farm machinery only by joining with their neighbors. And in view of the shortage of farm machinery, the practice seems altogether desirable. Cooperative marketing is also a necessary device for the family farms. The stricture against this form of association seems reflective only of a prejudice against the cooperative principle.

It is a misunderstanding of FSA's function to expect the agency to operate in all instances profitably along established banking lines. Its credit policies must be determined by social needs. Its loans must be made at lower rates of interest and on a much more liberal basis than those of private banking institutions. The test of FSA will not lie so much in the extent to which it avoids defaults as in the extent to which it stimulates and enhances farm production. Attacks launched at FSA by the House committee investigating it, on the ground that some of its investments have not paid dividends, seem sheer obscurantism.

When the Agriculture appropriation bill goes to conference between the two branches of Congress, it is to be hoped that no further compromises will be made in regard to FSA. The Senate's action already includes considerable concessions to the House. Any additional cuts would handicap the agency beyond the hope of successful operation. It deserves a fair chance to demonstrate its worth.

Fiscal Sense

It is a contribution to realism that President Roosevelt at last has espoused a program for compulsory savings. Even the inexpert in fiscal matters can see that the forces of inflation already are undermining the American economy. Figures of the savings which are shored up back of our price controls and which at any time might sweep over them are truly staggering. They arise from full employment in nonconsumer industry at war-swollen wages. Savings will be about 40 billion dollars this year, and as Leon Henderson recently reminded us, this is not much lower than the total disposable income in either 1932 or 1933. It is the duty of our fiscal authorities to impound this hot money either by more taxation or compulsory savings, preferably both. If Administration and Congress do not take drastic measures, the war at home will be lost, and our returning soldiers will have ample warrant for the accusation that we were untrue to our trust while they were away fighting. We cannot allow them to come back to savings expressed in ruined dollars.

It is the seriousness of the situation that has impelled the President to overrule his own Secretary of the Treasury, who has hitherto been hostile to Mr. Roosevelt's proposal. Why Mr. Morgenthau has opposed compulsory savings is anybody's guess. To be sure, the voluntary system of buying war bonds is the American way, but so is the free price system, liberty to strike, and a hundred and one other things we have decided to forswear for the duration. Our money requires discipline as well as our manpower. It is not being disciplined by the voluntary system, as is shown by the failure of the second war loan to make more than the slightest dent upon the current accumulation of savings. The only effect of the April drive was to prevent any substantial increase in savings during that month. It did not even mop up the amount that the American people set aside from that month's income.

Yet the Treasury has been hailing the drive in the language of high-powered salesmen. An example occurs in Mr. Morgenthau's report to the American people on The Story of America's Greatest War Loan. He starts out by saying that "during the three weeks between April 12-May 1 the American people invested $18,500,000,000 in the future of their free country." How the OWI passed this blurb defies understanding. Certainly there is none of the "strategy of truth" in this and other statements emanating from the Treasury which was intended to mark Government handouts. Much of the money which "the American people invested" was money created by the banks. This added to instead of subtracting from our money inflation. It was on the basis of such statements that the President put himself on extravagant record about the second war loan. He said the large oversubscription would push farther off the date for the third war loan drive.

Treasury statements which colored the President's conclusion are not only misleading; they are dangerous. They lulled both Congress and people into thinking that the menace of inflation had been removed. Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee expressed a general reaction. He said that as a result of the success of the second war loan, the pressure for new taxation had been removed. Such a statement could come only from one who had read the Treasury's assertions without studying the facts. Evidently President Roosevelt's revision of judgment on the necessity of compulsory savings is the fruit of study on the extent of our inflation. He coupled the suggestion with the proposal for a new tax bill, possibly heavier excise levies on cigarettes, tobacco and whisky. All that remains is that the President should formulate a plan for submission to Congress before the summer recess.

Hopes In Argentina

When Gen. Pedro Ramirez stated, on being sworn in as President of Argentina, that "the people will not be deceived in their hopes," his remark was greeted with deafening cheers. For it seemed to confirm the belief almost universally accepted in Argentina that the overthrow of the Castillo regime meant a new deal in Argentine foreign policy, particularly a break with the Axis. Subsequent developments, however, have tended to belie that optimistic conclusion. The first cabinet that was named by the junta after Castillo's resignation was made up almost entirely of dyed-in-the-wool reactionaries, including individuals who had never disguised their pro-Axis orientation.

The present cabinet is no better. It suggests that the new government of Argentina, a land where democratic sentiments are strong, will be an out-and-out military dictatorship. And while President Ramirez has announced that his regime is pledged to a policy of "loyal cooperation with nations of the Americas in conformance with existing pacts," there is no assurance that this will mean anything more than similar phrases mouthed by former President Castillo and former Foreign Minister Ruiz Guinazu. Indeed, President Ramirez has stated that "for the present" Argentina will continue her policy of neutrality. Taken together these contradictory remarks suggest that he and his colleagues may be planning to seek a deal with the United States and the United Nations. It looks as if they wanted to exchange a break in relations with the Axis for lend-lease supplies to Argentina.

If that is his policy, it is too clever by half. It would certainly be to our interests to have Argentina deprive our enemies of their last remaining base of operations in this hemisphere. But it is even more to Argentina's interest to do so, particularly since she is morally and legally pledged to such a course by the Rio agreement, which was specially tailored to a pattern of her choosing. Certainly it would be a betrayal of our democratic professions, a betrayal, no less, of the Argentine people—the great majority of whom are on our side—to do anything to help strengthen and consolidate a military dictatorship in Argentina. In fact, the question may well be asked whether, if the Ramirez regime insists on continuing the neutrality policy, we should recognize it at all.

Mad Hatter

Well, gentlemen, the scandal is out at last; the mystery has been solved, the guilty one has made a full and voluntary confession. And the truth, gentlemen, is more terrible than anything we had, even in our most despairing moments, dared to imagine!

You will recall the wave of anxiety and consternation that swept over our sex in the years 1937 and 1938. Those were the years of the Anschluss and of Munich. They were also the years when the ladies—God help 'em!—began appearing in hats that were like nothing else ever seen on land or sea. You will recall how since then the hats have got progressively worse until both sexes now go about in dark-lensed spectacles so as to shield their eyes from such strange and fearful sights.

Many ingenious theories have been woven to account for this curious fashion. Some said it was merely symptomatic of the general insanity and degeneracy of the times. Some said it was the work of a band of misogynists determined to prevent any more men from falling in love. Some saw in it the hand of diabolical Fifth Columnists anxious to diminish the birthrate by making the sexes mutually repulsive. But, as we said, the truth is even worse.

In a signed confession sent to the editors of The Saturday Review of Literature, one Gustave Lamartine, formerly head of the Paris Academy of Design, admits that he is the Dr. Frankenstein who begat all these monstrosities. He says, moreover, that he did it not out of malice but on a wager.

. . . I made the statement at the international conference in Paris (in 1934) of millinery artists and designers that fashion is not intrinsic but dependent upon psychology and public relations technique. Following my talk, I was challenged privately by Max Gerhardt, the famous Austrian designer. He claimed that it would be impossible to popularize any style that did not have real intrinsic beauty and appeal . . . I was willing to wager that I myself could design a preposterous head covering for women and that it would be quickly taken up and accepted by women all over the world. . . . For the next week I worked on a fantastically shaped and decorated hat. It was not even a head covering, since it was almost flat and had to be pinned to the head. Onto this grotesque creation, I affixed some unrelated feathers and flowers . . . As I anticipated, the leading milliners of Paris, London and New York enthusiastically hailed the new creation, proceeding to announce to the women of the world the birth of a new style. Within a year, I, myself, designed no fewer than 84 separate variants of this unique headcovering, each one more monstrous than the next. Each design, however, had this in common with the others: there was a deviation from all the known canons of artistic harmony . . .

In short, M. Lamartine won his bet, which was duly paid. Then he decided the joke had gone far enough. He went, he says, to two of his colleagues of the academy with a plan for rectifying the evil. But they, it seems, were horrified by his revelation, and could only think of protecting the good name of the academy by keeping it secret. Now, of course, M. Lamartine is devoured by remorse as he watches the irresistible momentum of the movement he started. A French patriot, he sees the innumerable miles of wire, elastic and lace, the millions of pins, the tons of glue, etc., all badly needed for lend-lease materials, consumed by the hysterical milliners. Truly, it is a fearful thing to have on one's conscience, and, shocked as we are by M. Lamartine's confession, we cannot but pity him from the bottom of our hearts.

KITES

Mark, in these times, unmindful that the blue
Above them echoes all the day and night
With strident silver birds in arrowed flight,
How youngsters gather as we used to do
Around some one most envied lad in view:
A boy who pays out cord to guide his kite.
They contemplate the wind, they cry delight,
No whit less ardent now than once were you.

That paper, wood and cotton ride the skies
Remains more breathless fact than iron wings;
The miracle of thought by which man flies
Owns far less awe than messages on strings.
Time cannot change the children: this, I hold,
Repays our silent grief of growing old.

JOHN GALLINARI WHIDDING.

America At War

By Selden Menefee

New York's War

THE WAR has worked great changes in the face of New York City. A visitor who has not been there since Pearl Harbor finds it a weird experience to come into the Big Town by night. The fairyland of blazing lights is gone; the dimout makes it impossible to see the city as you approach it unless the moon is bright.

Pennsylvania Station's glass-enclosed midway is dark. The traffic lights outside peek through narrow slits. Traffic is thin and moves slowly—a welcome novelty to New York pedestrians. Gone are the garish advertising displays of Times Square, although the sidewalks seem as jammed with theatergoers as ever.

It is presumptuous for an outsider to try to get beneath the surface of the biggest city in the world in a few days' visit. So I did the next best thing—consulted social scientists and public opinion experts who have their fingers on the pulse of New York's wartime attitudes.

Authorities

The authorities I talked to were generally agreed on these points:

1. A great majority of New Yorkers support Roosevelt and his war Administration. Griping is at a minimum, and not of a subversive sort.

2. Because of New York's nearness to Europe as a seaport, and because more than three-fourths of all New Yorkers are foreign-born or have at least one parent born abroad, consciousness of the war is much higher there than in most large American cities.

3. There is a definite gradation in war spirit, with the most intense feeling among the refugees from and relatives of people in Axis-occupied Europe, and the least interest among those of Irish derivation.

Characteristically, the immigrant groups of the lower East Side are most active in scrap drives and conservation programs. They have many sons in the war, they are the only New Yorkers who really know their neighbors, and they are close enough to Europe to realize the meaning of the Nazi invasion.

"Down in the tenement districts, they flatten their tin cans religiously. Uptown they toss 'em out as is. The farther people get from the kitchen the less attention they pay to such matters," one public opinion field worker told me.

Close to a third of New York's seven million people are of Jewish background; and their children make up at least three-fourths of the students in New York's City Colleges. The students are completely wrapped up in the war, according to their teachers. The girls wear all the service insignia they are able to collect, and correspond enthusiastically with their boy friends in the services. The students participate in every war program open to them, write letters to their Congressmen about our failure to admit European refugees, and become inordinately upset over discrimination against Negroes at home.

The Catholics, who make up a third of the city's people, generally remain much more aloof. The 410,000 Italian-born New Yorkers, however, seem more enthusiastic about the war than their Irish brethren whose families have been over here much longer. It is among the Irish not the Italians, that anti-Negro, anti-Russian and anti-Jewish sentiment flourishes.

Christian Front

The Brooklyn Irish spawned the Christian Front, whose leaders went on trial before the war on charges of sedition. Anti-Semitism did not diminish sharply when we entered the war; since Pearl Harbor no less than 17 Brooklyn synagogues have been desecrated in one way or another, some of them many times. The Brooklyn Tablet and the Gaelic-American, inspired by Fathers Coughlin and Curran, have consistently attacked our officials and our Allies.

There are some members of every group, of course, who are not alive to the meaning of the war. They are so bound up in the competition for good jobs, apartments and subway seats that they are apt to forget the larger issues. But these are a minority among New Yorkers.

One reason for New York's concern with the war is the prevalent apprehension over air raids. Most people believe that it is just a matter of time before the Nazis try a token bombing of this country, and they see their city as the logical target. On Easter Sunday, when the streets were crowded, tens of thousands confidently expected a raid.

This feeling partly accounts for the excellent organization and spirit of the Civilian Defense organization in New York. OCD there has received some criticism by labor organizations, which charge that it is dominated by socialites; some have grumbled about the dimout; and people generally thought that Mayor LaGuardia's order to dim out the subways was going a bit too far. But cooperation in the nightly dimout and in the frequent blackouts is complete.

"Light Of Victory"

By Barnet Nover

On The Eve Of Great Events

WINSTON CHURCHILL has never been lacking in confidence. Even in those dark days of June, 1940, when France fell and Britain faced invasion, he never faltered in his belief that the Axis would be defeated.

Now that the "mellow light of victory," to use his own phrase, is beginning to play on "the entire expanse of the World War," his confidence has mounted to a new high level.

This was clearly demonstrated in the speech he made to the House of Commons this week following his return from the conferences held in Washington and North Africa.

THE GLOBAL picture is most encouraging although some dark spots, like China, remain and there are still many difficult days ahead.

At Stalingrad and in Tunisia, Germany suffered tremendous and, it may prove to be, decisive defeats. Allied air power is everywhere on the increase. It is dominant in western Europe and supreme in the Mediterranean. Large Allied ground forces are poised along a great arc extending from Iceland to Africa and around the southern shore of the Mediterranean to the Middle East.

Enormously encouraging is the fact that we have at last begun to win the crucial Battle of the Atlantic. During April and May and the first week of June the curve of Allied shipping losses moved steadily downward. And perhaps for the first time since the war began more U-boats were sunk than were built. That, as Churchill said, may be a fateful milestone.

The U-boat is Hitler's last card. If it is trumped the rapidity with which we shall then be able to expand our forces in the European theater may be matched by the rapidity with which German morale and Germany's war effort will disintegrate.

BUT THERE ARE still two great hurdles to be overcome before the contours of victory over the Axis become clearly defined.

In the first place, the final battle of Russia is still to be fought and Russia remains, as it has been for two years, the major battlefield of the war.

It is of the utmost significance that despite the growing menace of invasion from the west, a menace underlined by the devastating blows dealt to German industry in the Ruhr and Rhineland by Allied air power, the bulk of the Wehrmacht is still concentrated on the Eastern Front.

According to Churchill, 190 German and 29 satellite divisions still face the Red army and the heavy aerial attacks on such Russian industrial centers as Gorki suggest that the bulk of the Luftwaffe is also in the east.

What, specifically, Hitler intends to do with the great force he is keeping in Russia is not clear. For a long time the assumption has been that Germany planned to mount at least one more giant offensive in the east and what evidence is available points to the probability that it will be this time in the center rather than in the south of the Eastern Front. Yet time is slipping by and nothing has happened.

Has Germany's strength been sapped to the point where her offensive capacity has deteriorated to the vanishing point? Is she so worried by the possibility of an Allied invasion of the continent from the west that she has had to divide and disperse her forces? Or is she merely waiting for an opportune moment before striking?

All these are possibilities. But it may very well be that, having been taken by surprise by the sudden end of the Tunisian fighting, Germany is holding up her offensive in Russia until she sees what the Allies' next step is. In other words, she may be fearful of committing the balance of her forces in one corner of Europe when so much uncertainty exists as to what may happen at other points on that continent.

CHURCHILL did not add to Hitler's peace of mind when he announced that "amphibious operations of a peculiar complexity and hazard on a large scale are approaching."

We can assume that the British Premier was not bluffing. Certainly the Germans cannot afford to believe that he was bluffing. But since "amphibious operations" can mean anything from an invasion of Norway to a landing in Italy or the Balkans or other points on the Continent, the effect of his remark will be to increase the alarm in the Reich.

In the meantime, the situation in the Mediterranean clearly appears to be moving toward a climactic stage. The "softening up" of the Italian islands — Pantelleria, Sicily, Sardinia, in particular—has now reached the point where land operations may be in order. A new chapter in the war is about to begin.

Patriot Miner

Uniontown, Pa. — Patriot-Miner Charles Hartman obeyed his Government in time of war rather than his union chief—put patriotism above highjacking and carried on in a coal mine alone, whence all but him had fled. His boy is away fighting, somewhere, 24 hours a day, if need be, for his dad, for Lewis, for the miners, and for all of us stay-at-homers. His philosophy is of the simplest:

"My boy was sent to Africa to do a job, and I've got a job to do here."

Hartman may be building better than he knows. He may be bringing home to us that salvation must come from within; he is merely showing the way. The miners themselves are the ones to see the light—that Lewis is not playing fair with his bulldozing highjacking tactics—that Lewis is a great danger to labor, for he is sowing the wind that will reap a whirlwind for the miners when the boys come marching home.

The lot of the miner and of all labor is much better since the advent of President Roosevelt, the greatest friend of the workingman. Lewis is a threat to the Nation, now and after the war.

I take my hat off to Hartman, and some day I want to go to Uniontown to clasp the horny hand of a workingman who has moral courage. A lot of us pygmies have physical courage, but it takes a real man, a man of character, a big man, to face the pseudo-contempt of his fellow workers, when he knows that he is right.

Mr. President, I give you Charles Hartman for the highest honor medal within the gift of a grateful nation. H. L. GUEYDAN.

"A Prelude to War"

This week, in one of the local theaters, I saw (after reading the review by your movie critic) "A Prelude to War"—a documentary film prepared by the War Department, under the guidance of that genius, Frank Capra, released for the American public by the Office of War Information. As a student of current history, I think this is one of the finest authenticated pictures ever to reach the public from any of our Government agencies.

It should be the patriotic duty of every American to see this film, because of its historical value and because it tells, effectively and precisely, how we were involved in this war against tyranny.

Merchant Marine

I hope some of our servicemen can take the time to see "The Long Voyage Home"—as your reporter says, "One of the finest pictures ever made . . ." Having seen it, with their awareness of the sacrifices that all men are called upon to make and are making so generously, it would seem to many of us splendid if some of those servicemen would spare a moment to enlist the interest of the communities they can reach in the recreation and welfare facilities for men of the merchant marine. The men of the Army must be aware of the teamwork involved in getting supplies through to all parts of the world; the men of the Navy certainly know what it means to go to sea. But I wonder whether they realize that it is one thing to be in the services for which the best of modern equipment is not too good, and another to be a volunteer "aboard a battered, slow, old ship . . ." carrying cargo that is, in itself, a tremendous danger.

Can you spare a word or two, men, that will awaken our people to the need for providing a little more thoughtfully for our merchant seamen? They are men of character, too—some of the world's best.

Giving Rides

If your editorial writer would read the columns of his own paper I think he would not write editorials such as one of May 29, criticising motorists for failure to pick up people and asking "Are Easterners as selfish as they seem?"

He would have read about the person refusing to ride with a District official because the destination was one block away from where he wished to go. He would have read of numerous assaults by passengers and, in addition, if he followed your Legal Record he would have learned of numerous suits filed by "passengers" against the motorist for alleged personal injuries while riding with an unselfish motorist.

I drive from Alexandria to Washington each morning (when there is gas) and return in the evening, frequently with room for one or two more persons. Offers of rides have so frequently met with snubs and sarcasm that I no longer solicit even "thumbers." "Out West," as your writer mentions, people desiring rides are courteous—the lack of "manners" in the "Easterners" is what causes them to stand for long periods, judging from my experience.

JUST A DRIVER.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Private Papers of Private Purkey

Dear Ed: Well I am still not getting nowhere in my idea that being in a uniform at the front risking my life I got the same rights what a man like John Lewis has at home risking nothing but a late dinner and an overcharge for hotel orange juice. The captain of my outfit pays no attention when I serve him a ultimatum that I do not like the hours, pay or working conditions and am washed up with the army if I don't get a new deal at once.

I keep telling him and the other officers that I consider the dough inadequate and the job too tough; also that while I took a oath to fight to the death and do like I am told, it does not mean nothing at all, no more than a no strike pledge. My superiors just throw me a chilly look and before I know it I am out dodging scrap iron again.

This worries me a lot. I wrote Washington and asked that maybe Ickes could take up the matter on account of he will take up most anything but I got no reply. Ickes might not give me all I want but he would at least put some blame on the officers. I also wrote the President explaining that even though I am in uniform I should get the same breaks that John Lewis gets out of uniform.

What is it a man striking on a war job has got that a soldier listening to bullets whistling by his ears has not got? Why is there one set of rules for a man who sleeps home every night and another set for the boys who register in the foxholes?

Nothing has come of my ultimatums so far. I gave the captain two weeks to grant my demands but he does not even grant me no hearing. When I tried to turn in my rifle and quit he threw it back at me and dropped the matter. No conferences, no hotel meetings, no committees or no nothing. He just brushed me off like I was a non union man.

To sum up here is how it stands with me. I am all body bruises from sleeping on rocks, I got shot in the pants the other day, my feet are wet, I have got no sleep for three nights and I am on emergency rashuns. Shells are falling all around me, with no explanations or apologies. Also I got malaria, I been away from home for a year, something's wrong with my mail from home and I ain't been paid in two months. Yet I got orders to attack a machine gun nest in ten minutes, regardless of what it says in any bylaws.

I think I got more reasons to beef than guys that get home every night, sleep in their own beds, get home cooking and never dodge dive bombers going to and from the job. But I get no reactions from the officers, so I guess it is all done with bushy eyebrows. Yours in a haze,

Oscar

P. S. I guess I better call it off now that Lewis has.

States' Rights

Mr. Mark Sullivan says in the June 2, 1943, issue of The Washington Post ("State's Function") that the several States have the exclusive right (within limits set in the Constitution and its amendments) to determine who may vote in the election of Federal officers and under what conditions. Wouldn't it be useful for Mr. Sullivan to re-read the Constitution before he writes such articles? The Constitution limits Congress to determine where the elections to the Senate should take place. Otherwise States may (within the constitutional limits) pass on laws about Federal elections provided that Congress does not determine form and substance of who may vote in Federal elections. The United States Supreme Court in 1941 interpreted this provision as including the right of Congress to regulate primaries with reference to Federal officers.

Rural America

By Louise Savage Mapp

Farmer's War Contribution

AT LONG LAST they are weeded out—the whining, procrastinating, "if I had the chance I could get something to do to make some money," farmers. Many have sold off the team, and the farming implements, the feed, pigs, and most of the household goods to raise the money to go across the bay to defense work, not stopping to think that they were already in the most essential of defense work—raising food. Some others have simply quit, given up their planting and harvesting, watching the young green sprout and spring, grow into something succulent and luscious, given it up to go around the towns and villages as a sort of handy man.

The man with grit, who has managed through the lean years when produce and fowl were down to the bottom, that man is up and in the strawberry patch side by side with the "help." When the strawberries are "packed" — with the help of his wife—if she is a real farmer's wife and sent to the produce auction block, we have three auction blocks on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, Bayview and Exmore in Northampton County and Onley in Accomac County, he adjusts his back to another position and starts hoeing the grass from next year's strawberry patch, or turning the vines of the golden sweet potatoes, or perhaps he harnesses the mule and runs the cultivator once more down the rows of white potatoes.

That Farmer

That farmer who is born with the love of the earth in his blood, grit in his gizzard, and steel in his backbone, has moved this spring as through a maze. Told he would not receive more than ceiling price, a rather low one set on potatoes, and then he found himself receiving more for his strawberries than he had for 20 years. Strawberries have run the gamut from $2.95 to $12, although the higher and the lower prices have not held sway; from $5 to $9 has been the general price according to the quality of the berries, and having known berries all my life—my family were farmers—and I have gathered many hundred quarts—fully that much difference is acceptable in the quality of berries and the care with which they are packed. The majority are well pleased with the price they are bringing; their only complaint is lack of labor, and this year with a shortage of Negroes being brought from the South white women and children are going to the fields, and the crop promises a successful season.

The worst fly in the ointment is the lack of cooperation some farmer's families are showing. At Exmore, Va., is a freezing plant, it draws its workers from the poorer class of women, which incidentally in this section are members of the farmer's—or rather tenant farmer's household. Those that have clung to the farm because they didn't know how to let go, and not because they loved it and had faith in its readjustment, have gone to work in that plant.

Exodus

The exodus from the farm was not due to past low prices, lack of labor, or any of the concrete reasons, but to a childish revolt or rebellion. As you cull over the type who left the farm, the reasons they gave for leaving, and the manner they use toward farming you see just what I have found in the tenant farmer who farmed because it looked when he started like an easy way to have a roof over his head and food, but the majority who turned to farming for this reason are innate belly-achers, and rely on the purse and patience of the landowner until you wonder if they are mentally incapacitated—that is the man who has gone out to defense jobs seeing the pay check and many times offering slipshod work—we can be thankful this type is disappearing from rural areas due to the inducements elsewhere.

With the farming landowner or a renter who loves land it is a different tale; he is carrying on under difficulties, with insufficient labor, land that needs every ounce of strength and soil builders he can muster, with OPA setting a ceiling on his potatoes first at $2.40 then this week raised to $2.70 per 100 pounds, and he figures with the increased expense can he really grow them for this price. Eastern Shore has the cream of America's potato crop, I think, but it means more work and more expensive materials than the majority of States must have; our land while very fertile must be cared for—must be saved and rested at intervals to give us the most profit. It is doubtful if the men who set the ceiling—or rather were instrumental in setting it by searching out statistics of other years—really knew a potato from an artichoke! To set the ceiling why not take a horny-handed farmer from the field, hand him a pencil and a pad of paper, let him dust his hands on his faded overalls, chew his pencil point off, scratch his ear a moment, and then start figuring; you'll get not only a rough sketch of the cost, but figures that could easily go on record as being authentic.

Fliers Don Body Armor In Britain

Bomber crews operating from British bases over Europe now wear body armor to protect them from low-velocity missiles such as flak, the War Department announced yesterday.

The armor weighs only 20 pounds and consists of a sleeveless canvas slip-on covering the air crewman from neck to hips. Thin steel plates are slipped into transverse pockets of the jacket which are strong enough to stop antiaircraft bursts.

Col. Malcolm Grow, surgeon of the Eighth Air Force, found that low-velocity missiles such as flak caused the vast majority of wounds among bomber crews. Waist and turret gunners, who expose the upper part of their bodies, were particularly vulnerable.

Grow devised the armored jacket, which has already been successfully demonstrated on raids over the Continent.

Fortyfifth Session Ends Tonight at College of Law

Washington College of Law will hold its forty-fifth commencement exercises tonight at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium, 2000 G Street Northwest.

Honorary degrees of doctor of law will be conferred upon Representative Rogers (Republican) of Massachusetts, Bernard C. Gavit, general counsel of the WMC, and Maude E. Aiton, administrative head of the Americanization School.

Dean Grace Hays Riley will confer the degrees upon the graduates, presiding over the exercises for the seventeenth consecutive time. Cavit will deliver the commencement address. The invocation will be read by the Rev. Charles Stewart McKenzie.

Balkans Lean To Russia

By Kosta Todorov

Friendship Tradition

(Fifth of Series)

The Balkan peoples are traditionally pro-Russian, especially the Slavonic branch of those peoples—the Bulgarians, Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. So strong is this feeling that King Boris of Bulgaria has not dared try to send Bulgarian troops against the Soviet Union. And when the former Bulgarian Minister of War, Gen. Kristo Lukov, tried to organize a legion of Bulgarian volunteers to fight with Germany against Russia, he was assassinated in front of his house in Sofia. Sotir Yanev, chairman of the Parliamentary Committee on Foreign Affairs, was also assassinated for his violent pro-German and anti-Russian sentiments.

This pro-Russian feeling in the Balkans springs not only from the common origin of the Russians and South Slavs. Nor is it confined to the Slavs. For Russia has played a liberating role in Balkan history. The Serbs won their independence of Turkey with Russia support. The Greeks were liberated with Russian aid after the Battle of Navarin. The Bulgarians were liberated through a Russian war against Turkey. Paradoxically, autocratic Russia has always played a liberal role in the Balkans, except during the reign of Alexander III, who made many mistakes in Balkan policy.

One Independence

At the same time the Balkan peoples are deeply attached to their national indepedence. Bulgarian history gives proof of this. A few years after the liberation of Bulgaria, Alexander III tried to intervene in Bulgarian internal affairs in support of reactionary elements. A general upsurge of national feeling, prompted by fear that Alexander was plotting to annex the country, led to the breaking of relations between Bulgaria and Russia. And the breach lasted seven years.

The horrors of Nazi occupation have driven the Bulgarian people closer to Russia, and they would certainly accept annexation to the Soviet Union if the alternative were continued German domination or a return to government by their native totalitarians.

The Soviet government is naturally taking advantage of this situation to strengthen its influence in the Balkans. Hence the struggle in Yugoslavia between Gen. Mihailovich's Chetnik patriots and the pro-Communist partisans. But the success of this Soviet activity will depend entirely upon the Balkan policy of the Western Allies. In the Balkans we have a saying, "Not he who eats the tart is to blame, but he who lets it be eaten."

Feeling Differs

Of course the pro-Russian feeling among the Balkan peoples differs in degree. In Bulgaria and Yugoslavia the majority of the people, without distinction of party, are pro-Russian; and where they are pro-Communist it is most often because they are pro-Russian. In Greece and Rumania, on the other hand, the pro-Russians are generally also pro-Communist.

The vast majority of the Balkan people do not want their peninsula to become an appendage of any foreign power. They believe it is possible to be at once independent of Russia and friendly to Russia. What they want is an independent Balkan federation, equally friendly to Russia and to the Western Powers; a federation which would include Turkey if that country would consent to join.

What this solution of the Balkan problem would mean to the future peace of Europe and the world I will explain in my next article.

Rent Control Aids Owners Of Home Property, OPA Says

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

The Office of Price Administration acted yesterday in two of the most controversial matters under its administration—rent control and industrial pricing procedures.

On rent control, which is being strongly attacked by real estate operators on grounds of financial inequity, OPA declared that comparative studies show that residential real estate is in a far better earning position under control than in the three-year period of 1939 to 1941 when there was no control.

Contrasting the period June-December of 1942, when rent control was in effect, and the same period of 1941 when no controls existed, the report stated that net operating income for the average apartment unit under rent control was 17 per cent higher, or $121.41, against $103.72.

For the average dwelling unit in small structures, net operating incomes was found to be $96.66 or 9 per cent better than the $88.41 earned in the same period in 1941.

As to industrial pricing procedures, OPA announced a vast program providing for the establishment of formal industrial advisory committees to help OPA formulate pricing regulations.

Although many informal industrial committees have been meeting with OPA officials to map regulations, yesterday's action finally implemented the promise of Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown early in his administration to establish some such close working relation with industry.

While this promise moved slowly into fruition, OPA frequently was accused of forming impractical and impossible price regulations by not consulting with industry.

Under the program, about 250 committees representing various industries are expected to be working with OPA as soon as acceptances of membership can be obtained.

Brown pointed up the nature of the program in a memorandum to his staff, saying: "It is my desire that industry advisory committees be set up immediately throughout the entire agency as a matter of administrative policy rather than as a grudging concession to the demands of industry exercising their rights under the Emergency Price Control Act."

U.S. Funds Assured For Four Corners School Addition

Assurances that the Federal Government will provide funds for an additional four rooms at the Four Corners School to care for children from the Fairway war-housing development of the National Capital Housing Administration, were received Tuesday by the Montgomery County Board of Education at its meeting in Rockville, Md.

The report also indicated that priorities are forthcoming for five additional rooms to the same school, which are to be constructed at county expense in addition to the federally financed rooms to provide class space for the mushroom growth of the neighborhood. Two rooms at Westbrook and two at Bradley Boulevard schools in the western suburban county also will receive priority approval, it was said.

The board authorized advertising for bids as soon as offical notification of priority grant is received. Frank I. Davis was reappointed supervisor of school property.

The board named the following trustees: Sherman J. Kreuzberg, Parkside Elementary; Dr. Fayette S. Warner, Kensington Elementary; George Muth, Westbrook; Mrs. Mercedes Martell and Mrs. Beatrice Carr, Glenmont, and James Bland, Ken Gar Negro School.

Army Reports Well-Trained Amphibious Units Ready to Operate as Zero Hour Approaches

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Amid reports that Allied invasion plans were approaching the zero hour, the War Department announced last night that special troops skilled in amphibious operations "are trained and ready for combat."

An announcement declared that the Army Engineer Amphibious Command will round out its first year of existence today "with trained and hardened units ready to put their doctrine and equipment to the test of combat."

"Essentially," declared the Army statement, "the command is designed to operate from friendly to hostile shore over short water distances."

The undisclosed number of brigades forming the command would thus be equipped and prepared for carrying assault troops across such short water routes as North Africa to Pantelleria or Sicily, or England to Flanders.

Each of the brigades, it was revealed, is organized and equipped to support the amphibious operations of an infantry division. The specially trained "Amphibs," the department said, are specialists in the complex problems attending landings on enemy shores.

The units transport troops to hostile beaches in their landing craft, establish a beachhead after the assault forces land, evacuate wounded, send back prisoners and keep the troops ashore supplied.

Creation of such especially skilled and equipped brigades was a necessary preliminary step to any invasion of Europe.

Telling of some of the problems which arose in setting up the amphibious brigades during the past year, the department said it was found that 40 per cent of its "Amphibs" could not swim. Swimming courses have remedied this.

Knock down boats were developed by the command which make possible a saving of 50 per cent of transport space. These boats carry troops, equipment, tanks and artillery.

Shield of the Republic

by WALTER Lippmann

Writing at white heat, America's most distinguished political writer calls for immediate action to ensure America's security in the future world.

The United States never again can afford to make foreign commitments without the power to sustain them. Here is a formula—sound, valid and unanswerable—a solution, to the tragic, unrecognized blunders of which Pearl Harbor and Bataan were the logical, inevitable results. Here is a foreign policy on which the American people can unite, after nearly fifty years of violent division. An Atlantic Monthly Press Book. $1.50

'Crash Dive' This Morning Crashes Palace Screen

Tyrone Power and Anne Baxter Costar In Technicolor Tribute to the Submarine; Usual Short Subjects Augment Ace Film

"CRASH DIVE." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by W. R. Burnett, adapted to the screen by Jo Swerling, starring Tyrone Power and Anne Baxter, with Dana Andrews, James Gleason, Dame May Whitty, Henry Morgan, Ben Carter, Charles Tannen, Frank Conroy, Florence Lake, John Archer, George Golmes and Minor Watson. Directed by Archie Mayo. At Loew's Palace Theater.

ANOTHER "WAR PICTURE," yes, but first and foremost "Crash Dive," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, is engrossing, informative and exciting entertainment.

Executed in unexcelled Technicolor, this Twentieth Century-Fox valedictory to the talents of Tyrone Power for the duration, for the first time, I believe, paints a large-scale canvas of the part the submarine is playing in the war.

The land sequences of the picture, centering largely in the activities at the submarine base at New London, Conn.—but taking time out for a quick trip to overcrowded Washington in the development of its "love interest"—make use of a slightly shopworn romantic formula, largely redeemed by the breezy manner of its playing, but there is nothing hackneyed about the deep-water sequences that make so clear what the submarine is all about on the surface or on the floor of any of the seven seas.

In the fashioning of his script, Scenarist Jo Swerling, in adapting W. R. Burnett's story to the screen, has set up a nice rivalry between the surface and underseas branches of the United States Navy.

The central figure in the action, the young executive officer impersonated by Tyrone Power, is introduced as a fighting-man in love with the speed and efficiency of the PT boats, those mosquitoes of the fleet that pack a punch out of all proportion to their size. When he is transferred to a sub, his early prejudice is exceeded only by his sense of duty. The contrary enthusiasms of his commanding officer in the new assignment lends added asperities to their relationship when it turns out that it is Lieut. Comdr. Dewey Conners' girl that Lieut. Ward Stewart has been so furiously courting and winning.

That should be sufficient index to the familiar rivalry that motivates the most important sequences of the film.

That landlocked love affair, however, is the lesser of "Crash Dive's" approaches to sure acclaim. To begin with—and we began with it a day or two ago—the picture gets off to a sensational start. The introductory action, as we have previously observed, would do for the climax of any ordinary picture. This one is not ordinary, once it gets into its major business of bringing to view a counterpart of the sort of actions that have been spattering the front pages ever since we got fairly into the thick of things.

One is almost tempted to believe that developments have reached their ultimate climax when the sub, on which the privately antagonistic officers are detailed, sinks the disguised Nazi raider after it has all but sunk it. But that, for the second surprising time, is only the beginning.

The real climax unreels itself when the sub searches out the Nazi base in the far north, sneaks through the nets and mine fields into the heavily fortified harbor and "puts on a show" that demolishes the entire installation. The adventurous, humorous and romantic incidents that mark the route to this stupendous final sequence are of a nature and a quality to pitch the picture well up toward the top of the list of service films that weave a thrilling spell while they wave the flag.

Able Cast Plays With Zest

Twentieth Century-Fox has been extraordinarily happy in its casting of the principal roles. Tyrone Power and Dana Andrews are choice selections for the parts of the rival officers, and Anne Baxter, suddenly flowered into one of the most alluring of the "glamour girls," lends a youthful zest to the character of the young teacher who starts out as Commander Conners' betrothed and winds up as Lieutenant Stewart's wife.

As a renegade of the first war and a hero of the present, James Gleason has the most fruitful assignment that has come his way in months, and Dame May Whitty, as Lieutenant Stewart's grandmother, has one of those robustly salty roles that she plays perhaps better than any other of the cinema's grande dames. Minor Watson, former leading man of the National Theater Players, also is conspicuously cast and many others contribute to the all-around excellence of an able ensemble.

Archie Mayo has directed intelligently and tensely to add hair-trigger action to the realistic effects of the color photography that makes everything so vivid.

The Defense Reel for the new week at the Palace will be "North African Album," which should be sufficient index to its contents. A little nearer home and to the south, "Mexican Police on Parade" will afford a natural color study of what was turned up south of the border for this latest of the FitzPatrick travelogues. The picturized "News of the Day" will supply the final auxiliary of a feature that represents one of the shrewdest combinations to date of a valuable sidelight on a little-known branch of our armed forces and entertainment of a heartening and completely enjoyable sort.

The Romance in Tale of Adventure

TYRONE POWER AND ANNE BAXTER as they appear in the roles of major romantic interest in the Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production of "Crash Dive," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. Also importantly cast are Dana Andrews, Dame May Whitty, James Gleason, Minor Watson and others of comparable ability, prominence and popularity

An Illustrious Colored Cast In Novel Musical at Columbia

"CABIN IN THE SKY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the stage piece of the same name, adapted to the screen by Joseph Schrank, starring Ethel Waters, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson and Lena Horne, with Rex Ingram, Louis Armstrong, Kenneth Spencer, John W. "Bubbles" Sublett, Oscar Polk, Mantan Moreland, Willie Best, Fletcher "Moke" Rivers, Leon "Poke" James, Bill Bailey, Ford L. "Buck" Washington, Butterfly McQueen, Ruby Dandridge, Nicodemus and Ernest Whitman. Directed by Vicente Minnelli. At Loew's Columbia Theater.

The most illustrious all-Negro cast it would be possible to assemble this morning will take possession of the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater in a musicalized novelty cut from a shrunken pattern of "The Green Pastures."

"Cabin in the Sky" memorializes the struggle of the ages between the powers of heaven and hell for the possession of a human soul. The story has been translated into the simple symbols of everyday mundance life, almost precisely as was done in the Marc Connelly Pulitzer Prize play. But the picture has not been content to confine itself to the emotional and dramatic aspects of the parable it visualizes. It has seen fit to augment those qualities by setting them to the rhythmic measures of music and the dance, to the great profit of a film nicely attuned to the conspicuous talents of its cast.

Story of Faith and Devotion

The story of the simple faith and unwavering devotion to her scapegrace husband of Petunia Jackson is made the frame of a mighty struggle between the forces of good and evil for eternal possession of the soul of Little Joe Jackson, the backsliding gambling man. The arena of the conflict is successfully the church, the little cottage of the Jacksons and the dance hall. The allegory and the actual do not blend too well, but in the view of the amusement-seeker will be held together well enough by the recurrent musical interludes that compile the picture's strongest claim to attention.

The contrasting characters of the Jacksons are in the incomparable hands of Ethel Waters and Eddie "Rochester" Anderson. Ethel Waters long since has established herself not only as one of the foremost singers of her race but also as one of its most richly gifted actresses. She has ample opportunity here to demonstrate the full measure of her artistry in both fields. Eddie Anderson fulfills the requirements of his part by becoming a more subdued "comic" than usual. As his evil genius, spreading her allurements lustily in the interests of Lucifer, jr., Lena Horne is a pretty glittering temptress with almost as much of a way with a song as the less flamboyant Waters.

Ingram Changes Pace

As the General from Heaven, otherwise the Rev. Green, and Lucifer, jr., Kenneth Spencer and Rex Ingram wage their war in impressive fashion, which is by way of being a bit of a reversal for Rex Ingram since it was he who played De Lawd in the screen version of "The Green Pastures."

Also among the foremost in the proceedings are John W. "Bubbles" Sublett, who has a song almost as good as his "I've Got Plenty of Nothin' " in the original production of "Porgy and Bess"; Ernest Whitman, as Jim Henry, the neutral bystander; Louis Armstrong, as the trumpeter, and Nicodemus, as Dude. To give life and vibrance to the musical numbers, Duke Ellington and His Orchestra are prominent and so is the Hall Johnson Choir.

Presented on the stage with the identical cast, "Cabin in the Sky" would be at least a $3.30 attraction—maybe $4.40.

It will, of course, be surrounded by the usual bill of supplementary short subjects. N. B. B.

Nothing Wasted In Studios Today

World War II has brought about a lot of changes in movie production, not the least of which is that Hollywood never destroys anything today. Even for a scene of complete destruction in a film as important as "For Whom the Bell Tolls" nothing was really destroyed—it only appeared to be ruined.

For a scene of a beautiful cafe being bombed in Madrid, Paramount resorted to a remarkable series of tricks to accomplish the perfect illusion; cafe walls, built on rockers, merely quivered instead of being shattered; plaster fell in fistfulls, but not from the ceiling. Property men dropped it into camera range.

Road to Stardom

HEDDA HOPPER

Surrenders to Enemy After 20 Years!

Hollywood, Calif., June 9.—Ed Doherty, here doing script on "The Sullivans," recalled his first meeting with Mabel Normand the other day. As a reporter he was assigned to tell the truth about Hollywood. Mabel was sick in the hospital. He wanted an interview and got her attorney to take him there. She greeted him with open arms. "Thanks for those wonderful yarns, Eddie," said Mabel after her attorney had introduced him as "Eddie Doherty—bad boy from Chicago." "O!" said Mabel, "come on over and give me a kiss. Let's make up and be friends." After that he was her biggest booster . . . There was another time when he didn't pull his punches and made an enemy of a famous Western star who was famed for philandering. He went gunning for Eddie, fired at him, but missed. The studio was anxious to hush-hush the incident. But Eddie said: "It's all right. A guy that won't shoot straight with his wife can't shoot straight with a gun, either" . . . After 20 years, now that he's writing "The Sullivans," Eddie's moved into the film capital that once was his target. He says it hasn't changed a lick, but has a better class of residents now. Eddie, such boasting!

PAULETTE GODDARD

Paulette Goddard delighted her bosses in "So Proudly We Hail." They gave her a two-week reprieve with pay—which means she'll linger longer in New York and Washington . . . Maria Montez has been offered the part of Camille in "The Lady of the Camellias," which the Ixtla company is to make in Mexico, but Montez tells me she's indispensable to Universal . . . Lupe Velez is back from Mexico only long enough to pick up her 12 diamond bracelets and get some new dresses . . . Michele Morgan will strip-tease in "Higher and Higher." I think they're getting bolder and bolder.

Last Laugh.

Is Irving Rapper laughing! He got suspended by Warners for refusing to do "Animal Kingdom." Now they've suspended "Animal Kingdom" — forever. . . . The band roared when Ish Kabibble ad libbed to Kay Kyser: "Did you know that you've got wavy hair? Yep, I just saw one hair wave to the other." . . . Claudette Colbert would like Leo McCarey to write a story for her on the order of "Love Affair." Well, who wouldn't? . . . Joan Davis says an air raid shelter is no protection against a bundle from heaven. . . . Milton Berle's wife, Joyce is torn between working for the Shuberts or Metro. No wonder her husband has been hopping around Broadway like a twirling dervish. I've just learned he has six toes on one foot, and the right number on the other.

Doubles in Brass

Roman Bohnen, who plays Father in "Bernadette," directs plays at night for the Actors' Laboratory. It's a group of 75 youngsters who put on plays at surrounding army camps. . . . Lou Pollack and Charles Newman are adding six new songs to "By Jupiter." . . . The Eddie Foys jr., celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary. When Eddie finishes in "And the Angels Sing," he goes to New York to take over in "Oklahoma" for Lee Dickson, who's off to war. . . . Jack Benny entertained some bombardiers at the Masquers' club Saturday night. He had as his sidekicks Rochester, Claudette Colbert, Dennis Day, and Danny Kaye. The Masquers are doing a swell job. They not only feed and entertain the men, but provide lodging for them as well.

Chit

As Eddie Buzzell watched the dancing in "Best Foot Forward," he forgot he was a director and went back to hoofing again—but only for one take. It lamed him. . . . E. H. Griffith, hearing that Studio Electrician Johnny Diggins was leaving for Detroit, asked him about it. Diggins said: "Yep, I'm going from what makes Sammy run to what makes Willow Run." . . . Gracie McDonald's romance—Lieut. Irving Lazaar, from Broadway—was here with Moss Hart for two days on the air forces show.

Movie Japs Done 'Justice' By Chinese

By Melrose Gower

Hollywood, June 9.—There isn't a native of Nippon at large in southern California—glory be!

Yet the motion picture screen still presents to American film fans some of the most fiendish, true-to-life Japs who ever bayonetted a helpless, unarmed foe.

These movie Japs are being portrayed by hundreds of Chinese actors who worship their roles, anomalous as that may sound to men and women far removed from the scene of picture-making.

The Chinese in Hollywood reach out eagerly for every chance to don a Japanese uniform and play a member of the hated race that has laid waste their homeland. They welcome every opportunity to spread throughout the world the truth about Japanese treachery, brutality, and lust. Chinese bit players, Chinese extras throw themselves with fury into such roles, so much so at times that directors have to caution them patiently to "play it down a little, please," lest a scene be ruined by blind rage.

A Vivid Illustration

Most vivid illustration of this bitter tendency is in the filming of "Behind the Rising Sun," screen version of James R. Young's book of the same name. Every scene of this RKO-Radio picture is laid in Japan or China. It won't be a "pretty" picture; it's being directed by Edward Dmytryk, who handled the megaphone on "Hitler's Children." It will be stark, brutal, truthful, as was "Hitler's Children."

It will contain many sequences not pleasant to witness, perhaps—the wanton murder of a Chinese boy by a grinning Jap soldier; the clubbing and beating into bloody submission of helpless men and women; the assassination of Takahashi, Japan's last liberal leader, slain in his own home with his own sword at the age of 84, by the murderous military element he had opposed.

Chinese actors are playing Japanese soldiers in these scenes, playing them with terrible earnestness, living their parts that all who see may know the Japanese nature as the Chinese know it.

Paying Off Personal Score

And no actor carries into his part such intensity as Jew Yut Gim, known on the screen as Joseph Kim. He has a score to even with the Japs, and this is his only way to do it.

Born in Canton, educated in Los Angeles, Kim became a naturalized American citizen. He learned flying under the late Wiley Post. In 1937 he went back to China to help his native people. After many heroic deeds, his right leg was ripped to pieces by gunfire. He started back to America, forced to disguise himself as a ship's dishwasher. A Jap gunboat stopped the ship, boarded it, tortured Kim for hours to make him admit he had been a Chinese combat flyer. Finally, they let him go, broken and sick.

After Pearl Harbor, Joe Kim enlisted in the United States Coast Artillery. He served faithfully and well, until his shattered leg again failed him and he received a medical discharge. He tried to enlist in the Air Corps—too old. So, now, Jim Kim plays on the screen Japs as he knows them.

Invented Special Lighting

One of the greatest cameramen in Hollywood is a Chinese, James Wong Howe, who photographed Warner's "Air Force." For that picture, Jimmy Howe devised what he termed "diabolical lighting," to the joy of every Chinese actor in the cast. It was used in every scene showing Japanese—perhaps you remember the scene in which a Japanese aviator machine guns an American flyer to death as he floats helplessly earthward in his parachute?

But there are lighter moments in this strange mood—and a laugh now and then. "In Mission to Moscow," Chinese actors played members of the Jap legation. Across the breasts of their ornate uniforms were countless medals. Between scenes one day, Director Mike Curtiz quizzed one of these Chinese:

"How do you keep those medals so bright and shiny?" he asked.

"Every five minutes," retorted the actor, "I take them off and spit on them!"

New York, June 9.

Joe Weiner, the WPB's Director for Civilian Supply, submitted his resignation on Saturday. He will return to New York to open a law office . . . Willkie is joining no committees, such as the one recently formed by G. O. P. Boss Spangler or any committee in opposition to it. This week Willkie will come back from the Midwest, where he has been seeing political leaders and clearing out any personal grievances. When he returns, he'll decide on the movie sale of "One World," for which Goldwyn is willing to top all bids . . . The President will start using his swimming pool this week, for the first time in a year. He at last has time for it.

United Drug Will Redeem Debentures

By S. Oliver Goodman

The United Drug Co. plans to call for redemption later this year approximately 30 million dollars of outstanding debentures, President Justin W. Dart revealed yesterday.

Funds to effect the retirement of the entire outstanding issue will be obtained in large part from the sale of new securities, probably both debentures and preferred stock, he added. Negotiations are now in progress between the company and the investment banking firm of Smith, Barney & Co. regarding the form the new financing will take.

The issue to be called consists of 25-year, 5 per cent debentures. Dart said that a registration statement covering a new issue or issues will be filed in the latter part of July with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Sales of United Drug Co., largest firm of its kind in the world, totaled 122 million last year. The bulk of its manufactured products are sold through its more than 10,000 Rexall agents. Its wholly owned subsidiaries are the Liggett Drug Co. and the Owl Drug Co. Outlets are operated in Washington and area.

Conference of United Nations' Industrial Leaders Urged

Toronto, June 9 (Canadian Press).—A business economic conference on postwar problems between representatives of the industrial organizations in countries not now at war with the United Nations, was proposed today to the seventy-second annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers Association by Frederick C. Crawford, Cleveland, Ohio.

Crawford, president of the National Association of Manufacturers in the United States, suggested that the two associations explore the possibilities of holding such a conference as early as possible.

"Such a conference," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at the meeting, "could be an invaluable aid to the governments of our countries by promoting that kind of international understanding and trade which in turn would help eliminate the causes of international economic friction—because trade and economic frictions always lie at the very heart of world conflict.

"There is a myriad of problems awaiting such a conference, not the least of which, of course, is a full discussion of the world's export and import trade in the postwar years, and through what means of exchange and controls it can best be handled.

"Our association, although not liking all the conditions under which reciprocal trade treaties are made, came out for an extension of the act in the States. We did this mainly because we believe, in the emergency of reconstruction, an instrumentality for quickly straightening out the trade relations of our world neighbors is a necessity.

"You'll want certain preferential protection, as you call it up here, and we'll need some continuance of labor benefits, farm benefits and safeguarding of infant industry through what we call "protective tariff"—but make no mistake about it, the tariff trend is lower. . . .

Canada and the United States are destined to play a decisive role in world affairs, Crawford said. Speaking of the immediate postwar era, he said that before normal trade can be resumed, "The world must be rebuilt physically and that will be our job."

"In facing this problem the opportunity and responsibilities of Canada and the United States are identical," he said. "We will not be competitors as much as we will be colleagues working together to solve the many mechanical, merchandising and financial problems."

Lackawanna R. R. Merger Proposed

New York, June 9 (AP).—A plan for unification of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad and its leased affiliate, the New York, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Co., was announced today by Lee P. Stack, president of the New York company, following its annual stockholders' meeting.

The plan is designed to bring about solution of pending litigation against the companies alleging they owe past-due taxes to the Federal Government and the State of New Jersey.

The N. Y., L. & W. operates about 214 miles of main track in New York State north and west of Binghamton.

The D., L. & W. and several of its leased lines have been engaged in a controversy over their respective liability for tax claims of the Federal Government and the State of New Jersey.

Today's merger proposal will also require approval of stockholders of both roads and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Week's Gasoline Stocks Off 1,732,000 Barrels

New York, June 9 (AP).—The Nation's gasoline stocks declined 1,732,000 barrels last week to a total of 82,205,000 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

Supplies of light heating oil were up slightly in the week's only increase in civilian stores of petroleum products.

The institute's index of oil in the Eastern Seaboard's tanks dropped to 25.6 per cent of normal, just .1 of one per cent above the record low of May 4.

Crude oil production in the United States in the week ended June 5 was reported at an average of 3,932,950 barrels daily, off 37,350 barrels from the previous week and compared with 3,601,500 barrels a year ago.

Great Lakes Paper Co. Strike Is Concluded

Fort William, Ontario, June 9 (AP).—Newsprint production, held up by a two-day strike, was resumed today at the plant of the Great Lakes Paper Co.

Paper makers went on strike Monday but returned to work, pending negotiations with the management for settlement of an undisclosed grievance. Wages were not involved.

The workers are members of Local 257, International Brotherhood of Paper Makers (A. F. of L.).

Ad Group Headed By Toronto Man

New York, June 9 (AP).—The Newspaper Advertising Executives Association today named as president William Wallace, advertising manager of the Toronto Star, to succeed William Ellyson, jr., of the Richmond News-Leader and Times-Dispatch, who became chairman of the board of directors.

Other officers elected included Henry W. Manz of the Cincinnati (Ohio) Post, first vice president, and Robert K. Drew of the Milwaukee Journal, second vice president. New direcotrs named were J. Thomas Driscom of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner and Tennessean, and Earl H. Maloney of the Peoria (Ill.) Journal-Transcript.

The advertising men named Harold H. MacLean, retail advertising director of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, as chairman of a retail promotion committee which will make a special survey of competitive advertising media and recommend methods of securing new revenue in this field.

Utility Denied Right To Issue Securities

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP).—The newly organized Eastern New York Power Corp.'s petition for authority to issue 27 million dollars in securities so as to merge with two other concerns was denied today by New York's Public Service Commission.

Other companies involved were System Properties, Inc., and the Hudson River Power Corp. The commission gave Wilmington, Del., as headquarters of the Eastern New York Corp. Headquarters of the other two concerns were not available.

Commissioner Earl Brewster held that nearly two-thirds of the company's property against which the securities were to be issued was non-utility and because of this, quotation of the proposed securities would violate the public service law.

Holiday, Coal Strike Cut Power Output

New York, June 9 (AP).—Electric power production declined last week under the double impact of the coal strike and the Memorial Day holiday, the Edison Electric Institute reported today, although generator output ran well ahead of 1942 figures.

For the week ended June 5 total distribution was 3,925,893,000 kilowatt hours, the institute said, compared with 3,990,040,000 the week before and 3,372,374,000 in the like 1942 week.

Stock Market Inches Higher; Buying Light

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—Light investment nibbling overcame a small flow of profit cashing in the stock market today and numerous leaders moved into the plus column after drifting most of the day.

Steels, motors, rails and farm equipment issues benefited in the last-minute buying, many of them recouping fractional losses to finish with minor gains.

Earlier recovery moves had failed to attract much of a following, but a bulge in dealings with the final push lifted total transactions to 807,560 shares for the full session, still well under Tuesday's 1,077,520.

In the narrower market—863 issues changing hands against 912 yesterday—there were 336 advances and 527 unchanged or lower. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed with a net rise of .1 of a point at 51.5.

Shares finishing ahead at the last included United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler with a gain of 1⅛, Goodyear, J. I. Case up 1⅜, International Harvester, Oliver Farm, United Aircraft, Douglas, Western Union, General Electri, du Pont, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Texas Co. Rails steadied in an uneven bond market. Cotton futures rose 5 to 20 cents a bale. Wheat at Chicago advanced ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent a bushel. Hogs were off 10 to 20 cents a hundredweight.

Guggenheim Estate Valued at $17,887,594

New York, June 9 (AP).—Murry Guggenheim, financier and philanthropist, left a gross estate of $18,887,973, and a net estate of $17,887,594, when he died on November 15, 1939, an estate tax appraisal filed today showed.

Approximately five million dollars was bequeathed to the Murry and LeonieGuggenheim Foundation to erect and operate a dental clinic for children. Other beneficiaries included Mrs. Leonie Guggenheim, his widow, and Edmond A. Guggenheim, his son, who was named executor.

Bluege, Vernon Banished as Nats Lose, 3-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, June 9.—Joe Cronin, the Red Sox manager, is ready to confess that events in the American League are more than a little bit bewildering. His Boston team is no great shucks but it's a heap better off than the good ball club Cronin had last season.

POVICH

"At this stage last year, we were 11½ games out of first place," observed Cronin, "and over the winter we lost Ted Williams, Dominic DiMaggio, Johnny Pesky and Lou Finney. That figured to wreck us, but look what happened. We're only five games out of first place. We're 6½ games better off than we were at the same period in 1942 with all of our stars."

Those figures ought to wipe out the last vestige of doubt that it's a weaker league this season, else how could the present collection of Red Sox nondescripts surpass last year's powerful Red Sox in the team standings?

The big difference in the league is the Yankees, of course. Last year they were romping out in front by 11½ games over the second-place club. This season though still in the lead, they're only 9 games ahead of the last-place team and a game and a half in front of the second-place Nats.

Come what may, the Washington baseball firm is having its most prosperous season since 1925 when the turnstiles registered 817,000 paid admissions at Griffith Stadium. The 1943 edition of the Nats is spilling profits into the club's vaults at an amazing rate.

The Nats have probably drawn more customers to their home games than any club in the league. Already the stiles have registered 248,000 paid admissions for the first 25 home games, an average of 10,000 fans for each single game and 20,000 for double-headers.

Washington is now a town where the traveling secretaries of the visiting clubs can take home hefty checks as their share of the receipts. Night ball and the city's war boom are, of course, factors, together with the lofty standing of the Nats in the pennant race.

Griffith has never ceased beseeching Judge Landis for permission to play more night games, and can't understand why it is consistently refused. The nocturnal contests in Washington have been averaging 13,000 fans and making money for all teams in the league, besides proving their popularity with the greater number of customers.

You are beginning to hear grumbling, though, from the Washington players who aren't taking any too kindly to the travel accommodations the club has been arranging. Particularly are some of the Nats disgruntled at the long, uncomfortable day-coach rides during which they often have their choice of sitting on suitcases in the aisles of the crowded cars or standing up.

On the trip to Boston this week, several of the players stood during the entire 10-hour journey. They squawked, too, not because the trains were so crowded, but because apparently no attempt was made to get them Pullman accommodations.

"What goes on anyway? demanded one player. "The Tigers came down to Washington from Philadelphia on Pullmans and the other clubs don't get all this day-coach riding. At least the front office tries to make Pullman arrangements. The Washington club has given up on the idea. They're having a big year at the gate, and saving dough on expenses.

"We'll ride the day coaches whenever we have to, without squawking, but when there are Pullmans available they ought to at least make a try for 'em. We see plenty of empty Pullman seats. The club is taking advantage of a situation to get out from under that extra fare."

Bluege Banished For Second Time In 22 Years After Protested Strike

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Boston, June 9.—The Nats lost one ball game to the Red Sox and two decisions to Umpire George Pipgras today in Fenway Park. The score was 3 to 2, but the skirmishing with Hizzoner Pipgras wasn't even close. He heaved Manager Ossie Bluege and First Baseman Mickey Vernon out of the ball game.

For the second time in his 22-year big league career, the usually placid Bluege was thumbed out of a game after exploding all over the premises in the eighth inning when Pipgras called a third strike on Vernon.

A moment before Vernon had previously been banished by Pipgras. With the Nats trailing by one run, nobody on, nobody out and the count 3 and 2 on Vernon, the Nats first baseman checked his swing at Tex Hughson's next pitch, a head-high ball. Pipgras called it a strike.

Pipgras Has Last Word

Vernon ranted and Pipgras gave him the heave-ho, striking a pose with an outstretched hand pointing to the players' exit. Bluege rushed in from the coaching lines to protest. He protested well, but apparently not wisely, because Pipgras struck his "never-darken-my-door-again" pose and directed Bluege to the showers, too.

Neither Bluege nor Vernon left the field immediately. They saw out the end of the inning from the dugout, whereupon Pipgras stomped over and routed them from the bench. Finally, they retired from the premises, Bluege still squawking with some "you'll hear from this" gestures.

Dutch Leonard lost the ball game. He lost it in the first inning in the space of three pitches. With two out in the inning, he pitched a home run to Ulysses Lupien who banged the ball far into the right field stands. Two pitches later—another home run, this time by Jim Tabor who pumped the ball barely over the left field wall and barely in fair territory.

Vernon's Error Hurts

The killer, though, was the run the Red Sox scored against Relief Pitcher Alex Carrasquel in the seventh after the Nats had cut big Hughson's lead to 2-1. It came cheaply, with Vernon the culprit. Singles by Doerr and Newsome had put runners on first and third with one out, and Peacock hit the ideal double play ball to Vernon.

Vernon messed it up, though. He merely had to field the ball, beat Peacock to the bag with one step, and throw home for a double play, but he came up empty handed. The ball skittered between his legs into right field and Doerr came driving home.

We'll always maintain that the Red Sox were lucky to win this

Kurowski Leads Cards To 4-3 Win Over Bucs

Mort Cooper Registers Seventh Victory, Beating Rip Sewell; Gain on Dodgers

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 9.—George (Whitey) Kurowski returned to third base for the St. Louis Cardinals today for the first time since May 28 and led the World Champions to a 4-to-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Kurowski, who had been convalescing from an eye injury, had no trouble seeing the pitching of Truett (Rip) Sewell and produced a triple, double and single to score three of the Redbirds' runs, including the deciding counter in the ninth inning.

His batting helped big Mort Cooper gain his seventh success of the season against three defeats.

Cooper gave up seven hits and confined the Pirates' scoring to the fifth and sixth innings, when the Buccaneers bunched five of their blows.

In the fifth, Elbie Fletcher opened with a walk and Al Lopez singled him to second. Cooper trapped Fletcher off the bag, but in the rundown Lopez reached second and scored on a single by Vince DiMaggio for the first run off the Cardinals' ace in 23 innings. DiMaggio then moved to third on an infield out and came home on a single by Sewell.

Jim Russell led off in the sixth with a single, raced to third on another single by Bob Elliott and scored on a double play.

The Cardinals came back to tie the count in their half of each inning. Kurowski opened the St. Louis fifth with a single and rode home on a double by Mort Cooper, who himself scored on singles by Lou Klein and Stan Musial. With two out in the sixth, Kurowski got a triple as Russell missed a shoestring catch and trotted home on a single by Marty Marion.

When the final frame rolled around with the score still tied, Kurowski opened with a double. Marion was walked intentionally and Mort Cooper sacrificed. Klein followed with a fly to Russell and Kurowski scored after the catch.

It was the second loss against six victories for Sewell and gave the Cardinals a half-game margin over the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers, who were idle.

Browns Rout Bagby, Blank Indians, 6-0

Muncrief Pitches 2-Hit Ball as Mates Shellac Cleveland; McQuinn Hits Homer

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 9.—The St. Louis Browns shellacked Cleveland, 6 to 0, today behind the two-hit pitching of towering Bob Muncrief, dropping the Indians to seventh place.

George McQuinn poled a homer over League Park's right-field wall in the second inning of the series opener to score Vernon Stephens and Mike Chartak ahead of him and start Jim Bagby, the Tirbe's mound ace, to the showers.

Bagby, charged with his third consecutive setback after running up a record of 5 and 1, stayed around just long enough to permit another run in the third on a walk to Don Gutteridge, a fielder's choice, and singles by Chet Laabs and Stephens. Bagby hit Chartak on the leg, filling the bases and Vernon Kennedy came in to walk McQuinn for the fifth Brownie run. Stephens then tallied on a fly.

Great Lakes Blanks Cubs On 1 Hit, 4-0

By the Associated Press

Great Lakes, Ill., June 9.—Two former American League pitchers, Bob Harris of the Philadelphia Athletics and Tom Ferrick of the Cleveland Indians, collaborated on a one-hit performance today to give the undefeated Great Lake Naval Training Station baseball team a 4-to-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs of the National League.

It was the Bluejackets' thirteenth consecutive win and their second of the season over the Cubs.

The only Cub hit was a double by Len Merullo in the sixth inning off Harris, who was taken out for a pinch hitter in the same inning.

Johnny Mize, former New York Giant first baseman, got two hits for Great Lakes and scored two of the Navy's runs. Another Great Lakes run resulted when Chester Hadjuk, former Chicago White Sox player, stole home with the bases loaded in the sixth after Bill Lee already had forced in a run by walking Pinch-Hitter Leo Nonnenkamp.

Clyde McCullough, Cub catcher who fractured an ankle in the season's opening game, was behind the plate for the first six innings, testing his ankle for possible return to regular duty.

Leo Durocher Again to Play At Shortstop for Dodgers

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 9.—The shortstop position, the Achilles heel of the Brooklyn Dodgers this season, will be filled with experience, if not youth, starting in tomorrow's game against the Boston Braves.

DUROCHER

Skipper Leo Durocher, who was signed to a player-manager contract this year but who to date has done all managing and no playing, will fill the short field spot in person, thus leaving Arky Vaughan free to play third base. Billy Herman will remain at second.

Shortstop has been a big headache for the Dodgers all season, and events on the recent road trip show it was imperative that something must be done. Boyd Bartley, picked right off the University of Illinois campus, failed to meet the requirements. Vaughan has been forced to play the position most of the season.

Durocher, 38, has been working out regularly and considers himself ready to take over.

GENIAL Johnnie Walker certainly gets around. And everywhere he goes, he makes a host of friends. For Johnnie Walker is a distinctive scotch—scotch at its smooth, mellow best! Won't you step along with Johnnie Walker?

Chisox Win Twilight Game From Detroit

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 9.—The Chicago White Sox climbed into the American League's first division—a tie for fourth place with the Detroit Tigers—by defeating Detroit, 3 to 1, in the opener tonight of a five-game series.

Before 14,793 spectators, largest turnout in two years of twilight game experimentation at Briggs Stadium, the Sox got three unearned runs in the first inning off Southpaw Hal Newhouser. One scored on Rudy York's muff of an easy pop fly and Luke Appling doubled the other two across.

After giving up the lone Tiger run in the first on Roger Cramer's triple and Dick Wakefield's single, Johnny Humphries settled down to his fourth victory although he needed help in the ninth. Joe Haynes, who replaced him, developed a streak of wildness but Rookie Gordon Maltzberger put out the fire.

Newhouser, yielding seven hits, suffered his third defeat against three victories. Detroit got six safeties.

Orioles Battle 18 Innings to 0-0 Tie With Red Wings

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 9.—Weather conditions forced calling of the International League baseball game between Rochester and Baltimore tonight after the teams had battled through 18 scoreless innings.

The game was the twilight inaugural of a scheduled double-header, and the second game was postponed.

Ira Hutchinson for Rochester and Steve Gromek for Baltimore each went the full 18 innings, allowing 13 and 15 hits, respectively, before the game was called. Thirteen sacrifices were pulled in the marathon by the two clubs in an effort to shove across the winning run.

Armstrong-Angott Fight Rated Toss-Up

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, June 9.—The bookies are quoting 6 to 5-and-pick-'em on Friday's Henry Armstrong-Sammy Angott fight. . . . and that "pick-'em" gag has the wise guys walking around in circles—it's that close. . . . incidentally, this'll be the Hammer's 146th fight and Sammy's eighty-fifth. . .

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT—DEPT.—Those two Madison Square Garden "orphans"—the six-day bike races and the New York Hockey Americans—may lead to a big new mid-town sports arena to buck the Garden after the war. . . . the word is some of the boys are planning to build the place not far from Broadway. . . . and don't be surprised if Red Dutton, who was the Amerks coach, and Harry Mendel, who beat the drums for the bikers, are hot-shots in the outfit. . . . 'Tis said that no matter where else Tony Galento may take his comeback, it'll never land in Pennsylvania or New York. . . . quite a story, too. . . .

DIS-A AND DAT-A—Hard Tack, Seabiscuit's daddy, has been contributed to the Army Remount Service by Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable. . . . He'll stand at the Fort Reno (Okla.) Military Depot. . . . Biggest infield argument in the National League right now is whether the Reds' Lonnie Frey or the Dodgers' Billy Herman is the best second sacker in the loop. . . . It's a photo. . . . The featherweight fuming may wind up by giving Mike Jacobs his first real rassle in many a day for the spot at the head of the promotional parade. . . . Willie Pep just walked off and took the Sal Bartolo fight in Boston and now is planning to do the same with another bout in Hartford. . . . Well, Mike likes a good fight, too. . . .

IT'S MURDER, HE SAYS!—Luis Firpo writes Jack Dempsey with a proposition for a War Relief fight here between his pupil, Abel Cestac, and a U. S. fighter sponsored by the Ol' Mauler, to commemorate the twentieth anniversary of their thriller this summer. . . . Cestac's wallop is so terrific, says the Old Wild Bull, that the Argentinian Boxing Federation has to change the rules whenever he fights. . . . Say, is it safe to let a guy like that loose? . . .

HAY-STOKER STUFF—The Whirlaway-Alsab-Count Fleet match-race fireworks aren't likely to be set off before this fall . . . Is Pimlico gonna get it? . . . The Empire City meeting will be shifted to Jamaica definitely . . . New York betting for the first 51 days of the season is a gaudy $62,609,511 . . . Incidentally, Whirly's kid sister, Whirlette, has been showing a lot of zip in morning workouts, but she's skittish as a dog with a tin can tied to his tail . . .

BEEF ON THE HIP—One of the Dodgers' official "family" (name, naturally, withheld) insists the biggest trouble with the Bums is the way Leo Durocher handles his pitchers . . . Lippy's using mostly starters for relief, the guy explained, so when it comes their turn to start they're not sharp . . . could be.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LENA GIRL, $24.80, $8.20, $8.00; SPIKERY, $10.40, $8.00; GALLANT SARD, $63.80.

LENA GIRL improved position gradually, came to outside of SPIKERY to take command and was tiring at end. SPIKERY outran HASTY ACTION to take wide lead and weakened through stretch. GALLANT SARD came willingly in closing stages. HASTY ACTION was strongly handled early and tired. STORMCOCK had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:53. Off at 1:55. Winner, Miss L. Robinson's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRETTY LADY, $20.80, $9.80, $8.40; NEON LIGHT, $14.40, $7.60; BOB JUNIOR, $7.40.

PRETTY LADY, startled wide by CHANCER at first turn, took command over LAUGH AND PLAY, drew out, but had to be kept to pressure to last. NEON LIGHT improved position on backstretch and came boldly in stretch run. BOB JUNIOR was allowed to race on own courage early, came to inside when placed to drive and closed with good energy. SAINT FYREWICK lost ground. LAUGH AND PLAY ran out at far turn.

Daily Double, LENA GIRL and PRETTY LADY, Paid $167.20

THIRD RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:23. Off at 2:23½. Winner, E. P. Minor's b. f. (3) by Chance Shot—Evening. Trained by T. Henderson. Value to winner, $215; second, $50; third, $25; fourth, $10. Time, 1:30.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOM DE PLUME, $24.20, $9.60, $5.20; INDIGNATION, $10.60, $6.20; OOMPH, $4.00.

NOM DE PLUME forced to front leaving backstretch and drew out under good handling. INDIGNATION was slow to begin and closed willingly. OOMPH raced in first flight and showed good effort. ODDREE was shut off badly at turn, came to outside and tired.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:47. Off at 3:48½. Winner, Heloria Stable's ch. f. (3) by Challenger II—Briar Bunny. Trained by Mrs. H. W. Boyle. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:24.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HELORIA, $24.20, $9.80, $3.60; AMPERAGE, $11.60, $4.00; WEATHERITE, $2.80.

HELORIA was sluggish in early stages, came to outside when placed to drive and wore down leaders to win going away. AMPERAGE went to front on outside going to first turn, set good pace and was tiring at close. WEATHERITE went to knees at break, went to contention boldly, but hung after being carried slightly wide by AMPERAGE entering stretch. MAE CASE lacked early speed and came willingly at end, but was in close quarters.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:13. Off at 4:14. Winner, D. H. Tabler's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALLEN CAID, $8.40, $4.40, $2.60; BIG SNEEZE, $5.80, $4.00; J. HAL, $2.80.

ALLEN CAID, allowed to settle in best stride and saving ground early, improved position after half on outside, wore down BIG SNEEZE and was opening rap at end. BIG SNEEZE took command on backstretch, but could not resist winner. J. HAL was held safe. TRUE PILATE was not a serious factor.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 4:39½. Winner, M. B. Goss' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOT MAN, $7.60, $3.80, $2.20; MR. JIM, $3.00, $2.20; FRED'S FIRST, $2.40.

HOT MAN lost ground early, went to contention boldly, was shaken up and drew out gradually in final test. MR. JIM went to front early, set good pace, but could not stay with winner while under pressure. FRED'S FIRST was in first flight and showed good effort. FIELD OF GOLD was not a serious factor.

Four Horses Finish Only Inches Apart

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Charles Town, W. Va., June 9.—Four noses stretched for the wire at the finish of the Sherry Purse today and the right one proved to be that of the Heloria Stable's Heloria, owned and trained by Mrs. H. W. Boyle. The 3-year-old daughter of Challenger II—Briar Bunny closed a neck in advance of D. L. Bruner's Amperage with the latter a head in front of Mrs. G. O. Russell's Weatherite. Tommy Rodrock's Mae Case was in the thick of the finish struggle. Two others competed in this thrilling test of 6½ furlongs.

The two outsiders in the betting were first and second. Heloria, who was scoring her maiden victory, returned a mutuel of $24.20 to her scattered backers. She was clocked in 1:24 over a muddy track. A fair Wednesday crowd turned out and betting was steady.

After the feature, Jockey Grant took a punch at Jockey Carson Kirk who rode Amperage. The stewards then fined Grant $50 for disorderly conduct.

Weatherite, the favorite, had poor racing luck. The Prince of Wales mare stumbled leaving the gate and spotted her opposition many lengths. Amperage went to the front at once and drew out going into the back stretch. Royal Echo and Highformation were close but both faded after 3 furlongs. Weatherite, urged by Jockey Patsy Grant, then swung past horses to reach contention on the outside.

Entering the stretch, Weatherite got abreast of Amperage and the latter carried her slightly wide. In the final drive, Amperage and Weatherite ding-donged along. Mae Case came to the inside and Heloria to the outside. It was anybody's race and in the closing strides it was Heloria that packed the necessary punch.

Millers-Marines Meet In Departmental Game

A rained out game between the Miller Furniture Co. and the Headquarters Marine Corps in the Departmental Baseball League will be played this afternoon on the South Ellipse Field at 5:30. Batteries for the Marines will be the Duplinsky brothers, with Joe Wells, former Georgetown U. star pitching for the Millers, and Jimmy Schwab catching.

Willard Marshall, who played centerfield for the New York Giants will patrol that spot for the Marines.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

The nearest thing to twilight racing ever attempted in Maryland is scheduled at the Hagerstown 10-day meeting, beginning on July 6. The post time for the first race will be 3:30 p. m. This hour was chosen in order to best fit in with the defense work in the Hub City. The city is buzzing with activity these days and there is no reason the meeting should not be successful. The racing plant is in the city and within easy walking distance from the main drag. George Palmer will do the starting at the Garden Gate meeting and has announced that schooling at the New Jersey track will begin on June 20. He is the man who will succeed James Milton, when the veteran Maryland starter decides to retire. Harold Bester, general manager of Hagerstown, was a visitor here yesterday. He just returned from Wheeling, where he said horsemen were showing a keen interest in his meeting. The Hub City course also will draw the cream of the horses racing at Charles Town. The stewards have their eyes glued on that first turn these days and boys have been warned against rough riding there or any place for that matter. This week's racing is for the National War Fund. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—ROLLS ROUGH will like the track and gets my call. HALF INCH goes well at 4½ furlongs. RAWSON had speed once.

Second race — GINGER MAN could be the right one in this rather open affair. CHAT HOPKINS was a recent winner and belongs close. NOM DE PLUME will be a threat if sent back.

Third race—TANTRUM will like the off track and deserves the call over these. WHIP SNAKE will take care of the place. HIGH CLIQUE for the minor award.

Fourth race — SALLY LUNN closed willingly last out and will be hard to beat in this field. AMPLIFY and LADY MASCARA for the place and show.

Fifth race — STADIUM won a shorter race last out and will be hard to beat in this company. VANTRYST and ALICE DODGE to fill out the money bracket.

Sixth race—CHARLENE breaks off the rail and I'm going to string along. VENDOR'S LIEN has five in a row in the books and is the one to beat. FLYING JUNIOR for the show end.

Seventh race — PACIFIER has won two here and should take another. LIGHT TIDE and TACARO LILY will battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Eighth race—FIVE-O-FOUR is ready for the question and this looks like the right spot. LOVE MARK and SIR REG to account for the other cash positions.

Best bet—STADIUM.

Eastern, Wilson Resume Series Today

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 9.—Baseball no longer need apologize for its existence, or feel embarrassed because it ties up a little American manpower, after that $123,850,000 war bond show here yesterday.

It was a sample of the game's tremendous hold on the country.

CONSIDINE

The industrialists who did the bidding were supposed to do it with an eye to their companies' previous and future war bond commitments. And yet they became fans, pure and simple, when the players were paraded before them by Auctioneers Jimmy Walker, Red Barber, Mel Allen and barrel chested Carl Waite, former Georgetown football player.

The players who get the cheers in the ballyards, brought the biggest bids. It wasn't a coincidence that the Dodger players brought more than the Yanks and Giants. Brooklyn people feel as much more strongly about their ball players as the higher bidding indicated. When the spokesman for a group of Brooklyn industrialists was asked which player his group wanted—after bidding $11,250,000—he stood up and cried "The people's cherce—Dixie Walker!"

At the end of the incredible show, Jimmy Walker had a dramatic catch in his voice as he bemoaned a miserable bid of $2,500,000 for Carl Hubbell. "I cannot leave this dais on this drab note," he told the audience. "Give me a fitting bid for this man who'll be remembered as long as baseball is played. And go back to your board of directors and say, proudly, if you've overstepped your commitment, that you overstepped it because you were bidding on the one and only Carl Hubbell." Hub was knocked down for three million dollars.

Equally touching was the auction of Buck Newsom, who appeared to be going, going, going for a crummy $2,700,000 when Elsie, a cow who works for Bordens, saved Newsom from a lifetime of embarrassment (and explanations that Jimmy Walker didn't hear a thirty-million-dollar bid) by buying him for $3,775,000. There were more zeros around Ma Waldorf's boarding house that afternoon than there are in Tokyo—but the $123,850,000 raised by the ball players will do much to reduce the number of Zeros everywhere.

We don't know what Buster Maynard, the Giant outfielder, is ever going to tell his granchildren. He was knocked down for only $300,000. It'll probably be one of those family ghosts-in-a-closet, never mentioned but always present. The grandchildren probably won't be tapped for bones by Sigma Alpha Epsilon. They'll have to take Kappa Alpha.

There were a thousand incredulous whistles, and intakes of breath, as the bidding rose to dizzy heights. And some laughs. Horace Stoneham broke out into a cold sweat when the bidding for one of his $7500 ball players got up around the two-million-dollar mark. "I'm glad this didn't happen to my players in February—around contract-talking time," he wheezed.

A player who is hitting .123, but fielding about twice as much, brought $1,750,000—causing a fan at our table to crack, "That's a disgrace to money." There was a rumor, also, that a tight-fisted buyer was trying to purchase Lefty Gomez, as a hitter—because the rules of this rally said that, in addition to the original purchase price, the buyer must purchase additional bonds worth $2500, $5000, $7500 and $10,000 for every single, double, triple and home run his guy makes between June 15 and the end of the baseball season. At that rate, and using Gomez as the hitter, the Government would wind up owing Gomez's purchaser money.

There was deep sentiment expressed at the rally, too. Old Fred Fitzsimmons, whose career supposedly ended when he was hit by a line drive in the 1941 series between the Yanks and Dodgers, wasn't included among the 36 stars on the Waldorf ballroom's stage. But he wasn't forgotten. He had beaten Pittsburgh the night before, 5-1, to win the 216th game of his big league career. John Cashmore, borough president of Brooklyn, called from the floor and "bought" Fitz, as an added starter, for three million dollars.

In all, it was a great show—a tribute to baseball and the industriousness of the New York and Brooklyn chapters of the Baseball Writers of America. It could be done in every city in the major and minor leagues—perhaps not as overpoweringly as here but well enough to provide an endless stream of tools for our boys abroad. Those ball players at the Waldorf did their country a lot more good than they could in uniform, that's certain.

Game Halted Yesterday By Weather

Yesterday's game, involving Eastern and Wilson in the second of the three-game series for the Interhigh Baseball Championship, was postponed because of weather until 4 p. m. today at Eastern Stadium.

Hardy L. Pearce, director of interhigh athletics, announced that if the game is postponed again today it would be played tomorrow and if again postponed, would be held Saturday. The third game, if necessary, will be played Monday on a neutral field.

Eastern, whih scored an 11-5 victory Monday in the opener of the three-game set-to, needs only a victory today to become a champion for the first time since 1938.

Coach Cliff Netherton is expected to start one of his right-handed duo, Stuart Brown or Josh Dorsey, gambling in hopes of getting by to give his southpaw ace, Jack Ogle, a complete rest in an effort to have him ready in the event a third—and title deciding—game is necessary. Ogle, who has been attracting big league scouts, had won nine in a row, six in Interhigh series play, before bowing to Eastern last Monday.

Clint (brother) Speiser, a right-hander, will take the mound for Eastern with Stan Pohutsky, who relieved and hurled five air-tight innings last Monday to become the winning pitcher, in reserve. David Lenarduzzi, ace Eastern hurler, is definitely out of the series with a blistered finger which forced his early retirement against Wilson in the opening game.

Elvira Wins In New Role Over Cowgirl

That the redhead is more deadly than the blonde was proven last night when Mrs. Elvira Snodgrass, an athletic matron from the Tennessee hills, pinned Mae Young, the Oklahoma cowgirl, after 19 minutes of the feature wrestling match before 1200 fans at Turner's Arena.

Elvira, frequently billed as the heroine of the piece, was cast as "the other woman" last night, and a very convincing act she staged—kicking Mae when her back was turned, biting, pulling hair and misbehaving in general.

Mae, as blonde as the drug store would permit, was a hefty brunette when she last appeared here. Forfeiting some 12 pounds to the hillbilly, she had much the worst of it throughout. Finally, Elvira got a crotch hold, slammed Miss Young and pinned her with a body press to end the match.

The Red Czar, a ridiculous fat man with a red kimona and a mask who sometimes performs under the name of Tony Felice, won a flukey semifinal from Milo Steinborn in 26 minutes. Steinborn had just pulled the Czar inside the ropes with a bear hug when a zealous fan unhooked Tony's toes from the ropes to permit the hood fellow to fall on Steinborn with the winning press.

Bearded Ben Morgan, a newcomer, worked 24 futile minutes against Babe Sharkey until the referee finally got tired and ruled it no contest when both men failed to heed his pleas for order. They were fighting out in the crowd, so the arbiter called a halt.

Abe Yourist and George Macricostas worked to a rough draw in half an hour, and Dr. John Bonica, a full-fledged medico, defeated John Melas with a crotch hold and body press in a rought opener.

OSCAR ELDER.

Shannon Cramer, Ex-All-High Star, Is Annapolis Grad

Shannon D. Cramer, jr., former All-High tackle at Central High, yesterday was graduated from the Naval Academy and commissioned an ensign in the United States Navy.

Shannon, while at Central, played for three years under Coach Hardy Pearce, now director of athletics in the public high schools, and won all-high recognition on virtually every team chosen.

Still Shooting 70's

WIFFY COX

Former Kenwood and Congressional Golf Pro Puts New Spirit in Club After 3 Months on Job

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

The fine hand of Wiffy Cox can be seen in reading between the lines of the Hempstead (N. Y.) Golf Club's monthly bulletin, which pictures the club as a progressive organization such as Washington's Congressional Country Club before the Army took over and Wiffy returned to his New York connections.

Cox has been at Hempstead nearly three months and is apparently a fixture.

Playing to Own Par

Wiffy has sold members on playing to their own par, such as the system he introduced at Congressional. He encourages the Class A golfers to be content with a 76 over the par 73 course, the Class B handicapped players to shoot for an 85, the Class C to a 94 and the Class D to a 103. Wiffy feels there is too much stress on regulation par for the average golfer to enjoy his game.

Cox has his own page for instructions in the weekly bulletin and he was the principal speaker at a luncheon of the women's committee, which included a concert violinist on the program. In typical Cox fashion, Wiffy wrote to members saying he was perfectly satisfied with everything except the way the members sold their club to outsiders, and he suggested an immediate campaign.

The club is planning a Member-guest Invitation Tournament next month with a $10 per team entrance fee. The club's publicity has been much better of late, and that could be for no other reason that Cox is one of the best liked pros in the business by the sports writers.

Cox hasn't neglected his golf, either. Wiffy and a club member set a new best ball mark over the long course with a 63 and Wiffy was the low scorer in an Army Relief match for the Red Cross over another course with a 70, just one stroke over the course record. Cox will meet his former fellow New York pros in a series of team matches, Willie Klein, Charlie Mayo and Jack Mallon.

Course Ideally Located

The Hempsted course is ideally located from a transportation angle, which helps. The Long Island Rarilroad stop is just around the corner, the town of Hempstead is just a 10-minute walk and no less than five bus lines run nearby, including one which stops at the door.

The Metropolitan P. G. A. members, who remember Cox as one of their most progressive presidents when Wiffy was pro at the old Dyker Beach course, again asked him to take the helm, but the former sailor refused, as he had served as Middle Atlantic P. G. A. president here for the past three years.

Wiffy won the Maryland and District Open championships here last year and it is hoped that should these tournaments be played this year he will return for a defense of his titles. Cox promised to return for good after the war, and we hope Hempstead doesn't take too firm a hold.

Two Banished As Red Sox Beat Nats, 3-2

one, aside from the fact the Nats outhit 'em, 8 to 6. In the ninth inning, when the Nats had the tying run on base, Hughson was lifted out of serious trouble at the very moment when Stan Spence seemed to have whacked an extra-base hit down the first base line. Lupien made a one-hand stab of the scorching grounder, and shook off his amazement in time to step on first and double up Case going into second to end the ball game.

Kampouris Homers

Alex Kampouris made a brave bid to put the Nats back in the game in the eighth inning. He led off with a home run far over the left-field wall, his first homer of the season, to cut the Sox lead to 3 to 2, but if any rally was in prospect the innards fell out of it when Pipgras called that third strike on Vernon we have been talking about.

Bob Johnson failed the Nats in the seventh, when they came up with their first run. Hughson suddenly lost control and with one out walked Sullivan and Pinch-hitter Sherrard Robertson. Case beat out a hit to Newsome, to fill the bases, and Spence got one run home with a fly to left.

Hughson later walked Priddy, to refill the bases, and then he bore down magnificently after Johnson got him in a hole with a 3—0 count. Hughson got two strikes across the plate and then lured big Bob into hitting a soft grounder to shortstop.

Rippy Plays Washington Club In 9 Under Par, 33-29, 62

Middle-Atlantic Amateur Titlist Never Out of Fairway in Great Round of Golf

A little matter of winter rules kept Middle Atlantic Amateur Golf Champion Claude Rippy from breaking the course record by four strokes yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club as he negotiated the rain-soaked layout in 62 strokes, nine under par.

Rippy holed every putt but his score cannot go into the official books as he took advantage of winter rules on several occasions to improve his lie. Rippy's score was four strokes better than the official course record—66—held jointly by Pro Dave Thomson, Maurice McCarthy, Georgetown's former intercollegiate champion, and T. Turner Smith, but was a stroke over Al Houghton's 61, made several years ago despite a ball out of bounds. Houghton's mark was also unofficial.

RIPPY

Playing in a twosome with Charles M. De Lashmutt just an hour after a heavy rain, Rippy went out in 33 strokes, despite a bogey four on the ninth hole, and then ripped six strokes off par on the back nine with a 29, just missing a 28 when his approach shot on the eighteenth hole rolled over the cup and stopped inches away. His card:

Par: Out	434	544	443	—35
Rippy: Out	434	434	344	—33
Par: In	434	435	444	—35—70
Rippy: In	334	323	344	—29—62

Rippy never left the fairway and missed only three greens in regulation figures: the first where he chipped within three feet and dropped the putt for a par, the ninth, where he was short, chipped three feet past the hole and missed the putt coming back for his only over-par hole, and the eighteenth where he was barely short and just missed chipping into the cup. None of his birdie putts was over 8 feet as continually wrapped accurate iron shots around the pins.

Rippy's hottest streak was between the thirteenth and sixteenth on the back nine when the former Carolinian played four tough golf holes in five under par. He knocked in a 6-foot birdie putt on the far four thirteenth; smacked a spoon shot within 8 feet of the pin on the fourteenth and dropped his putt for a deuce; used a brassie off the tee on the par five fifteenth and blasted a spoon within 3 feet of the pin, dropping th eputt for an eagle, and followed with a 5-foot birdie putt on the par four sixteenth.

Rippy's 29 on the back nine was the first time the 3102-yard nine has ever been played in less than 30 strokes.

Young WAVE's Taxicab Death Investigated

Plans for an inquest into the death of Annie Stewart, 23, seaman second class, in the WAVES, were being made last night as authorities continued an investigation to learn whether she fell or jumped from a moving taxicab Tuesday night.

Naval intelligence officers, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, police traffic officials and the homicide squad were cooperating in the probe.

Miss Stewart was bound for the WAVES quarters on Nebraska Avenue from the Naval clinic, where she had undergone a minor eye operation. The cab was traveling on Rock Creek Parkway about 200 feet from Massachusetts Avenue, when the door opened and she fell to the roadway, it was said.

The cab driver, Granley E. Burch, 44, of 1508 Twenty-third Street Southeast, told police he slammed on his brakes and ran to the woman. She was unconscious, he said.

An Army brigadier general, driving behind Burch, witnessed the incident and suggested to Burch he wait for an ambulance rather than take the woman to a hospital in his cab, police were told. Police were trying to locate the general last night.

Miss Stewart, however, was taken to Emergency Hospital in a Third Precinct scout car. Preliminary examination disclosed she suffered a fractured skull.

Later she was taken to the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., where she died at 2 a. m.

A native of Elaine, Ark., Miss Stewart came to Washington on May 15. She had been stationed at the Naval Receiving Station at Anacostia.

Investigators were at a loss for an explanation of how she could have accidentally fallen from the cab. Also, they said, no facts have been uncovered to substantiate a theory that she jumped.

5 Nazi Prisoners Escape in Texas

Dallas, June 9 (AP).—Five German prisoners of war escaped early today from North Camp Hood, Tex., the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed.

E. C. Wenig, assistant agent in charge, said the men got away soon after midnight. Army and civilian agencies were searching for them.

8000 WAVES To Fill Men's Navy Jobs Here

The Navy plans to have 8000 WAVES on duty here a year from now. About 850 of the WAVES will be used to fill Civil Service jobs for which no qalified civilians are available. Moreover, the Coast Guard and Marines—both Navy units—will bring hundreds of SPARS and lady Marines here. On May 1 the Navy had 2026 WAVES and 5257 enlisted men here doing clerical work The enlisted men will be moved out gradually and a year from now the number is expected to be reduced to 1500. This is in line with the recent recommendations on the Lyndon Johnson subcommittee of the House Naval Affairs Committee. Rear Admiral L. E. Denfeld of the Burea of Naval Personnel, also revealed to the Senate Appropriations Committee that the Marines have 1422 enlisted men here and that 459 will be replaced by women Marines by December 31.

This one is being told on Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator: One of his admirers, for a time, was a very young newspaper carrier boy who serves the general's home. The lad talked of him proudly to his chums as "my general." Recently the boy began to hear from his buddies of three- and four-star generals and this chilled his friendship for "my general."

Eying General Fleming's shoulder insignia as he collected for the papers the other day, the boy observed commiseratingly:

"Still only two stars? No promotion? Too bad!"

Even if the McKellar bill passes the Senate, it's du eto die in the House Civil Service Committee. It faces a veto if it unexpectedly gets out of Congress. . . . By rejiggering available funds, enough has been located to meet Federal payrolls beyond June 15. By that time the urgent deficiency bill is expected to be passed by Congress and a score of agencies will have sufficient funds to carry them through June 30. Postoffice, Censorship and many new war agencies already have drawn on the President's private funds to meet their payrolls.

Members of thet Brotherhood of Sensible Men are insisting on some sort of a ceremony on June 15, when they officially shed their high collars and heavy coats for cool and comfortable slack suits. Well, ceremonies are being arranged for the sensible brethren and details will be revealed here. Tuesday is the day of the revolution and if you have any good ideas how it should be observed, let us know.

Our dictionary of red-tape language has inspired an OPA official to suggest that it be enlarged to cover "occupational diseases common in the Federal service." This official starts it off with these thoughts:

MEMORANDAITIS—The disease which forces all Government employes to put down on paper, preferably many sheets of paper, all of the related and nonrelated facts of a problem for the sole purpose of filling correspondence boxes and expanding files.

INDECISIONITIS—The disease that gets into the blood of the Government employe not to do today what can be put off indefinately.

CONFERENCITIS—The disease that gets into the blood stream so that no decision can be reached or anything discussed without a conference table surrounded by the man who should make the decision and a various assortment of yes men.

That's a good start on occupational diseases. Now for today's lesson in bureaucratese:

Point up the issue—(means) To expand a 1-page memo to 15 pages.

Operational level—Place where the theory stops and the work begins. (Contributed by Albert D McCoy of WPB.)

Government board—Long, narrow, and wooden.

Pay raise—To some a mirage; to others an oasis.

Research work—Hunting for files.

Office memo—A typewritten statement one reads, initials, forgets to remember, and hands to someone who has seen it before.

Success formula—You have to know the ropes in order to pull the strings.

Uncle Sam is feeling the paper shortage. And it may well result in the cutting down of the Congressional Record and other Government publications. Ansel Wold of the Joint Committee on Printing recently asked for bids on more than 78 million pounds of paper for all Government uses during the next four months. Only a three-month supply could be purchased and it cost 20 per cent more than the last order. Wold estimates the Government will purchase—if it's available—350 million pounds of paper dring the '44 fiscal year. Hundreds of publications have either been eliminated or curtailed and many others are slated to be knocked off soon.

Tie-In Liquor Sales Probe Is Dropped

ABC Board Halts Inquiry Following Denials by 25 District Dealers

By Roger Young
Post Staff Writer

The ABC Board last night said that it had ceased its investigation into reported tie-in sales of whiskey and brandies or wines demanded of retail liquor dealers by wholesalers, because reports from 15 retailers and 10 wholesalers denied that such sales had been "forced."

However, all of the letters from the retailers stated that wholesalers would "suggest" other kinds of liquor when orders were taken, and all of the wholesalers denied that other products were even suggested. ABC Board members Agnes K. Mason and William Meredith said they had noticed this discrepancy in the report, but that there was no way further to check.

The retail liquor dealers whose reports on such demanded tie-in sales to The Post started the investigation said at the time that few of the wholesalers did any more than suggest—but that the suggestion carried all the weight of a command. Some wholesalers were reported to put it right on the line: buy the sherry or brandy, too, or else no whisky.

The general rule, though, was only to make a mild suggestion that the wholesaler had certain brands he would like to see taken. If a retailer did not choose to take those, he could still get his whisky order—that month. But the next month, so many of the retailers reported, he would find that his quota on the precious bourbon would be reduced to almost nothing.

The A. B. C. Board said that there was nothing it could do to check such a situation.

Most wholesalers, and national liquor and wine associations here agree that there is such a shortage of wines and brandies that forced tie-in measures should be unnecessary. Retailers explained the reported move as an effort of certain wholesalers to take advantage of a sellers' market to unload wines of such inferior quality that the public would otherwise never purchase them.

D. C. Bank Ordered To Pay U.S. $18,000 For Bogus Checks

The National Metropolitan Bank yesterday was ordered to pay the United States Treasury $18,000, a sum lost through the bank's acceptance of 144 forged Government checks during 1936 and 1938.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts at District Court issued the order for payment.

The decision, the second in the past few months, was a result of a Government claim that the bank was liable because the checks cleared to the Treasury through that institution. They originally were presented for payment to the Anacostia Bank, it was said.

All of the checks were forged by James H. Foley, a civil service employe, who committed suicide in New York City in 1938 after the forgeries were discovered, testimony revealed.

3200 of All Races, Creeds Join In Rites for Bishop Freeman

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

More than 3200 persons of varied creeds, races and walks of life yesterday filled the vast Washington Cathedral to mourn at funeral services for the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, who labored to make it verily "a house of prayer for all people."

Diplomats, high-ranking churchmen of all faiths, employes of the departed prelate's household, laymen from the marts of trade—all joined with the bishop's family in the simple Episcopal burial service in the vaulted edifice that is a perpetual monument to his Christian leadership.

In the congregation were Lord Halifax, British Ambassador; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the First World War President, who is buried in a cathedral crypt; Secretary of Labor Francis Perkins; Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican) of Massachusetts; Maj. Edward Kelly, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, and many other noteworthy persons.

The sun, obscured behind dark clouds all day, broke through about 3 o'clock and lit up the stained-glass windows as the funeral procession entered the cathedral throught the north transept.

As the procession reached the steps of St. Mary's Chapel, the casket—draped with a purple and gold-figured pall—was taken from the spot where the body had lain in state, and was borne into the sanctuary of the Great Choir, near the communion rail where the late bishop frequently celebrated the Lord's Supper.

Behind the crucifer came small lads of the Cathedral choir, followed by older singers; diocesan clergy, cathedral canons and visiting bishops, the last-named walking slowly in front of the casket borne by Episcopal clergy, who were the Revs. Reno S. Harp, jr., F. Bland Tucker, Armand T. Eyler, Albert H. Lucas, Charles W. Sheerin and Edward Gabler.

Honorary pallbearers were lay members of the Diocesan Standing Committee and the Cathedral Chapter, and also Charles F. Wilson, diocesan chancellor; H. L. Rust, jr., treasurer; H. R. Singleton, secretary of the diocesan convention; H. P. Blair, chairman, and E. L. Stock, vice president of the diocesan executive council.

Also in the procession were khaki-clad Boy Scouts, Red Cross volunteer workers, representatives of the Cathedral schools, the Washington Federation of Churches, Greek Orthodox churches and the National Polish Catholic Church; the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital and the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

The cortege moved up the aisle of the Great Choir through a lane of floral wreaths adorning the front of the choir stalls, while Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, president of the Diocesan Standing Committee, intoned the opening words of the Episcopal burial ritual:

"I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord . . ."

Seated not far from the casket, upon which reposed the bishop's crozier (staff) were members of his family and other intimates. They included Mrs. Elsie Vigelius Freeman, the widow; William V. Freeman, a son, and his wife and daughter, Jane; Canon and Mrs. Raymond L. Wolven, son-in-law and daughter of the bishop; C. T. Jaffray, the prelate's son-in-law; C. I. and Parker Lattin, the bishop's nephews; Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, widow of the former Pennsylvania bishop, and others.

Following Episcopal tradition, the burial service was simple and brief, with no eulogies.

The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, Bishop Coadjutor of Maryland, former warden of the Cathedral's College of Preachers, read the Apostles' Creed and the Lord's Prayer, and Cannon Smith read the lesson from 1 Corinthians xv:20.

Ten minutes later, as the recessional began, the organ rumbled with the music of the "Dead March" from "Saul" by Handel. Then the body of the great man who was humble in spirit was borne through the "house of prayer for all people" to its final resting place—the crypt of the Chapel of St. Joseph of Arimthea. Private services were held there.

Uniform Gas Ration 'Fines' Suggested

D. C. OPA Office Sends Proposed List of Penalties To Local Boards

Uniform penalties "suggested" to all local ration boards for violations of the pleasure driving ban were announced yesterday by Robert K. Thompson, director, and John L. Laskey, chief attorney of the District Office of Price Administration.

The authorized penalties will supplant the system used hitherto, in which each board imposed punishments as its members saw fit. Suggested penalties are:

Suggested Penalties

A books—minimum, 1 coupon; maximum, 2 coupons. This, the OPA said, is because the revocation of one of the driver's 8 coupons deprives him of two weeks' driving on the basis of 22 miles permitted per week.

B books—minimum, 2 coupons from A book, two weeks' coupons from B book; maximum, 4 coupons from A book, eight weeks' coupons from B book. "Since the number of coupons (in B books) may vary, penalties must be imposed in terms of time rather than coupons," OPA said.

C books—minimum, 2 coupons from A book, two weeks' coupons from C book; maximum, 4 coupons from A book, six weeks' coupons from C book. "A C book is valid for only three months or 13 weeks and the maximum revocation from the C book therefore is reduced to six weeks," OPA explained.

Board's Reaction Sought

The letter from Thompson and Laskey to the 15 local boards said:

"We are transmitting herewith suggestions for uniform penalties. In so doing we are not attempting to usurp the function of the local boards, but are making this suggestion in the interest of uniformity throughout the District. The uniform penalty suggested will no doubt in many instances be less stringent than some boards would like and in other instances will be more severe.

"May we have an expression from you as to your willingness to adopt the suggestions as a matter of general policy?"

Mrs. F. A. Delano Leaves Estate of $230,000 to Family

Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, wife of the chairman of the National Resources Planning Commission, who died May 31, left an estate in excess of $230,000, a petition for probate of her will filed at District Court yesterday revealed.

One-third of the estate was left to her husband and two-thirds she directed to be divided between her two daughters and a granddaughter. The division, the will specified, to be made after $5000 was distributed among her servants.

The larger portion, it was directed, is to be divided into nine parts. The daughters, Mrs. James L. Houghteling of Washington and Mrs. Alexander G. Grant of Dedham, Mass., each to receive four of the nine parts, with Miss Matilda D. Cheney, the granddaughter, receiving one-ninth.

Mrs. Delano died at her summer home at Balmsville, a suburb of Newburg, N. Y. Her estate, the petition showed, is composed of $209,600 worth ot stocks and $18,056 in bonds, Treasury notes and cash.

Tuberculosis Office Changes Are Predicted

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

Now in full control of the District Tuberculosis Association, a former "dissenting minority" laid plans yesterday for a reorganization meeting Tuesday, election of officers, selection of an executive secretary and revision of the by-laws.

The "dissenting minority" has turned into the controlling majority by virtue of a clean sweep of elections of 15 new members to the board of directors at the annual meeting. Of the 15 remaining members of the board who did not come up for election this year, several are known to be supporters of the cause of the dissenters. Their strength, added to the new members will place in control the group who formed a "rump parliament" when the scheduled annual meeting was called off April 7 after internal rows had been aired in public.

The first meeting of the new board is always called a "reorganization meeting" with election of officers the first item of business. Since the rump parliament protested domination of the association by the Health Department, through the presidency of Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody of the District Health Department, it is anticipated the reorganization meeting will seek a change in officers.

Prior to the annual meeting present officers had selected a candidate for executive secretary to replace Harald H. Lund, whose resignation drew attention to the association's troubles.

The Post learned yesterday the candidate, an executive secretary of a tuberculosis association in Pennsylvania, had withdrawn his name for personal reasons. Two or three names of other candidates will be presented to the new board, which will make its own decision. Edward W. Persons of the War Department "rump parliament" chairman said yesterday board members were "intensely interested" in selection of the new secretary and in revision of by-laws to provide a more democratic procedure.

It was learned members of the board would make no effort to return Lund as executive secretary, although the "rump parliament" had adopted a resolution commending him on his work.

The rump parliament's candidates, nine of whom were nominated from the floor, ejected Tuesday were:

For a term expiring in 1944: The Rev. Francis McPeek of Washington Federation of Churches.

For terms expiring in 1945: Dr. Irving Winik, George Washington University instructor; Dr. K. Albert Harden, Freedmen's Hospital; Dean Ransom, Howard University Law School; Lieut. Paul D. Guernsey, U. S. Army.

For terms expiring in 1946: Jacob Halper, attorney; Samuel Kudish, War Production Board; Louis Lautier, personnel division, War Department; Donald C. Dow, chairman of the Educational Committee of the Central Labor Union, reelected; Dr. John W. Lawlah, dean of medicine, Howard University; Dr. Nolan Owens, pediatrician; Ronald H. Vine, attorney; Paul D. Sleeper, manager Aetna Life Insurance Co.; Brig. Gen. Frank T Hines, administrator of Veterans' Affairs, and Persons.

Post Concerts

Salzedo Unit Unique in Music Circles

One of the most unusual combinations of musical instruments on the concert stage will be heard at The Post-sponsored Starlight Concert series on Saturday and Sunday, July 10 and 11, when the Salzedo Concert Ensemble comes to play at beautiful Meridian Hill Park.

This ensemble, composed of two harps, a cello and a flute, takes its name from the founder, Carlos Salzedo, called by music critics the foremost harpist in the world today. Dr. Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, said of him, "I do not think there is a man living today who is a greater exponent of the harp than Salzedo."

The second harp is played by Marjorie Call Salzedo, his lovely and gifted wife, who has appeared in hundreds of joint recitals with her husband throughout the country. Ruth Freeman, talented young American flutist, and Ana Frittell, brilliant American-Russian cellist, complete the ensemble.

The opening concerts of The Post Starlight Series, on June 26 and 27, will have Albert Spalding as performing artist. Tickets may be obtained at the Cappel Concert Bureau, in Ballard's, 1340 G Street, and reservations for season tickets may be made through The Post Starlight Concerts, in care of The Washington Post, 1337 E Street.

Made possible through the cooperation of the National Capital Parks Service, the concerts are under the management of C. C. Cappel.

59,001 Home Units Built; More Needed

193,000 Persons Aided in District Since Influx of Workers in 1940

By Adele Bernstein
Post Staff Writer

A total of 59,001 newly-built accommodations for families and single persons have been constructed in Washington in the three-year period from April 1, 1940, through April of this year, figures compiled from various Government agencies disclosed yesterday.

This would mean that since the spring of 1940, when the Nation's Capital first began to experience the influx of workers from all parts of the country approximately 193,000 people have found living quarters for themselves and their families.

This, as one agency official pointed out, is "a sizeable hunk of homes," although not by any means the final effort by Government and private builders to bring the acute housing problem here to a satisfactory solution.

Private Money Active

Statistical breakdowns, which are ordinarily skipped over, will undoubtedly make "fascinating reading" for house-conscious Washingtonians, the spokesman said.

The 59,001 figure represents every kind of new home construction possible in the years just preceding and following the outbreak of war. The one exception is trailers built to serve exclusively as "carry overs" for families waiting to move into new living quarters.

In more or less chronological order, 31,988 homes (in apartment buildings or small houses) were built by private builders and started in 1940 and 1941, before the priorities system went into effect.

Priority Program

Private builders then built another 15,262 homes, this time under the war housing program and with materials made available under WPB's system of priorities on critical materials, which went into effect in April, 1942.

At the same time, war housing became a concern of the Government, thousands of warworkers coming into the Capital in increasing numbers and overtaxing the available living space. Since a large number of these workers were in the low-income group, the Government, through the various branches which now make up the National Housing Agency, began building with public funds homes which would accommodate workers at low rentals. Many of these projects were of permanent construction, but more recently temporary building is the rule because of shortage of critical materials. Also many structures would not be absorbed by the community after the war. Thus, the Government supplied money to build and complete thus far a total of 6080 homes for families in Washington.

However, the situation was still unsolved for the thousands of single persons who came here to work in the Federal agencies. For these, too, Government money has built 5671 dwelling accommodations.

Homes For Warworkers. . . . . .

The Government will expect to build homes for warworkers who have not yet been adequately accommodated. This programming will be based on figures supplied by the War Manpower Commission and a survey by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showing how many essential workers here are either living under intolerable conditions or have not yet found living quarters of any kind, other than day to day accommodations.

Goernment officials said this building program will contribute little to improve the tragic lot of thousands who are not engaged in war work and who are confined to miserable slums where disease and delinquency undermine their health and morale.

The National Housing Agency, which does this programming for all critical war areas throughout the country, has ruled that all war housing must be reserved for essential warworkers only.

For others no relief is in sight until the war emergency has passed. The NHA does say the Government has been forced into this course by war demands, but its present program is by no means an index to postwar housing, it was said. Once critical materials are released from the tools of war, programs of slum clearance like that undertaken by the Alley Dwelling Authority, can again go into force to raise living standards of all, instead of a portion, of the residents in the Capital.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Readers Rally to Minerva's Support, in Crying Shame on Low-Caliber Radio Programs Directed At Housewives During the Day; Crusade Urged

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As one of your constant readers, I take pen in hand to express strong approval of Minerva's letter, published June 4. Bravo and three cheers, say I, for her outline of the ideal radio hour for the housewife audience. I agree wholeheartedly both with her disdainful estimate of the low-caliber "entertainment" now being directed at housewives by Washington's six radio stations; and with her sound suggestions for a more adult type of woman's program.

It is certainly true that the master-minds of radio seem to believe that most housewives are morons, if we may judge by the trash they send out to them on the air waves. But it seems to me that this is an aspersion that works both ways. If the products advertised on these lowbrow programs must be peddled to feeble-minded women,—via the medium of "soap opera" and wheedling "commercials,"—then it must mean that these products are inferior and unable to stand the scrutiny of intelligent buyers. So, purely from a business standpoint, sponsors should do something about improving daytime radio programs.

I believe the organization known as "The Women's Institute of Audience Reactions," at 9 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City, would be interested in Minerva's letter; and Minerva might be interested in joining the organization. There are no dues or admission charges. Agnes McGrew is director of this group, the purpose of which, I understand, is to sound out the public,—especially women,—as to what they enjoy in the way of radio and theater amusement; and to encourage them to pass on constructive criticism of what they see and hear, at the movies, over the radio, etc., so that more people may get the kind of entertainment they want. Intelligent women are needed by a progressive organization like the W. I. A. R., and if Minerva and other Washington women who share her sentiments would band together to make their influence felt, the local radio stations might yield to their demands for higher-type daytime programs. Sincerely, R. E. A.

Good Radio Fare Would Ease Long Convalescence

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In her letter published June 4, Minerva voiced a demand that all of us should have made long ago, namely: Just one hour of intelligent radio entertainment during the day. I am due for a long period of convalescence. One cannot read constantly during one's waking hours; and the companionship of adult-type radio programs would be a refreshing "break," during the day. But no intelligent person would think of turning on the radio before 6 o'clock in the evening.

Washington has a large population of older women who have come here to spend the remainder of their days. And for a line on the intellectual level of their interests, just check the books they take out of downtown libraries. They are on the "meaty" side. I would like to second Minerva's request for a 15-minute radio class in Spanish. Our Government is spending money for teachers of Spanish (see Readers Digest for May), and a radio class would extend the scope of this "good neighbor" work,—reaching many who might not be available for instruction otherwise. Can't we bring a little pressure to bear about this? I don't know when a greater opportunity for social service has come radio's way; nor one that would obtain a more grateful and enthusiastic public following, if acted on. Hopefully. M. S.

She Listens to Drivel But Longs for Instruction

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I should like to make some comment on Minerva's letter published June 4, in which she objects to the term "housewife;" and, also, to the low-caliber radio programs offered home-staying women. For some time, I have noticed that women radio speakers,—who give recipes, etc.,—use the term "homemaker." I have no particular objection to the term, "housewife," but I do prefer "homemaker," because it is more accurate.

Some years ago, Emily Post called attention to the fact that advertisers erroneously called upon women buyers to buy things "for the home." Mrs. Post contended, and I think rightly, that you cannot buy anything for your "home," but only for your "house." When we speak of "home," we have reference to an intangible atmosphere created by the family; whereas the house is a material structure within which the "home" is made. I have always felt that while the family as a whole is collectively responsible for creating the atmosphere of "home," it is primarily the obligation and privilege of the wife and mother to set the "tone" in this regard. And when she does so, I think the term "home-maker" rightly describes her, and is an honorable title.

Radio's Great Chance To Build World Peace

As for the caliber of radio programs addressed to homemakers,—I agree with Minerva that they are mostly drivel. But I differ from her in one respect. I listen to such as there is, including the interminable "soap operas," simply because I have no choice;—and having the radio turned on does relieve the monotony of housework. I am one of thousands of homemakers who didn't go to college; who got married soon after high school graduation. I don't regret the step; but I do realize that I lack much knowledge in many fields, and I would appreciate an opportunity to learn by radio. I should like to hear discussions of the history, customs and political beliefs of people in other countries. I believe this would help us to develop that real understanding of other peoples which is necessary to build a lasting world peace.

I would also like a program designed to improve speech;—that is, the enunciation of words. (I don't mean public speaking or grammar). I have been interested in the art of pleasing conversation since school days; and have studied to improve my speech, using Woolbert & Weaver's, "Better Speech" as my textbook. But one really needs a trained teacher and vocal instruction for best results. These suggestions, added to Minerva's, would make a fair start toward a really interesting daytime program for women. But, like her, I have little hope that such worthwhile ideas will ever be used. M. A. M.

Man Says Radio Claptrap Insults Public Intelligence

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Permit an old man of the vintage of Godey's Lady's Book to offer a thought,—in reply to the lady who criticizes the term, "housewife." I grew up with the thought that it was a beautiful, lovable term, applied to ladies who owned or lived in a house,—in contradistinction to others who moved around from one boarding house to another, or who were unmarried and had no fixed abode. My mother was a housewife and so was my wife; and I never knew the title to be other than one of respect and love,—at least, as we were accustomed to use it.

Regarding your correspondent's criticism of the extremely poor quality of daytime radio programs, I fully agree with her. I have my own personal radio in my room, and yet I confess I have not listened through an entire daytime program in more than two years. In fact, I don't turn it on for days, just because of the cheap chatter, silly jokes and super-ego fiddle-faddle with which the announcers and others bombard us. I fully realize that this "entertainment" is paid for by advertisers; and I think it is high time for them to wake up to the intelligence of the American people, and stop insulting it with fifth-rate programs.

No, I am not sore. I just don't care. I am not dependent on the radio for company. But there are many invalids and other home-tied folk who really need this contact with the outside world; and a little criticism might be helpful all around. No offense intended. EMORY.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Have you ever come to the table with a ferocious appetite only to have it squelched by some bad news heard over the radio or by telephone?

If you have, you can appreciate the influences which scolding and acrimonious discussion have upon the children at the table. Strong emotions of any kind, fear, anger, shame, rebellion, inhibit the desire for food and if it is eaten it lies heavily in the stomach.

Yet the habit of scolding children at mealtimes no doubt is as old as the custom of gathering around the table for meals. Children are so vulnerable at that moment. The lure of food is expected to keep them rooted to their chairs even though the impulse to escape is present. They are in a good position to be told all their faults and failings.

The arguments about nice children never coming to the table with dirty hands; or the benefits of getting there on time; these are apt to make the first precious moments at the table so much acid to the children. Then they are expected to fall to with fine appetites and relish all the food set before them.

Just to talk about each spoonful of food and the necessity to clean plates and eat something of everything served, liked or disliked, inspires aversion for all the foods at the table.

Even if the child is not a personal target for the parents, food becomes nauseating when the parents enter into a bickering contest and show by angry words and contemptuous remarks their devotion is just a farce.

It's well, when children become feeding problems, and come to the table with lagging feet and a wry-faced distate for what is served, to listen to the talk at the family table.

Does it consist chiefly of comments upon the childrens' bad manners, or their refusal to eat, or a rehearsal, for father's benefit, of the day's misdeeds?

If parents cannot initiate and sustain a cheerful patter in which the children can join, or a thoughtful discussion to which they would be happy to listen, then turn the radio on and let tuneful melodies spice the meal.

It is not always the food at the table which makes for poor appetites, it is the atmosphere of scolding, quarreling, warning and threats which prevent the child from anticipating this three-times-a-day ceremony with any pleasure.

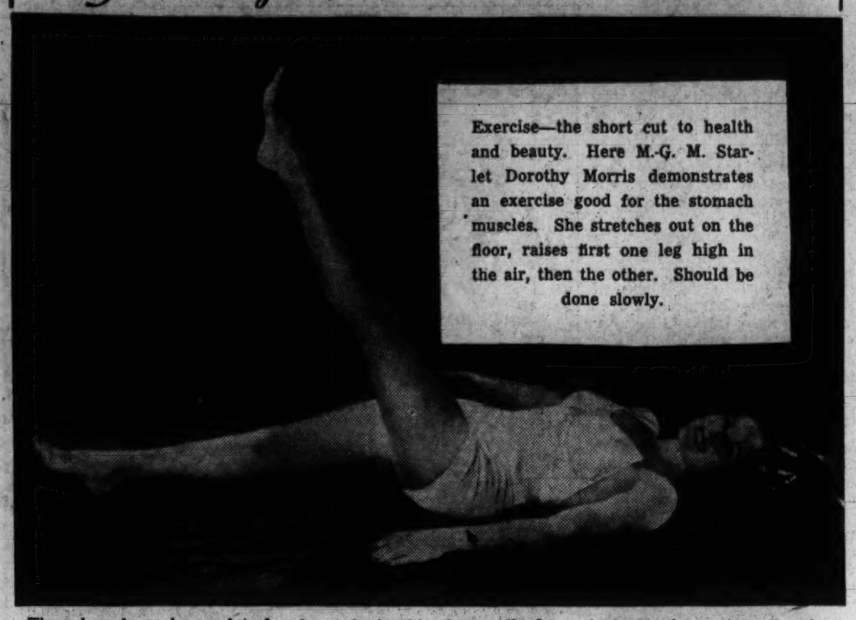
Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain



Exercise—the short cut to health and beauty. Here M.-G. M. Starlet Dorothy Morris demonstrates an exercise good for the stomach muscles. She stretches out on the floor, raises first one leg high in the air, then the other. Should be done slowly.

There has always been a lot of argument as to whether you can lose weight by exercise. If it is the spasmodic workout most of you seem to think sufficient, I say you can't. But if you are in good enough physical condition to take it, one of the bright lights of a musical comedy hit has proved it can be done. "All that is necessary," she says, "is to go in for rug-cutting, skating, bicycling or any other good strenuous exercise for an hour a day."

That is the way Celeste Holm, dancing in "Oklahoma," lost 10 pounds, made her figure over and got to looking like the young girl she really is, rather than the somewhat matronly looking actress I remembered from two years back. She looks so fit and radiantly young that I had to go around and find out what she had been doing.

Well, she did not diet. She lost the entire excess poundage in six weeks' rehearsals, and while her role in this show calls for dancing, she is determined that no matter what kind of play she is in from now on she will always dance for an hour a day. The trick is to "exercise enough to work up a good perspiration. But you feel it's worth working at."

She brought her weight down from 134 pounds to 124, for her height of 5 feet 5½ inches; and she made these measurement changes: Bust, 34 inches and still the same; waist, from 27½ inches to 25 inches, and hips, from 38 inches to 35. She is as svelte as they come.

Not many women are up to quite that much exercise. It would be better for most of you to diet to take off the excess pounds and exercise for 15 to 20 minutes a day. But the upward arm swinging sideward bending and high kicking that Celeste does as part of her dance routine are excellent for improving the bust, waist and hips. You can build up the first measurement while slimming down the other two.

Here is another tip from this actrees that all of you can use. "I have found that when I get enough sleep — and I require from 8 to 10 hours a night—my friends think I look slimmer. it has a decided effect on my posture. I feel like holding myself up."

With Celeste, taking care of her health is only commonsense. Does she eat her spinach and all the other protective foods! You can bet she dos. She follows extremely well balanced menus as a matter of course, but she believes that when anyone is working extra hard she needs extra vitamines in concentrated form to supplement those in food—not as a substitute for the right food, but in addition to it—and she takes a vitamin A, B, C, D capsule daily.

THE GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay

His Wife's Friends

(As He Sees Them)

They spend 12 hours out of the 24 on the telephone, and most of that time talking to his wife.

They are incapable of concluding any telephone conversation in less than 45 minutes. (He knows, for he times them whenever they call up!)

They lie awake nights thinking up schemes to make his wife take office in clubs, serve on committees, help in war benefits, go to senseless parties and do all sorts of things that will divert her attention (and services) from him.

He's sure they are unhappy in their home life, or they wouldn't be running around messing in so many other things.

Despite his wife's assurance that they are all "very lovely women," he usually thinks of them in terms of "cats" or "old hens."

They apparently are spendthrifts who keep their husbands' noses to the grindstone — from the reports he hears of the clothes and furniture they buy.

They are all social climbers, from the number of parties they are always giving or promoting.

They engage in war activities just to have something to do or to wear uniforms.

They are obsessed with going to cultural events, as concerts and lectures, chiefly to be seen and to be able to tell other people they have gone.

Some day when he answers the telephone, he is going to "tell one of 'em off"—but, strangely, when he does, after his first gruff "Hello," he finds himself talking in his most polite company voice and having quite a pleasant chat about the weather and victory gardens.

When he meets them for the first time he expects to encounter either belligerent Amazons or gabby nitwits, but finds, to his great surprise, they are really "quite sensible women" — so "sensible," in fact, that he monopolizes the conversation during their entire stay telling them of his gasoline troubles, his labor troubles, of his Spartan life as a boy, the one about the two Yanks in Attu, what's wrong with the OPA and how the United Nations should invade Europe and dispose of Japan.

Her Husband's Friends

(As She Sees Them)

They are in some vague way made of commoner clay than he is and have a general lowering inkuence on him.

They are always borrowing money from him, getting him involved in calamitous poker games and pushing the check off on him when they go out to eat together.

They drink too much and, what is more, are to blame whenever he drinks too much.

They are always dragging him off to ball games, prize fights and similar events or to eat in dives where the food is dirty and indigestible and the associations, to say the least, not "uplifting."

They apparently are unhappy in their home lives, or they wouldn't be on the loose so much.

She feels sure their wives are either meek, neglected women or a little on the coarse side.

When they come in from out of town and call up her husband to meet them, they are intent on only one thing—a wild party.

While she hasn't any evidence along that line, she feels sure they are particularly susceptible to women—and none too discriminating in their tastes.

They are always luring her husband to stag parties which invariably end up in a striptease by "Little Seaweed" or similar character.

They are either cut-ups and clowns who make themselves conspicuous in company, or lonely, odd characters without friends who hang on to her husband for what they can get out of him.

When she meets them for the first time she expects to encounter low-brow Joe Doakes' in brown derbies, but finds, to her great surprise, they are really quite "gentlemanly"—so gentlemanly, in fact, that she finds herself talking to them of art and philosophy, and the beauties of nature, and what it's all about, and marriage and life and love, etc., and not feeling any too indignant at the ones who got a little fresh with her in the kitchen when helping serve the ice cream.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

A little butter will go far if you make hot buttered bread. The result is excellent for the bread will taste like fresh bread hot from the oven. Try this and the family won't miss that pat or so that they usually spread upon the bread they eat at meal.

Food habits are undergoing some changes. Some foods are rationed, others are no longer available, and still others have to be stretched their elastic limit.

Meats we now extend with other foods like bread crumbs, corn flakes, spaghetti and bit of vegetables. And the result of these combinations are being very gratifying.

Since butter went on the ration list we have tried many ways to stretch it. One of the simplest way is to serve it when not so firm. Take from the refrigerator a few minutes before serving time so it will become slightly softened, then it will spread on breads more readily.

HOT BUTTERED BREAD

Another way to stretch butter for bread is to remove the top and end crusts from one loaf (or half a loaf) of enriched white bread. (Unsliced enriched white bread is still available; order from your grocer a day in advance if necessary). Spread the top of the loaf with one to two tablespoons of well-softened butter. Cut loaf into slices about one inch thick, slicing down not quite to the bottom crust. Tie string around loaf and place in hot oven until top turns golden brown. Remove string and serve hot. At the table, break off the hot thick slices and eat them as you would rolls. No additional buttering is necessary. The resulting flavor is delicious.

Since whipping cream has been restricted, many of our former foods have had to go unadorned or not made so rich by the incorporation of it into them. Often if ordinary cream is allowed to chill for several days it will whip nicely. You may add to 1 cupful of cream one-day old ½ teaspoon lemon juice. All utensils should be very cold. Whip the cream until stiff.

TO WHIP CREAM

A substitute for whipping cream can be regular cream whipped by the aid of gelatin. If you want to whip a pint of cream, soak 1 teaspoon gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water or fruit juice. Heat ½ cup cream. Dissolve the soaked gelatin in it. Stir these ingredients into 1½ cups cream. One tablespoon powdered sugar may be added. Place the cream in the refrigerator. Stir it from time to time. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla. When the cream is thoroughly chilled (after 4 to 6 hours) beat it until it is stiff.

Evaporated milk can be whipped by two methods. Both are given here, but the first method holds up longer, although the second is very convenient at times.

Method 1—Soak ½ teaspoon gelatin in 2 teaspoons cold water. Scald in a double boiler 1¼ cups evaporated milk. Add the soaked gelatin. Stir until the gelatin is dissolved. Chill the milk until it is icy cold, then whip it like cream. A small amount of vanilla, caramel, coffee, etc., may be added to the milk to flavor it.

Method 2—Place a can of evaporated milk in a pan of cold water. Bring the water to the boiling point. Remove the can from the water. When it is cool place it in the refrigerator. Chill it well. The milk will keep for days. Whip it when ready to use it. When whipping evaporated milk with an electric beater use medium speed.

Rehang Faded Drapes

If your draperies show a tendency to fade, here is a household trick that is advised by Actress Maureen O'Hara. She suggests that you change them around from window to window to vary the amounts of light they are exposed to during the day and also to exchange sides, when that is possible, putting the left-hand drape in the right-hand spot and vice versa.

MEMO TO MISS BROWN

Mental Speed-up,

What with all the acceleration in the air, it's to be expected that Washington's halls of learning are in the swim this summer with all sorts of courses. There are special ones to enable the serious student to get a head start on fall-semester starters; there are also a lot which are complete in themselves. Both types are strictly in the interests of wasting no time.

Anyone who wants to be better off next winter than she was last (and who doesn't?) couldn't do anything smarter than to beat the summer doldrums with a little honest toil—of the mental, or unstrenuous variety.

The Graduate School of the United States Department of Agriculture (and it's not limited, by any means, to graduate students, as the name would suggest), is getting into gear this week with a fine summer schedule of courses. The most beautiful part about these are that they are directed smack at specific jobs which the Civil Service Commission has to fill, and those who finish with a flourish go straight to the Commission for transfer to jobs which would be "a more effective contribution to the war program." (Incidentally they would probably be better jobs.)

Included among the courses are, of course, languages. There's good old Spanish, as well as Russian, Italian and Chinese—at $12 and $18—depending upon the number of weekly hours involved. There are shorthand and typing courses, too, of a very intensive sort, which should qualify a smart gal for a rise in grade if she lacks either or both of these skills.

Along the administrative line, there's a fine list of courses in the various phases of Federal personnel administration and procedure, as well as a few courses in administrative procedure for qualified Government employes who yearn for C. A. F. 5, 6, 7, 8 or 9 ratings. For the development of special skills, there are courses in multilith press operation, photostat operation, punch card tabulation procedures, meteorology, statistics, accounting and auditing.

Each course is intended for persons who are already in Federal service; however, others are not excluded. Also, there are fairly definite qualifications for each course, since each is directed toward a specific job. So it's best to call in person at the school's office (Room 1031, South Agriculture Building) to register and to get further information. Better hurry, though!

The Central Y. W. C. A. is strictly on its toes with a summer series of courses—also getting under way this week. Languages there are a-plenty—Spanish, French, Portuguese and Russian, as well as commercial courses and English—all pointed toward greater job efficiency and, better yet, better jobs. Then there are a number of courses which are mainly for fun. Creative art, for instance, or photography, or dressmaking. Most unusual is the "Y's" popular course in making and playing shepherd's pipes—which is an ideal road to a new summer pastime. The teacher of same is a real expert and they tell us that once you whittle (or do you?) your way into this hobby you're an enthusiast forevermore.

Both American University and George Washington University are planning to begin summer sessions about June 12. Both schools, under the accelerated program which many colleges are adopting, will have two complete six-week sessions during the summer months, with a large selection of night school courses. A night-school student may earn six credits in each of these sessions—12 credits for a single summer is pretty profitable, too, if you're degree-conscious.

Along the language line, most of the language schools here in the city plan summer schedules, beginning this month.

If you can't quite fit night school courses into your summer schedule, you can still get a good start toward additional book l'arning through correspondence. Did you know about the fine courses-by-mail which are offered by the Universities of Chicago, Michigan and Iowa? These are accredited by some colleges, and if you're looking for a separate course just for the fun of learning, you can't beat 'em. Fees range from $6 to $10 a semester hour, and all three schools will be glad to send bulletins telling all about it at the drop of a postcard.

Don't think Washington weather needs to make a linguid Lulu out of you this summer! Your next-door-neighbor may be making hay at this very moment—and may be a good deal richer than you are, come September, what with all her newly acquired knowledge!

Navy Officers Take Brides In Ceremonies of Interest Here

After Graduation From Naval Academy Two Ensigns Wed Washington Girls

Among Washington girls who yesterday walked down the aisle with new Navy officers upon their graduation from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., were Miss Jean Bullitt Slaughter, and Miss Mary Margaret Nichols.

The wedding of Miss Slaughter, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Willis R. Slaughter of 3319 Rowland Place Northwest, to Ensign Shirley A. Davis, took place at All Souls' Unitarian Church at 8 o'clock last evening. The Rev. Dr. Ulysses G. Pierce officiated before an altar banked with white peonies, ferns, tall candelabra and white candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer white organdy with appliqued embroidery, juliet sleeves, and long train. Her illusion veil was caught with lilies of the valley matching her bridal bouquet. Mrs. Henry Scott, matron of honor, wore a gown of sheer yellow organza and carried yellow roses. Miss Lucile Christmas, maid of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Polk Benson, bridesmaid, wore gowns of sheer green organza and carried yellow roses.

Ensign John Martin De Largy was best man, and six ensigns, who were classmates of Ensign Davis at the Naval Academy, were ushers. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip the couple will make their home in Jacksonville, Fla.

The bride attended Cornell University where she was a member of Alpha Phi Fraternity and made her debut in Washington in December, 1941, at a reception given by her parents at the Club of Colonial Dames. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Owen Davis of Eldorado, Ark.

Thompson—Nichols

Married at the U. S. Naval Academy Chapel were Miss Nichols, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Litchfield Nichols and the late Horace C. Nichols of Ardmore, Okla., and Ensign Ejnar Thompson. Ensign Thompson is the son of H. M. Thompson of Portales, N. Mex., and the late Mrs. Thompson. Chaplain W. N. Thomas officiated at the 2 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Terry Forrest Nichols, wore a white net gown made princess style with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. Her veil was fingertip length. She carried a bouquet of white roses and orchids.

Miss Jo Ethel Campbell of Ardmore, Okla., was maid of honor. She wore a blue net gown and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of red, white and blue flowers. Miss Bertha Gibeau of Boston, Mass., and Miss Mary W. Gatewood of Holly Springs, Miss., were bridesmaids, wearing gowns of blue net and carrying old-fashioned bouquets.

Ensign Roy Standard was best man and Ensigns Robert D. Weimer, Charles H. Tisdale, Philip Steiner, Kenneth F. X. Smith, George D. Casey and Raymond W. Burk were ushers. A reception at the home of the bride's mother in Washington followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip in the South, the couple will make their home in Jacksonville, Fla., where Ensign Thompson is stationed at the Naval Air Station. The bride attended the Oklahoma College for Women and the University of Oklahoma.

Joins Staff Of Red Cross

Scheduled for overseas duty as a Red Cross hospital visitor is Miss Natalie Scott of New Orleans, who has been the guest in Washington for the past month of Mrs. Alice Morris.

Miss Scott, who for the past several years has made her home in Mexico, served abroad during the last war and was awarded the Croix de Guerre in 1918 for her work in French hospitals.

Record Number of Weddings Held in Capital Yesterday

Anita Lyon Is Among Group Donning Traditional White Satin

Chalk up June 9 as a record day in a record month for brides.

In church ceremonies, or, more informally, in home settings more than half a dozen brides exchanged "Miss" for "Mrs." yesterday. There were the usual number of service weddings, daily events in war times, and reports of these will be found elsewhere on these pages.

Miss Anita Lyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Gilbert Lyon, was among the brides yesterday, her marriage to the Rev. George Richard Wheatcroft taking place in St. Margaret's Church. All Saints Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase, Md., was the setting for the wedding of Miss Betty Erwin Carter and Clarence Columbus Brock, and Miss Eileen Elizabeth Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Wilson, was married to Robert Allison Bird in a home ceremony taking place at 7 o'clock last evening.

Dr. George A. Buttrick of New York, and Dr. Robert Kevin of the Virginia Theological Seminary, officiated at the wedding of Miss Lyon and the Reverend Wheatcroft, which was held at 5 o'clock and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Frederic Wheatcroft of St. Louis, Mo.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white duchess satin gown made with long-pointed sleeves, a heart-shaped neckline and full skirt, which was fashioned with a court train. Her veil of rare Brussels applique lace, which fell from a coronet of the lace and had been worn by the bride's great-great grandmother. She carried a white prayer book, the gift of Dr. Buttrick, with a shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Shirley Irwin Lyon, who was her sister's maid of honor, wore a soft shade of rose pink chiffon made with a square neck and tight bodice and a full skirt. She wore a cluster of flowers in Dresden hues in her hair and carried a bouquet of matching flowers.

The little flower girl was Miss Margaret Beach Taft of New York and Arlington, Va., wearing a light blue gown with a close bodice and long, ruffled skirt. She carried pastel flowers arranged in an old-fashioned bouquet and wore similar flowers in her hair. The Rev. Alfred Alley of Virginia, served as best man and ushers were Robert Leavitt of St. Louis and the Rev. Guthrie Brown of Virginia.

After a wedding trip the Rev. Wheatcroft and his bride will live at the Tower Apartment of the Church of St. Michael and St. George, 6345 Wydown Boulevard, St. Louis.

The bride attended the Todhunter School and Spence School in New York and is a member of the Junior League. Dr. Wheatcroft attended the Washington University of St. Louis, Union Theological Seminary of New York, and the Virginia Theological Seminary.

Brock—Carter

Miss Carter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Ruthvion Carter, became the bride of Clarence Columbus Brock at a 5:30 o'clock ceremony held in All Saints Church with the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke officiating. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Brock of Bristol, Va. Mr. Carter gave his daughter in marriage.

White marquisette fashioned the bride's gown, which was made with long sleeves, a high neck and shoulder ruffle and a full skirt which ended in a voluminous train edged in a deep marquisette ruffle. Her long tulle veil was held by a marquisette coronet and she carried a bouquet of white gardenias. Miss Barbara Ann Hicks was maid of honor, wearing an aqua net gown made with a full skirt and fitted bodice, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridemaid in a costume of pink marquisette, was Miss Frances Carter, sister of the bride. She carried blue delphinium and pink roses. Ensign Robert A. Wulf, U. S. N., was best man and the ushers were Robert F. Oulton, E. P. Tatum, jr. All were classmates of the bridegroom at the United States Naval Academy.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brock left for Jacksonville, Fla., where the bridegroom will be stationed.

Bird—Wilson

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Wilson in Takoma Park, Md., was the scene of the wedding of their daughter, Eileen Elizabeth Wilson, and Robert Allison Bird, which took place at 7 o'clock last evening with the Rev. Richard J. Barron officiating. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Farnham Haeger of Detroit. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown made with a sweetheart neckline edged with pearls, a tight bodice and full skirt falling into a slight train. Her four-tiered veil was held by a Juliet cap trimmed in seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. John M. Weeks, the matron of honor, was in aqua marquisette worn with a flowered headdress and she carried a colonial bouquet of talisman roses. The maid of honor was Miss Marilyn Brown, who wore a gown like that of the matron of honor and carried a similar bouquet. Ensign T. J. Christman was best man and the usher was Ensign Hugh Butler.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony and later the bridal couple left for Detroit, stopping at various resorts on Lake Huron en route. They will go to Jacksonville, Fla., to live for the next 10 weeks. The bridegroom is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy.

Newly Graduated Ensigns Honored

Four brand-new ensigns were guests of honor at a party yesterday afternoon at the Admiral Club at which Miss Carol Arnold was hostess.

Until their graduation from the Naval Academy earlier in the day they had been answering to the title of midshipman. The honored graduates, all sons of Navy men, were Ensign Julian Arnold, jr., Ensign Dupuy McCormick, Ensign Hammond Earnest, and Ensign David Brooks. Between 5 and 7 o'clock a group of their friends dropped in to congratulate them.

Debutante Is Presented At Home Tea

The first debutante of the season, Miss Elizabeth Gardner Huidekoper, made her curtsy at a 5 to 7 o'clock tea yesterday afternoon in the Edgevale Terrace home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Shippen Huidekoper.

Over 300 invitations were sent out for the party yesterday, which stressed wartime simplicity in its decorations and refreshments. Gone are the days when the early weeks of summer were crowded with debut dates and a whirl of younger set parties was on the schedule. Only other curtsy on the books for this "season" is that of Miss Ann Mitchell, who will make her bow at a 5 to 7 o'clock tea in the Georgetown home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Mitchell, on Saturday.

Standing to receive with her mother, Miss Huidekoper wore an off-mauve dress of marquisette over faille made with bishop sleeves and a V-neckline. She wore a corsage of small pink orchids. During the afternoon, her father, who has been ill, came downstairs to greet the guests.

Assisting the debutante were her sister, Ann, who made her bow three years ago at a similar party; Miss Patty O'Brien of New York, who was a classmate of the deb at Westover School; Miss Frances Barry, and Miss Eleanor Ong.

Despite the threatening weather, guests spilled out the living room doors to the terrace, which was protected from the elements by a bright-colored awning. A small bar was set out there, but most of the guests crowded into the dining room and living room, which was simply decorated with red roses.

Assisting Mrs. Huidekoper at the tea table were Mrs. David Barry, Mrs. Alan Kirk, Mrs. Clarence Wilson, Miss Mary Sheridan, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Frederick Faust, Mrs. William Flather, Mrs. Walter Howe, Mrs. Frederick Hoppin, Mrs. Alfred duPont and Mrs. Elbert Dent, a sister of the hostess, who had come from Wilmington, Del., for the occasion. Making a special trip to the Capital for the party also was Mrs. Pierre S. duPont of Wilmington, the godmother of the bud.

Since there will be no "party season" to stay for, Miss Huidekoper will leave next week for Nonquitt, Mass., to spend the summer months.

Mme. Tixier Is Honor Guest at Afternoon Fete

Congratulations were in the air at the 5 to 7 o'clock party at which Mrs. Robert Davis entertained Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mme. Adrien Tixier.

The felicitations were for Mme. Tixier whose husband has been appointed to the just-constituted French cabinet. And also for Mrs. Davis for her performance in standing to receive with a broken ankle. M. Tixier will take over the portfolio of Labor and Social Affairs for his government.

Guests had a formidable transportation problem on their hands in finding their way by bus and streetcar out to Mrs. Davis' home at 3800 Columbia Pike, but they were all equal to the challenge. Among those assisting the hostess were Mme. Baudet and Mme. Luget, whose husbands are with the Fighting French Mission here; Miss Pauletta Guffey, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, Mme. Kwapiszewska, Mrs. Paul Greenhalgh, and Miss Dita Davis.

The "Twig" is having its annual June german on Saturday at the Old Dominion Boat Club in Alexandria, Va. It is for the benefit of the Alexandria Hospital.

Several Supreme Court justices and their families will be consulting bus and streetcar schedules in sections far removed from Washington this summer.

Although the date of court adjournment is still definitely indefinite, vacation plans for the highest court contingent have been completed for some time. Only in two instances did I hear "No definite summer plans—as yet," when I made my annual, early-summer inquiries yesterday.

One came from the Chief Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone. With transportation difficulties showing no signs of letting up, they are making "no special vacation plans at present."

"Not even a trip to Isle au Haut in Maine?" I asked. Well, perhaps . . . later in the summer. But chances of that are fairly remote, since the hotel at which they formerly stayed may not be open through the season . . . and the trouble of getting that far away from home may be too much—even for a Chief Justice.

If He Knows, He Won't Tell—Yet

Justice Frank Murphy is the other who hasn't yet decided what he'll be doing after "school" is out. Either that, or he isn't yet ready to divulge his plans. Of course, I remember all too well that about this time last year I had the same impression . . . and found out a few days later that he was off for a vacation fling as Colonel Murphy of the United States Army. Yesterday I asked him if he was up for a return service engagement, or if the Broadway columnist who recently reported he was going to marry soon knew what he was talking about.

"Oh, is that what you call going into the Army," the personable justice answered . . . by way of no answer at all. In a more serious vein he added, "Honestly, I haven't any definite summer plans. I'll probably spend some time with relatives in Detroit and at my boyhood home in Harbor Beach, Mich. Other than that, I haven't a thing to report. But, of course, if something comes up later . . ."

On the other hand, Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas know exactly where they'll be through the torrid season, and on until the latter part of September. If the court manages to call it a day this weekend, Justice Douglas, his wife and their son and daughter will be off to their summer place in Oregon. Otherwise, Mrs. Douglas and the children will leave on Monday, and the Justice will join them soon after the court adjourns.

Colorado Cottage For the Rutledges

The newest Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Wiley Rutledge will spend the summer in Boulder, Colo., where they have taken a cottage for three months. Justice Owen J. Roberts will leave Washington the same afternoon court adjourns; and will go straight to Kimberton, Pa., where Mrs. Roberts went some time ago. They'll be at their farm, Bryncoed, all summer.

"We can't afford to leave town . . . and transportation is too difficult, anyway," said Mrs. Stanley Reed. She and Justice Reed will stay on in their Mayflower apartment. Their elder son, Stanley, jr., is in the Navy; the other, John, is working in New York. Both may manage to get home for brief vacations before the season is over.

"There's No Place Like Home"

Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter will leave the latter part of June for their home in New Milford, Conn., returning early in September. Most of the summer you'll be able to find Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black working in the victory garden. After spending several weeks visiting former Senator and Mrs. William H. Smathers in Margate, N. J., Mrs. Black has returned to her Alexandria home, prepared to stay around for the next three months. "Oh, we may manage to get off to Florida later," she said. Their son, Sterling, is in officers' candidate school at Miami Beach. The other, Hugo, jr., is now at home, awaiting orders to go to camp in North Carolina. Nine-year-old Josephine, only daughter in the family, will be off soon to camp Abingdon, Va.

A Virginia home vacation is also on schedule for Justice and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson. Time was when court-closing time was a signal for them to leave for Jamestown, N. Y. But their home-place there was sold last year and they purchased a place near McLean, Va. Their daughter, Mary Margaret, who was graduated from Smith College last June, has been serving as research psychologist at a New York hospital the past year. She'll be home to spend July with her parents. Their son, William, who is attending Harvard Law School, plans to continue his course through the summer.

The wedding will take place June 17 at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Ensign Cole Takes Bride At Annapolis

At historic St. Anne's Church in Annapolis yesterday afternoon Miss Marguerite Randolph Robertson, daughter of Mrs. John Cullen Robertson of Annapolis, became the bride of Ensign Lanier Guthridge Cole, United States Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Early Cole of Lamarque, Tex.

The bride was given in marriage by her godfather Commander Lloyd R. Gray, and was gowned in white satin, tulle, and heirloom rose point lace.

There were two maids of honor, Miss Alice Chadwick Robertson, sister of the bride, and Miss Betty Nancy Cole, sister of the bridegroom. Little Patricia Crane was the flower girl and the bridesmaids were Miss Rosalind Atwell Smith of Washington, Miss Helen Owens of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Charles Overton and Miss Elise Bird of Annapolis.

Ensign Robert Long was the best man, and the ushers were Ensign Joseph Lester, Ensign David Webster, Ensign Jesse Collins, Ensign Thomas Brown, Ensign Paul Crutchfield, and Ensign Donald McClenahan.

Following their wedding trip the couple will make their home in Jacksonville, Fla., where Ensign Cole is stationed.

The bride was graduated from Gunston Hall in Washington and Ensign Cole attended Allen Military Academy in Bryant, Tex., before going to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

Mrs. Cole is descended from the Rev. Evardus Bogardus and Gov. Thomas Dudley of Massachusetts; Simon Broadstreet and De Grassenried of New York and from the Randolph and Epps families.

Capt., Mrs. Morin To Leave Capital For West Point

Capt. and Mrs. William A. M. Morin of New York, who have been living in Washington, will leave shortly for West Point, where Captain Morin has been ordered for duty, following his transfer from the Air Corps to the Infantry. Captain Morin was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1931.

The Morins have been spending as much time as possible at their Flint Hill estate near Warrenton, Va., where they have their horses. Both expert horsemen, Captain and Mrs. Morin used to race their horses at Hialeah and other tracks and were familiar figures at Saratoga and Belmont. Mrs. Morin inherited her love of horses from her father, the late Richard T. Wilson, for many years president of the Saratoga Association. Her mother, Mrs. Wilson, lives at Newport, R. I. The former Marion Wilson, Mrs. Morin is a niece of Mrs. M. Orme Wilson and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Purely Personal

Mrs. H. Rozier Dulany has gone to her Virginia home, Oakley, near Upperville, for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. H. Rozier Dulany, jr., will leave for Oakley this weekend to spend the summer. Mr. Dulany will commute between Upperville and his Washington desk.

News of the Women's Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds
The Post Club Editor.

It's fun night for the sailors stationed at the Bethesda Naval Hospital. During the past year many members of the Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase were guests at the hospital dances, so tomorrow night the girls are reciprocating by giving a party at their clubhouse. Besides dancing there will be games, prizes and refreshments.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Not only have the club members attended dances at the Naval Hospital, they are working diligently to help establish the new USO center in Bethesda.

The chairman in charge of the fun night is Miss Betty Doyle. Serving on her committee are Miss Elizabeth Wiele, Miss Margaret Springer, Mrs. R. P. Dunlop, Miss Elizabeth Dougherty, Miss Betty Chamberlin, Miss Shirley Puffer, Miss Norlaine Lewis, Mrs. L. A. Myers, Miss Frances McCathran, and Miss Betty Hein.

Bits of This and That . . .

You've heard about them but seldom if ever seen them—four-leaf clovers. But if the symbol brings all the good luck reputed to it, the members of the PROFESSIONAL WRITERS' CLUB are in for a streak of success. For at the executive board's annual dinner honoring its retiring president, Miss Wanda Mae Johnson, held recently at the Arts Club, each member was given a genuine four-leaf clover. Mrs. Calvert Judkins designed life-sized butterflies for place cards. Miss Myrta Ethel Cawood, co-founder of the Club, presided as toastmistress . . . Mrs. Benjamin Soule Gantz, president of the POLITICAL STUDY CLUB and Mrs. Wintemute W. Sloan, retiring president, were honor guests at a bridge luncheon recently at which Mrs. George M. Quirk and Mrs. Copeland Jones were joint hostesses . . . Members of GIRL SCOUT TROOP NO. 64, most of whom already have earned their "hostesses badges,' found a useful outlet for their training by serving as junior hostesses during the opening reception for the exhibit of Chinese paintings previewed Tuesday at the United War Relief Center. Incidentally, the exhibit is being held under the auspices of the WASHINGTON COMMITTEE OF UNITED CHINA RELIEF, Inc. and is open to the public (free) weekdays 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. from now through June 30. The paintings of Miss Alison Stilwell, 22-year-old daughter of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, will be a feature of the exhibit. Born in China, Miss Stilwell received her early education there and is accredited with being one of the few Occidentals to master the art of Chinese paintings. She studied under the famous Chinese artist, Prince Pu Ju.

Did You Know That . . .?

The SOROPTIMIST CLUB OF WASHINGTON has an outstand-record in the sale of war bonds and stamps. Members are credited with the sale of $190,165 of bonds and more than $3000 worth of stamps. In addition, you'll find the members of servicemen's canteens, working at the Red Cross, salvaging stockings, books, playing cards, and donating blood. Each year the club furnishes a bed for the Children's Emergency Home of the Central Union Mission. With the dedication of the seventh bed this week, the entire unit soon will be credited to the Soropts.

Closing its twenty-ninth year with an annual meeting Tuesday night, the PETWORTH WOMAN'S CLUB stands ready to call emergency meetings during the summer months in compliance with the request of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who has asked the clubs to keep busy during the usually dormant season. Mrs. Frank J. MacMaugh, retiring president, presided.

Reports show that the club service flag is now represented by 24 sons and five husbands, according to Mrs. T. S. Tincher. Mrs. Claude M. Ballard announced that 24,920 surgical dressings had been made during the year by the club's instructive visiting nurses. Mrs. V. H. Sehorn, chairman of the Red Cross community productions unit, reported that 3000 tailored and knitted garments had been turned in. And the new surgical dressing unit just established under the chairmanship of Mrs. S. C. Tupman made 5400 dressings during the first month. Mrs. Sue Richwine, treasurer, announced that $2050 of the building fund had been converted into war bonds.

Delegates and committee chairmen appointed at the business meeting were, fine arts, Mrs. R. K. Bailey; home, Mrs. Carl L. Fairall; hospitality, Mrs. J. W. Roth; literature, Mrs. R. S. Hart; philanthropic, Mrs. V. T. Brantley. Directors are Mrs. Frank J. MacMaugh, Mrs. T. S. Tincher, and Mrs. E. B. Johnson; alternates, Arthur G. Dunn, Mrs. W. A. Winkelhaus; parliamentarian, Mrs. Otto Hammerlund; superintendent of files, Mrs. Horace J. Phelps; budget and finance, Mrs. Fred V. Brown, the Club Woman, Mrs. Frank J. McMaugh; year book, Mrs. V. H. Sehorn; program, Mrs. R. E. Holm; publicity, Mrs. Liefie Dietz; pages, Mrs. P. D. MacMorris; library, Mrs. Ruth E. Mills.

Baby Oil Protects Skin

Baby oil, the kind that is sold everywhere to rub all over a baby's tender skin, is the perfect answer to the sun-tanning question—at least it is to Actress Bonita Granville. She says that she is never without it when her face or body is exposed to the sun and that a thin film will assure a perfect tan.

Lemon Juice Rinse

Soap, insists Mel Berns (and he ought to know, being head of a movie studio make-up department) is one of the first and finest beauty aids known. But too many women think that soap doesn't agree with thier skins simply because they do not remove it by proper rinsing. This is vitally important, says Mel, and the best way to be sure it is off is to rinse the second time with lemon water(one part lemon juice and two parts water). This cuts soap and leaves your skin completely clean.

Woodall Denies Charges of Intimacies With Mrs. Dempsey

By the Associated Press

White Plains, N. Y., June 9.—Benny Woodall, slight blond and worried-looking young man, named by Jack Dempsey as corespondent in his divorce suit against his wife, Hannah Williams Dempsey, denied in court today intimacies with Mrs. Dempsey.

Woodall, 31, testified that he and Mrs. Dempsey were friends, and in answer to a question said he might "have kissed Mrs. Dempsey on leaving or arriving on a train," but denied having been asleep in her bed in a New York apartment or having kissed or embraced her publicly.

Questioned about a raid on Mrs. Dempsey's Los Angeles apartment, which previous witnesses for Dempsey had related, Woodall said he had a few beers and had fallen asleep on the sofa in the living room when the raiders broke in. Private detectives had testified they saw Benny partially dressed running out of Hannah's bedroom when they arrived.

"Were you ever in the same bed with Mrs. Dempsey in her apartment?" asked Arthur Driscoll, Dempsey's attorney. "No. Never," replied Woodall.

Q. "Did Mrs. Dempsey ever receive you in her New York apartment in negligee?" A. "No, sir."

Referring to previous testimony, Woodall was asked if he had been intoxicated and dancing in a party consisting of Mrs. Dempsey, Lew Jenkins, former lightweight champion and named a corespondent by Dempsey, and himself, in a Paterson, N. J., restaurant.

He answered negatively.

Q. "Did you ever drink beer in the kitchen (of the Dempsey's New York apartment), standing with your arms around her?" A. "No, sir."

Q. "Did you ever run out of the back door or side way when Mr. Dempsey arrived?" A. "No, sir."

In a deposition, Mrs. Jackie Griffin, woman fight promoter and sister of Woodall, declared:

"My brother never did go out with Hannah; that is the blackest lie."

Mrs. Griffin's deposition marked the beginning of Mrs. Dempsey's rounds against testimony for her husband, the former heavyweight boxing champion and now a lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard. Mrs. Dempsey came well dressed and heavily made up, sat within 2 feet of Woodall, and listened attentively to her side of the case.

It was the first time she had appeared in the crowded courtroom since the opening day. Her attorneys contended that she was suffering a complete breakdown.

Mrs. Howard Acquitted

By the Associated Press

Tulsa, Okla., June 8.—Mrs. Ella B. Howard wept in the arms of her son tonight as a District Court jury acquitted her in the slaying of the wife of a Tulsa man who gave her diamonds and $20,000.

The 44-year-old Fort Worth divorcee breathed quickly as the jury filed back into the courtroom after deliberating for an hour and 50 minutes the charge of manslaughter against her in the hotel room shooting of Mrs. T. Karl Simmons, widely known horsewoman.

At the words which meant her freedom, she dropped her head into the arms of her son, Louis Howard, jr.

It was the second time for tears today for the otherwise quiet defendant. She wept on the witnss stand during cross-examination after relating that Mrs. Simmons came came to her room March 25 at the swank Mayo Hotel, forced her way in with a pistol and declared, "Damn you! I'll kill you!"

Mrs. Howard was called to the witness stand immediately after Mrs. Simmons' husband, a wealthy oil man, related he gave Mrs. Howard some diamonds and $20,000, "because I wanted to."

The Fort Worth divorcee testified she opened her hotel room door after hearing a loud rap and saw Mrs. Simmons standing there, a gun in her hand.

"I tried to push her out and told her to leave, that she couldn't come there," she said. "I tried to close the door, but caught her arm and the hand with the gun inside the room.

"I grabbed the hand and bent it down so the gun was pointing to the floor. She opened the door a little more and fired the gun twice. I had hold of her hand and wrist.

"The shots frightened me. I grabbed her arm and wrested the gun from her hand."

Earlier, Simmons, testifying for the defense, told of helping a Negro servant take away from his wife a pistol similar to the death weapon, the night before Mrs. Simmons was fatally wounded in a downtown hotel room.

Amazing results shown in improving the Looks... boosting VITALITY!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!
THESE two important steps may help you to overcome
Sour Stomach — Jerky Nerves
Loss of Appetite — Underweight
Digestive Complaints — Weakness
Poor Complexion
Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.
A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.
At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its proper functions and balance. Undigested food places a tax on the system... insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.
If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need!
SSS Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient ...and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue.
These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated ... more attractive!
Build Sturdy Health
so that the Doctors may better serve our Fighting Forces
Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. size. © S.S.S. Co.

Closing part of 10th Place, including a dedication to provide a realignment of said 10th Place, between Mississippi Avenue and Congress Street, S.E.; and closing of street area at 11th Place and Trenton Place, S.E., including a dedication to provide a street realignment at this location, and for the establishment of building restriction lines in Squares 5933, 5934, 5935 and 5936. 9. Closing of New Jersey Avenue between M and N Streets, S.E., and closing M Place, Saunder Street, N Street and Francis Place, all immediately east of First Street, S.E., and closing alleys in Squares 743 and 744. 10. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Northeast section, providing for a change in the location of a proposed street extending south from W Street, proposed, between Brentwood Road and 13th Street, N.E. 11. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Southern section of the District of Columbia covering area bounded on the north by Atlantic Street, on the east by Livingston Road, on the south by Southern Avenue, and on the west by the westerly line of First Street, S.W., and South Capitol Street, providing for the elimination of part of First Street, S.W., proposed, and for the elimination of other proposed streets through U. S. Reservation at this location. 12. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Northeast section along the line of 50th Street between Washington Place and Grant Street. Maps showing the street, road and alley areas proposed to be closed and showing the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways are on file in the office of the Surveyor, D. C., Room 405, District Building (same being known as Maps 2671, 2672, 2673, 2674, 2675, 2676, 2677, 2678, 2679, 2680, 2681 and 2682) and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said maps will also be displayed at the hearing and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes and the proposed street, road and alley closings as shown on above-mentioned maps. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, GUY MASON, Commissioners of the District of Columbia. 9-24.

Please don't WASTE the time of these BUSY WORKERS!

They are Telephone Information Operators and more than one-third of the calls they receive each day are for numbers which are plainly listed in the directory.
To answer this flood of unnecessary calls requires the equivalent of the full working time of more than twenty-five trained operators and ties up many lines and much equipment.
This is a serious waste of telephone time and telephone facilities in these busy war days when every trained operator and every facility is needed to handle the huge daily volumes of calls.
So, before calling, please consult the telephone directory and do not ask the Information Operators to look up numbers for you unless you cannot find them in the book.

How to Torture Your Wife

MRS. GORMLEY, YOU AND JIM MUST COME OVER AND HAVE DINNER WITH US SOME NIGHT — HOW ABOUT TOMORROW NIGHT? JUST SIMPLE CHOW YOU KNOW, BECAUSE TH' LITTLE WOMAN IS DOING TH' COOKING THESE DAYS. SHE'S GOOD AT IT TOO — BETTER THAN ANY COOK WE EVER HAD. I ALWAYS SAY IF YOU WANT THINGS DONE RIGHT YOU HAVE TO DO 'EM YOURSELF. HA! HA! AND NOW THERE'S NO KICKING NO MATTER HOW MANY GUESTS WE HAVE. WE'LL EXPECT YOU THEN AT SEVEN, BUT IF EIGHT WOULD SUIT YOU BETTER—
Y-YES, WE'D LOVE TO HAVE YOU
WE'D LOVE TO COME, IF YOU ARE SURE IT WOULD BE NO TROUBLE, AND IF YOU HAVE STEAK OR ROAST BEEF JIM LIKES IT RARE. PERSONALLY I PREFER IT MEDIUM; HA! HA!

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Sky Guy to Check on a Spy — By Milton Caniff

HA! MAPS ON THE OFFICIAL STATIONERY OF THE U.S.NAVY! PAY THIS FOOL AND SEND HIM AWAY!
SO!—OUR MAN AMONG THE NATIVES NEAR THE YANKEE CONSTRICTION AREA DOES WELL... HIS MAPS ARE ON THE YANKEES OWN PAPER! HAVE THIS FLOWN BACK AT ONCE!
INDEED! TARGETS MARKED ON AMERICAN NAVY STATIONERY! HAVE THIS PHOTOGRAPHED AND THE TARGETS CHECKED FROM THE AIR...
YOU WILL FLY OVER THE YANKEE BASE, PHOTOGRAPHING THE AREAS SHOWN ON THIS MAP... THEN WE SHALL SEE IF OUR AGENT THERE HAS DONE AS INSTRUCTED...

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

DO YOU THINK THERE'S ANY CHANCE OF OUR FINDING PATTI HERE AT VARZONI'S APARTMENT, TOM!
PRETTY, SLIM, MRS. WORTH—I'M AFRAID LOU HAS SKIPPED TOWN—BUT WE MAY GET A LEAD!
MIS' VARZONI NOT HERE ANY MO'...! GONE—NO COME BACK...!
BUT YOU KNOW WHERE HE WENT!... DON'T YOU?
MIS' VARZONI. NOT SAY—TAKE BAGGAGE ...GO!
NOT SO FAST, LITTLE MAN! WE'RE COMING IN AND LOOK AROUND FOR THE NEXT CLUE IN THIS SCAVENGER HUNT!

MICKEY FINN — Open House! — By Lank Leonard

I'M SORRY, SIR—WE HAVE NO STEAKS—BUT HOW ABOUT TWO NICE BIG FRESH LOBSTERS?
OKAY! WITH ALL THE TRIMMINGS!
SO PHIL SAID HE WAS GOING TO CELEBRATE OUR RE-UNION, TOO, EH, MICKEY?
YEAH—I SUPPOSE HE'LL INVITE ONE OR TWO OF HIS CRONIES OVER TO THE HOUSE!
THAT'S RIGHT, McGILLIGAN—IT'S ON ME! AND BE SURE TO BRING McGINNITY AND McGONNIGAL!

MR. AND MRS. — Full of Helpful Suggestions — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

JOE, THERE'S A MAN AT THE DOOR SELLING FLOWERS. SHALL I BUY SOME FOR THE YARD?
IF YOU LIKE WHAT SHALL I GET?
ANYTHING AT ALL! BUT NO PANSIES, THEY GET SCRAWNY. AND NO ROSES, THEY GET BUGS—
AND NO FUCHSIAS, THEY FALL OFF JUST AS THEYRE ABOUT TO OPEN. AND NO SALVIA, THEY DON'T GET GOING TILL FALL—
THEN WHAT SHALL WE GET? THE MAN IS WAITING
DON'T CARE. ANYTHING YOU LIKE

DIXIE DUGAN — The Past — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

WE'LL TAKE AN EARLY AMERICAN INCIDENT AND ACT IT OUT—ANY COMMENTS ???
GEE, MISS DUGAN—THAT'S SWELL!
WE'D LOVE STRUGGLIN' FER EXISTUNCE
I WANNA BE AN INJUN!
I'LL TALK THE SITUATION OVER WITH YOUR MOTHERS AND LET YOU KNOW—MEANWHILE GO BACK TO YOUR STUDIES
YIPPEE
HONESTLY, DIXIE—THAT IDEA IS AS WILD AS AN EARLY AMERICAN INCIDENT!
IT'S NOTHING OF THE SORT! TO MAKE AMERICA SOLID FOR THE FUTURE WE'VE GOT TO REMEMBER THE PAST!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Prearranged Secrecy — By Frank Martinek

YOU CAN'T DO THIS TO ME, EVEN THOUGH YOU ARE MY OWN FATHER.... I'LL GET EVEN WITH YOU FOR THIS IF IT TAKES.....
I KNEW THERE WAS A CATCH TO IT.... SHE LOOKED LIKE A SWEET GAL... OH SHUCKS, THIS WORLD'S GOING TOO FAST TO SUIT ME!!
SLAM
NOW, GENTLEMEN, YOU CAN GO AHEAD... YOU ASKED FOR SECRECY SO I HAD TO ARRANGE FOR IT!!
MISTER ESLAT, ARE YOU WILLING TO DO SOME SECRET WORK TO HELP OUR NAVY?
GENTLEMEN, I'M A REAL AMERICAN PATRIOT.... NOT THE SYNTHETIC KIND! NAME YOUR TERMS!!

LOOKIE, POP! THE MAN WHO IS PAINTING OUR BATHROOM GAVE SAMPSON AND ME SOME PAINT!
WELL, BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU PAINT WITH IT!
WE PAINTED YOUR GARDEN!
OH, M'GOSH!
KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON, BIG BOY! THAT'S FASTER THAN YOU CAN GROW THEM!

JOE PALOOKA — Battle Strategy — By Ham Fisher

--AN' THEN PRIVATE LEEMY COME UP WITH THE MAIN FORCE AN' IT WAS ALL OVER, SIR.
YOU BOYS DID A WONDERFUL JOB. WE'VE A LITTLE TOKEN OF OUR APPRECIATION FOR EACH OF YOU.
BUT BEFORE I PRESENT THEM--I'M INTERESTED IN ANOTHER BATTLE AND I WISH YOU'D DESCRIBE IT, JOE.
BUT, SIR--EXCUSE ME, SIR--I'D BE AWFUL CLUMSY TRYIN' TO EXPLAIN ANY BATTLE I WAS IN TO THE GENERAL, SIR...
I MEAN THE TIME YOU FOUGHT RODNEY AT THE YANKEE STADIUM. THE RADIO ANNOUNCER WAS SO EXCITED I COULDN'T UNDERSTAND HIM.
OH--YESSIR. WELL, SIR--HE COME OUT IN A CROUCH, SIR, AN' I PECKED AT "IM WITH MY LEFT, SIR--
--THEN HE OPENED UP, SIR AN' I ATTACKED 'IS LEFT FLANK--TCH TCH--I MEAN I CAUGHT 'IM ON THE LEFT SIDE WITH A RIGHT HANDER--
I NEVER COULD FIGURE WHY THAT ANNOUNCER SAID IT WAS A LEFT HANDER--YES YES, GO ON--I KNEW HE WAS WRONG--

JANE ARDEN — A Peddler — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

WASN'T JANE'S STORY THRILLING? THAT'S BECAUSE I HELP HER ON THE REALLY BIG CASES
OH I THINK YOU'RE JUST TOO WON'ERFUL—I MEAN REE-LY!
HOW ABOUT A NECKTIE FOR THE BOYFRIEND, MISS?
NO THANKS—I SHOULD THINK YOU'D PEDDLE NECKTIES TO THE MEN—
LISTEN, SISTER—I'VE GOT SOMETHING HERE THAT GIRLS GO FOR IN A BIG WAY—
WHAT'S SO SECRET ABOUT IT? LET'S SEE IT—

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

MIND OVER MATTER! BUT THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE!
NO MORE IMPROBABLE THAN THAT A BEING POSSESSING SUPER-STRENGTH COULD EXIST.
WHAT MANNER OF UNEARTHLY CREATURE ARE YOU? YOUR FOUR EYES—YOUR INCREDIBLE MENTAL DEVELOPMENT—I CAN'T FIGURE YOU OUT!
SO MIGHTY SUPERMAN HAS AT LAST MET HIS EQUAL—IF NOT HIS SUPERIOR! OH, YES—I'VE ONE MORE DEMONSTRATION TO SHOW YOU!
AS "NONAME" WILLS IT, A CASCADE OF METAL OBJECTS RAINS TOWARD THE MAN OF STEEL FROM ALL CORNER OF THE MUSEUM....
I'VE SOME GIFTS FOR YOU! RATHER IN THE NATURE OF A SURPRISE PARTY!
YOU KILL ME!

You've Got To Hand It To DAD!

ON FATHER'S DAY, SUNDAY, JUNE 20th

★ GIFTS FOR FATHERS IN WAR WORK
★ GIFTS FOR FATHERS IN THE SERVICE
★ GIFTS FOR FATHERS ON THE HOME FRONT

Here's a straight-from-the-shoulder proposition . . . no beating around the bush. Give Dad a War Bond first for Father's Day. That's as it should be. And that's what Dad would want.

But for his second gift make sure it will be something he'll like. He will appreciate anything you give him but will enjoy it more if it's something he actually wants and needs.

Take it from a Dad, himself. He can always use more shirts, more socks, more ties . . . or a robe, pipe, house slippers and a sport shirt and slacks set . . . all with nationally famous labels. Luggage, too, makes a fine gift.

If Dad or hubby's in the service, The Hecht Co. Modern Man's Store has all the answers, too. How about an apron kit, shoe shine kit or a traveling bag? Or a furlough bag, money belt, utility kit or wallet? . . . all bearing the nationally famous Swank name.

So give Dad a War Bond first, and secondly, give him a gift from The Hecht Co. Modern Man's Store, Main Floor.

NOTE: The Post Office suggests you mail gifts to servicemen in America earlier this year because of transportation difficulties. Gifts may be sent to Army Men overseas only if a specific article has been requested and permission has been given by the commanding officer. Gifts may be mailed to Navy, Marine and Coast Guard servicemen overseas without special permission.

Famous Trojan "Drape-Stitch" Ties will make a sure hit with Dad. The exclusive, "drape stitch" construction makes the tie form a perfect knot and "dimple" every time. Handsome patterns in all silks, silk-and-rayons, rayons.

Other Trojan Ties . . . . . 1.00 to 3.50

Main Floor—The Man's Store.

1.65

Weather proof, Shoe Shine kit for the Fathers in the armed services. Khaki or navy blue, water-repellent, twill kits containing shoe polish, shining cloth, dauber and shoe brush. It's a mighty useful gift.

Main Floor—The Man's Store.

3.50

Fitted Apron Kit for Dad in the Service. It's such a practical gift for Father's Day. The apron has eight pockets containing soap, toothbrush and holder, comb, mirror, toothpaste, shaving cream. And his hands are always free.

Main Floor—The Man's Store.

Leather House Slippers for Dad on the home front or in camp. When he takes off his business shoes or his rugged "G-I" ones and slips into a pair of these comfortable house slippers, he's going to thank you a million. Sizes 6 to 12.

Main Floor—The Man's Store.

Famous McGregor Sport Shirt and Slack Ensemble. Put Dad at ease during his off-duty hours at home with a two-piece casual ensemble. Button-front shirt may be worn in or out of the pleated front slacks. Contrasting and matching colors of blue, tan and green. Small, medium, large sizes.

Main Floor—Men's Sport Shop

Famous McGregor Sport Shirts with two pockets. Short sleeves, button fronts and convertible collars. Straight cut bottoms may be worn in or out of his slacks. Plain shades of white, tan, blue, green, in small, medium, large and extra sizes. Rayons, rayon-and-cottons.

Main Floor—Men's Sport Shop.

A Famous Rabhor Lightweight, Summer Robe will be just the thing for Dad if the one he has is showing signs of wear. Cool, washable, cotton-and-rayon seersuckers in stripes and neat checks. Small, medium and large sizes.

Other Robes . . . . . 3.95 to 12.50

Main Floor—The Man's Store.

65c two for 1.25

Famous Phoenix Hose will make any Dad give his hearty thanks. A man can always use more socks . . . and especially so, if they're nationally famous Phoenix. Regular and short lengths in rayons, cottons, rayon-and-cottons. Whites, clock effects, stripes, plaids in sizes 10 to 12.

Other Famous Hose . . . . . 45c to 1.25

Main Floor—The Man's Store.

Famous Manhattan "Vericool" Shirts are as cool and comfortable as the name implies. An open, porous weave that catches the slightest stir of air. Regular Manhattanized collars and the new longer points. Plain shades of white, tan, green and grey. Sizes 14 to 17. Sleeve lengths 32 to 35. Main Floor—The Man's Store.

Bookshelf of Games is a swell gift for Dad . . . and for the entire family, as well. They look like books, yet each edition is a complete game in itself. Choose from backgammon, chess, checkers, bingo, acey-ducey, China-peg, bottoms up and puzzles. Get him several and start a library.

Main Floor—Men's Sport Shop.

Topgrain, Suntan Cowhide, Fitted Toilet Kit for Dads in the armed forces or on the home front. Compactly fitted with brush, comb, mirror, containers for razor, soap, shaving cream, lotion and other traveling or home needs. A mighty handsome cowhide kit.

Main Floor—Luggage Shop.

Campaigner Bag for Army and Navy Officers and Civilians. Showerproof, heavy canvas bag and bound with topgrain cowhide. Holds two uniforms or suits on hangers and has separate compartments for shirts, pajamas, shoes and all other traveling needs. Here's a gift that any Dad will be sure to appreciate.

Main Floor—Luggage Shop.

Shop Thursday from 12:30 noon 'til 9 at night . . . . . The Hecht Co.
